In The Philippines

Martial Law Declared

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philippines government proclaimed martial law, closed major newspapers, took control of radio stations and cut communications with the outside world today for the first time since the islands gained independence from U. S. rule 26 years ago.

The drastic measures came amid unrest caused by the country's worst floods in history and a growing wave of bombings and terrorism culminating in an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the defense secretary Friday.

An expected broadcast today by President Ferdinand E. Marcos was not heard by evening. Philippine radio stations still on the air played uninterrupted music.

Sketchy reports filtering out of the troubled nation indicated the military appeared to be playing a subdued role and martial law was not being enforced in Cebu and Mindanao.

Government sources said Marcos signed the martial law decree transferring power to local military commanders late Friday.

But other reports said the proclamation was dated Thursday, and has been preprared before Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and his aides escaped unscathed from shots fired into Enrile's car by unidentified gunmen who fled.

A Manila police spokesman said three senators of Marco's opposition, the Liberal Party, and a newspaper columnist were arrested, but gave no reason.

Gunshots were reported on the campus of the state university, where classes were ordered suspended. The university has been a center of leftist activity.

Marcos, whose second term as president ends next year, has warned recently of increasing Communist terrorism. He said in a speech last week martial law might be needed to combat it.

Police without warning shut down all of Manila's newspapers and all major radio and television stations before there was any announcement of martial law. Employes of The Associated Press, whose Manila office is in the Manila Times Building, were ordered home without explanation.

With access blocked to normal circuits, AP newsmen used commercial cable and telephone to report developments until the government cut those channels.

Shortly before the cutoff, AP Correspondent Lynn C. Newland cabled New York that there would be no communications for 24 hours.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said the Philippine government had ordered that calls to Manilla be refused.

A report reaching Singapore before the cutoff said that Marcos used a special police force called Metrocom to close newspapers and radio stations and that the martial law proclamation covered 12 principal regions, including greater Manila.

Bombings and other etrrorist activity in the Manila area have killed one person and wounded at least 20 others in the past two months.

Gunfighting and other violence, crime, political turmoil and corruption have long been commonplace in the Philippines, a 7,000-island archipelago crowded with 35 million persons.

Banta Elected State Education Board President

JEFFERSON CITY — W. C. Banta of Charleston was elected president of the Missouri State Board of Education Friday at the board's Setember meeting in Jefferson City.

Banta, who was serving as vice- president of the board, was elected unanimously. He succeeds Sidney R. Redmond of St. Louis, who has served as president for the past year.

Banta, who is a graduate of the School of Law, University of Missouri, has been a practicing attorney in Charleston since 1934. He presently is also serving as city attorney for Charleston. A native Missourian, he was appointed to an eight- year term on the State Board of Education in October of 1969.

The board approved the proposed program budget request by the State Department of Education for fiscal 1973-74.

This proposed budget calls for expenditures of about $506 million, of which more than $107 million would be in federal funds.

Of the $506 million requested, 98 per cent would go for the support of public and state schools.

The 1973-74 budget, as proposed, would be an increase of about $46 million over the 1972-73 budget. Major items included in the $46 million increase are:

Additional federal funds, $17,800,000; public school foundation program, $18 million; junior colleges, $3.5 million; vocational education, $3 million; school for the blind, school for the deaf and administration, $1.5 million; school food service programs, $1,200,000; state schools for retarded children, $427,000; and vocational rehabilitation programs, $425,000.

While considering these requests, the board of education reaffirmed its concern and support of the development of vocational and career and adult programs in Missouri. For example, the request would provide for the building of three more area vocational schools and the expansion of programs in two existing schools.

The board approved a single salary schedule, beginning with the 1973-74 school year, for teachers at the school for the blind in St. Louis; the school for the deaf in Fulton; and for the 58 schools for retarded children.

Purpose of the schedule is to bring the salaries for teachers in these schools up to a level commensurate with that paid public school teachers. Presently, salaries paid the special education teachers in these schools is considerably below that paid public school teachers.

With approval of this schedule, the board emphasized that flexibility should be provided in the schedule in order that exceptional and outstanding teachers may be rewarded.

The board also approved the concept of an annexation agreement between the Pleasant Valley School District and the Kansas City School District. Residents of Pleasant Valley will vote October 6 on a proposal to annex to the Kansas City District.

Following the morning business meeting, the Board met the presidents of the state's junior colleges.

Two Injured In One-Car Accidents

Two one- car accidents on area roads resulted in injuries to two men in the 24- hour period ending this morning, according to the highway patrol.

Donald Lee Meinz, 19, of Cape Girardeau received fractured ribs and possible internal injuries when he lost control of his car on a curve, left the road and struck a tree. The accident occurred at 11 p.m. Friday on Route Z in Cape Girardeau County. Meinz was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Denver Jackson, 28, of Gideon received face cuts at 1:45 today when his pickup struck a bridge railing on Highway 25 one- half mile east of Holcomb. He was treated and released from Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

A LAMPSHADE, MELTED by the intense heat of the fire which heavily damaged Bootheel Lounge on North Main Street early this morning, dripped down to the top of the pool table. The bar area of the tavern was gutted by the fire. Two other buildings received smoke damage.

Burglary-Arson Suspected

Bootheel Lounge Burns

Police began sifting through the wreckage of Bootheel Lounge on North Main street today, searching for clues to determine the cause of the fire which heavily damaged the tavern early this morning.

A burglary - arson attempt is suspected, police say.

Police said the back door of the tavern was open when firemen arrived, and a hole had been cut in the roof.

Coin boxes on vending and game machines in the tavern were broken open.

However, $219 hidden by an employ in a wastebasket was not found by the burglar. The money was recovered waterlogged but otherwise undamaged.

The fire was discovered about 3:45 a.m. by off-duty policeman Joe Sebourn, who lives near the tavern. Sebourn said he was preparing to leave for work when he heard two loud noises that sounded like gunshots.

Sebourn said he stepped outside his house and saw flames coming from the back door of the building.

Acting Fire Chief Jim Terrell said the noises were probably bottles exploding in the heat. They continued exploding while firemen fought the flames.

Firemen were able to contain the flames to the bar area of the tavern. However, smoke, water and heat damage was extensive in the remaining portion of the building.

Two adjacent stores, Fred's Package Liquor and Ethridge Tire Company, received smoke damage.

Thieves Take Money, Keys

Thieves netted $22 and four key rings in two separate burglaries late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, police said today.

Jimmerson Service Station on West Malone was robbed of $22. Entrance was gained through a window on the building's west side, police said.

Four key rings were taken from Coca- Cola truck while it was parked in the company parking lot at 202 West Front. The truck was not locked.

Easter Posts $1,500 Bond

CHARLESTON -- Jack Easter of East Prairie was arrested Friday afternoon by Mississippi County Sheriff W. J. Pedro Simmons on a felony charge of exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon.

He is accused of displaying a double barrel shotgun in the presence of Billy Ray Nolen of East Prairie on Sept. 20. The incident reportedly took place on a dirt road south of East Prairie. Easter was released on $1,500 bond and will appear before magistrate T. J. Brown, Jr. Thursday.

Arrest 2 On Drug Charges

CLARKTON — Two Ripley county men were arrested Friday on charges of possession of marijuana. Richard Stanton Brumitt Jr., 18, and Richard Allen Dietz, both of Doniphan, were arrested with 21.9 grams of marijuana in their possession.

Ripley County Sheriff Lewis Dawes got a lead and contacted Dunklin county deputy Sheriff Bob MacDonald, informing him that the pair were possibly carrying the drug.

Arresting officers were MacDonald, J. T. Terry, Clarkton night marshal, and highway patrolman Gene Duckworth of Malden. Brumitt and Dietz have been released until Monday when possible charges will be filed.

AS SUMMER ENDS

Yesterday was one of those days you wish you could put in a huge jar and vacuum seal for opening on some sloshy, cold, windy day in winter. The air over Sikeston was crisp, with just the right hint of oncoming autumn. It brought people out in the open, and somehow pushed the "happy button" of our psyches.

Cruising through the city, you had the feeling of busy people going about their work with a sense of enjoyment and fulfillment. When you talked to someone, he was usually smiling.

If anyone doesn't believe that a beauitful day produces beautiful people, he was locked up inside yesterday. Outdoors the world was sparkling with joy of life.

THE NEED FOR DEFENSE

A nation's military establishment is not a luxury but a necessity. No nation with peaceful intentions requires or can justify a defense establishment which is larger than that which is necessary to meet the needs of her own security. But the adequacy or inadequacy of a nation's defenses is determined not by considerations of domestic priorities, but by the power relationships within which that nation must operate. And we must keep in mind that in the real world, no country can conduct an effective foreign policy without a military capability which is appropriate to its responsibilities.

In our case, our responsibilities since World War II have necessarily been international in scope as they have concerned themselves primarily with the need to contain the aggressive outward thrust of the Communist powers. These are responsibilities which we did not seek, but which we cannot escape as the only free world power capable of facing up to the Russian challenge.

Since the end of World War II, the unquestioned military might of the United States has been the foundation of the free world's security and independence. As a result of the Soviet Union's extraordinary expansion of every sector of its strategic and conventional arms, the military balance is now rapidly turning against the United States; and unless decisive steps are taken to reverse these trends, our security and that of the free world will be gravely threatened.

The recent interim agreement placing limitations on certain types of strategic offensive weapons will slow the rate at which the Soviet Union has been overtaking us in nuclear capabilities. This agreement will not however, eliminate the prospect that the Russians will in time achieve a decisive strategic superiority over us unless we launch immediately a vigorous program of weapons research, development and procurement within the limits permitted us by the SALT accord. To do less is to place the stability of the world and our own ultimate freedom at unnecessary risk. — Sen. James L. Buckley (C.-R-N.Y.)

HEAD TAX
UPROAR

If we are reading the signs right among people who use the airlines, opposition is increasing against the new airport "head taxes" being levied by various cities on airline passengers.

Such a tax is being discussed in Kansas City, in view of the high cost of air terminal security measures being demanded by the federal government.

Most cities collect $1 a head for departing passengers, and this revenue is to be used only for airport maintenance.

But Philadelphia levies a $2 tax on each departing and arriving passenger, and makes no bones about putting most of the revenue into its general fund.

A court hearing started this week on the legality of the Philadelphia tax.

Opponents of such taxes have dug up an 1867 Supreme Court decision, Crandall vs. Nevada, that seems applicable.

At issue in that case was a Nevada statute that levied "a tax of $1 upon every person leaving the state by any railroad, stagecoach, or other vehicle employed in the business of transporting passengers for hire,"

The court ruled that if a state can tax a man a dollar for such a purpose, "it can tax him one thousand dollars. If one state can do this, so can every state." And that this would impose a burden on all travelers wherever they might be bound.

More recently, however, the Court's stand has been modified. As long as such levies are "uniform and fair and practical" and if the revenue is used to maintain a public facility -- it's all right.

But the softening of the judicial attitude hasn't softened the public attitude against head taxes -- or just taxes.

If we were young enough to join the protesting group, and if we should have joined them, we wouldn't have demanded a guaranteed income of $6,500 a year. With inflation such as it is, and the shortage of ambition which appears to be a part of our great country, we would have demanded a minimum of $10,000. If our give- away Congressmen want to do something really big, why not make our annual income $15,000? We would be glad then to quit trying to earn our income and let Uncle Santa Claus do it for us. You say the country couldn't afford anything like that? It seemingly can afford to go many billions of dollars more into debt each year by spending more than it takes in.

THE FLAVOR'S GONE

Between now and November, thousands of pollsters will sound us out on who will get our vote and why. It will all be very scientific, but tasteless. The reason is that the famous popcorn poll which began its 20- year career of accurately calling presidential elections in that infamous year of 1948 has been killed by inflation. Officials of the Blevins Popcorn Co. say it costs too much to tally the political tastes of popcorn buyers at the nation's movie houses.

If we were a candidate, we'd be tempted to subsidize the popcorn poll. It had hot-buttered accuracy and salty simplicity. After all, a man may hedge his political preference to an an opinion taker, but would a Nixon man want to be seen eating McGovern popcorn or vice versa?

BUTTERING UP
LABOR ...

The Administration's quest for labor support is mowing down one Republican tradition after another. It is also getting increasingly expensive for the taxpayer.

The latest casualty in G.O.P. dogma is the notion that the Davis- Bacon Act requiring payment of union wage scales on governmental construction represents an inflationary surrender to the building trades. President Nixon was himself a total subscriber to this view early last year when he suspended the law as a means of checking the runaway wage- price spiral then prevailing in construction. The law remained in suspense for a month until the President set up pay stabilization machinery for the industry.

But now that the hardhats are pivotal to Mr. Nixon's hope for a big union vote, the Administration has thrown its unreserved support behind a labor- sponsored extension of the Davis- Bacon prevailing wage guarantee to construction financed by state and local governments with Federal revenue- sharing funds.

Thanks to a coalition of labor's old Democratic allies from the industrial states and Republicans following the new White House line, the Senate voted this week to write into the new revenue- sharing bill a triple guarantee even more embracing than Davis- Bacon provides on Federal projects. It requires the localities to pay construction workers the highest rate called for by any of three measuring rods: the Federal or state minimum wage or the prevailing scale in private industry.

Why worry that the whole theory of revenue sharing is to make money available with no strings attached or that the strings run so counter to standard Administration philosophy? After all, the election is coming up.

REMARKABLE
PUBLIC SUPPORT

Hardly a day passes that somewhere in the country a local legislative body is not asked to consider passage of a law restricting consumer choice in the marketplace. The fact that so few of these repressive measures ever receive serious consideration might be said to be a tribute to the good sense of legislators. But, it is more than that. It is a tribute to the inherent good sense of consumers and the remarkable sturdiness of the marketing system itself--a sturdiness that rests in public acceptance of the system simply because it works.

Fundamental elements of the system, such as marketing, promotion and advertising, which frequently receive the adverse attention of anti-free-market agitators, enjoy a measure of public support that is highly encouraging to all those who believe that freedom of the marketplace is ultimately as essential as freedom of speech. A recent survey by a leading trading stamp concern provides an amazing demonstration of the kind of public support that keeps the free U. S. economic system strong. The survey shows that a great majority of people exercise their right of free choice to save trading stamps, which are one of the oldest forms of promotion there is and as much a part of the marketing system as the Saturday specials. Specifically, the survey reveals that 78 per cent of America's some 59.9 million households save stamps. About 80 per cent of American women say they personally save stamps, and 70 per cent of the men report they either save stamps or at least contribute to the family collection.

As long as the U. S. Free market system receives this kind of endorsement from consumers, it is a safe bet that it will be around for quite awhile.

PAT ON THE BACK

Rarely does a public official give an industry an unqualified pat on the back. But, an incident of this nature recently occurred. It had to do with the counter-inflationary downward trend of air fares charged by a leading U. S. international airline--Pan American World Airways.

Long a pioneer in bringing overseas air travel within the reach of the modest pocketbook, Pan Am went all out this summer in its efforts to encourage passengers traveling between the United States and Europe on weekend flights. Representative Richard L. Ottinger of New York, in commenting on the airline's fare policy, notes, "...with every American feeling the increasing pinch of higher and higher prices, it is refreshing to see any effort to hold the line or achieve reductions. It is with that in mind that I call attention to steps taken by Pan American World Airways to reduce fares this summer for passengers traveling between the United States and Europe...Pan Am, I am told, plans to further lower fares between the United States and Europe when it introduced bulk inclusive tour fares on November 1...there have been occasions on which I found it necessary to criticize the action--or inaction--of the airlines. But I feel any effort to bring fares within the reach of the average American traveler deserves appropriate recognition."

International air carriers are confronted with rising costs the same as any other business. There is no magic by which fares can be reduced. If inflation continues and costs scontinue to rise, the airlines will be up against the same financial stone wall that confronts everyone else. In the meantime, a basic industry has received a well-deserved word of commendation.

RESEARCH GROUP
PREDICTS '72 R & D
INVESTMENT GAIN

Record total expenditures for research an development of $30.1 billion are expected in 1972 according to the annual forecast for 1972 of the Battelle Institute, Columbus, Ohio.

The prediction represents an 8 per cent rise over the estimated 1971 total of $27.8 billion and the largest per cent increase since the mid - 1960s.

The increase will be the result of a record level of federal support, higher even than the previous peak figure of 1969, and from a continuing upward trend in support from industry and private sources.

Estimating corporate funded R & D by broad industry groups, the forecast identifies the top spenders as: (1) transportation equipment and missiles, with 1972 R&D expenditures of $2.8 billion;

(2) electrical equipment and communications, $2.7 billion;

(3) machinery, $2 billion; and (4) chemical and allied products, $1.9 billion.

SCRAP LEGAL SERVICES
CORPORATION

The "anti -poverty" bill currently under consideration by Congress would set up a National Legal Services Corporation to take over the functions of the Legal Services branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Most of the debate has been over whether to leave the Legal Services department as it now is or to set up the new corporation which would be run by a board of directors free from Congressional control. But for the people of our country, a more important question is whether this agency should exist at all.

The record of the Legal Services department of the O.E.O. is deeply disturbing. In California, for example, an attorney with Rural Legal Services assisted the leader of the Peace and Freedom Party in providing communist and revolutionary literature to prison inmates. In Berkeley, a Legal Services employee was paid for eight months without doing any work for the agency. Instead he worked with a communist law firm known for prison agitation. He was later identified as the man who delivered a gun to George Jackson just before he attempted to escape from San Quentin.

Another Legal Services employee, an active member of the Communist Party, provided legal assistance to members of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) in connection with an interstate dynamite case. Another, convicted for rioting before being hired, helped organize revolutionary activity in Berkeley, California.

Under the guise of "helping the poor," Legal Services has contributed to the breakdown of order and morality in our country. Congress should stop funding this program and refuse to set up the National Legal Services Corporation. HLH

President Tells Campaign Team He Expects to Win All States

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON —It was the White House East Room but Richard Nixon gave it a locker room gung -ho touch the other week. For he was in rare gung -ho spirits. The President turned to the key party leaders from across the land who will go out there and campaign for him and said he expects the party will win -- big.

Said the President, for the first time since George Washington a political organization has a chance to "carry every state."

This includes beating Sen. McGovern in his most charismatic ally's home state, meaning Sen. Ted Kennedy's. The President reckoned they could do that, too. Mr. Nixon had just finished urging his campaigners to make a naximum political effort everywhere, regardless of the record.

Then he cited Massachusetts as an example. Both Sen. Brooke and Gov. Sargent have said "something is going on in Massachusetts" that could lead to its going Republican said Mr. Nixon, the candidate.

Then, recalling his first campaign --10 national campaigns ago in one fashion or other --he said he had been delayed at a political luncheon and had gotten to the maternity hospital too late to arrive before the birth of his first daughter. Now his daughter had just reminded him that this '72 race was his last campaign and he said he wanted "the last one to be the best one."

What he wanted his listeners to deliver was "a mandate in the form of an overwhelming vote everywhere for our policies, including the election of more Republican members of Congress." He reckoned the country had made progress under his administration but more could be made "with a large majority vote behind me." He blamed Congress for not "permitting" the nation to move as fast as he wanted it to. Then he and Mrs. Nixon spent 70 minutes chatting with each guest about techniques for winning their own states.

Over and over he urged them to push and elect Republican Senators and Congressmen --give him a majority of the Congress.

Then on to the Blue Room and the State Dining Room for refreshments after some warm words about and from Vice President Agnew who, said the President, should not be described as a "surrogate" campaigner but as a major force all his own.

But despite the euphoria, the President is running like Franklin Roosevelt ran --scared. Not even against the ageless Alf Landon did FDR take for granted he could carry his home state, New York. So it is with Mr. Nixon. He meant what he said that day in the East Room: "You always run as if you're behind."

He'll run that way. He's brushing aside the built -in exhilaration of the polls. His own yellow -pad figures and some supplied to him by his own insiders in his hideaway room show Sen. McGovern moving along right briskly. Big crowds. Especially in labor and industrial sectors. Heavy official labor support despite AFL —CIO chief George Meany who either is stealing Bob Hope's still unused lines or is the year's greatest undiscovered gag writer.

By latest count at the Democratic National Committee the McGovern backers now number 41 national unions with 8.75 million members. And more to come.

Inquiry at the inner sanctum over the plans of the President on style, technique, schedule and strategy brings a swift reply. There is no real strategy. Unlike 1968 it now will be all flexible. Improvised. Like the sudden visit to the Italian —American Sunday picnic at Mitchellville, Md., Sept. 17, five days after the East Room gathering.

At the last minute the President took his wife and daughter, Julie Eisenhower, got into a helicopter at Camp David, flew out to the small community and ate pizza, Italian sausages and meatball sandwiches. He improvised his lines. He told the crowd America had to send to Italy for its first real band for official functions, was cheered, got the stiffness out of his official campaign mien and for a moment had the aura of Nelson Rockefeller eating knishes at Nathan's in Coney Island.

It was politics at its most basic. He loved it. He proved to his sanctum he could mix.

And there were 10,000 folk there, mostly working people. Would this set a pattern as well as a precedent?

Perhaps the answer is in what one of his intimates said: "One thing we're maintaining is a measure of flexibility from day to day, week to week, how often to go and where, a flexibility we did not have in '68. Improvising instead of long range strategy. We're not operating on a fixed schedule. We'll see how things develop. The President will be going after the 'targets of opportunity.' We will not go on the offensive against McGovern. We'll elevate the issues. We'll politically accentuate these."

In this they seem to have the active assistance of George Meany whose self -assignment is to retort to McGovern virtually each time the Democratic candidate opens his mouth to take a policy position --such as wages and prices recently.

It's that odd couple again --Meany and Nixon working in tandem to beat McGovern, but jousting with each other for control of the Congress.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON —Senators are still trying to dig out the details of the unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam. The target of one raid, for example, was a lone fighter plane photographed on the ground at Donghoi airfield.

Its pilot is a modern Red Baron who has managed to break through the electronic protective screen surrounding our B —52 bombers. His name is reported to be Toon and he's a menance behind the controls of a MIG.

He skims over the treetops to avoid radar detection, then shoots straight up full blast. At least once, he zoomed right through the middle of a B —52 formation. But he misfired his missiles and failed to knock down any of the big bombers.

The terrible Toon has also threatened other B— 52 bombing missions over both Laos and Vietnam. The Air Force brass were excited, therefore, when his plane was spotted in an aerial photograph of Donghoi airfield. This is the southernmost MIG base in North Vietnam.

Lieutenant General John Lavelle, then the Air Force commander in Southeast Asia, told senators that he spoke to his superior, Gen. Creighton Abrams, about the MIG and got the impression Abrams approved of a strike to destroy it.

At that time, White House troubleshooter Henry Kissinger was holding delicate, secret negotiations with North Vietnam s Le Duc Tho in Paris. President Nixon, therefore, had restricted air combat over North Vietnam. Under the President's orders, the MIG wasn't supposed to be attacked on the ground but could only be engaged if it took off with "hostile intentions."

Donghoi airfield was attacked anyway in early November 1971. Bad weather obstructed the view and the American pilots had to bomb through the clouds. The bombs missed the MIG.. In any event, it's unlikely Toon was sitting in the parked plane.

North Vietnam's notorious Red Baron, meanwhile, is still on the loose. But the story of his exploits has been censored by the Pentagon.

NIXON AND JEWS

A confidential memorandum to the White House bluntly describes President Nixon's recent visit to Moscow as a "disaster" for Soviet Jews.

The memo was written by Leonard W. Shroeter, a Seattle trial lawyer, who just spent 11 days in the Soviet Union conferring with Jewish leaders.

"In summary," he wrote "it is the conviction of the Soviet Jewish leadership that the President's visit was a disaster for them. They expressed the opinion that the United States seemed more interested in selling corn than in protecting human rights and individual freedom."

This contradicts the President's own impression of his Moscow visit. He has told subordinates that he raised the Jewish question with Leonid Brezhnev during their secret Kremlin conversations.

Nixon quotes the Soviet leader as complaining how awkward it was for the Kremlin to permit Soviet Jews to emigrate to Israel where they could be drafted to fight against Russia's Arab allies. The President claims he got an agreement from Brezhnev, nevertheless, that Soviet Jews would be free to emigrate to the United States.

A similar story was put out by New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who said the President had won an agreement from the Kremlin to increase the number of Jews leaving the country.

Shroeter declares in his memo, however, that he was "specifically delegated by Soviet Jews to speak in their behalf. During my entire trip, I was able to meet with top leadership and discuss in depth their needs, concerns and viewpoints."

The memo, marked "Confidential" and addressed to White House aide Len Garment, states that Soviet Jews "are living in the most difficult time thay have faced in recent years" and that they "attribute the difficulty of their situation to the recent visit of President Nixon.

"Prior to the visit," continues the memo, "there were wholesale preventive arrests and the imprisonment of Jewish leaders without explanation in the jails of distant cities and the house arrest of scores of others.

"These men were not released until after the President's visit ended and they were told that their arrests were occasioned by the President's trip. Also the telephones of virtually the entire Jewish leadership were cut off and have not to this date been restored ....

"Widespread interrogation by the KGB, which commenced before the visit of President Nixon, has increased subsequent to it."

The Shroeter memo is likely to be given considerable attention at the highest levels because of the President's all -out attempt to win Jewish votes in November.

Footnote: Shroeter just completed 30 months as principal legal assistant to Israel's attorney general. His work with Russian Jews migrating to Israel gave him special access to the Soviet Jewish leadership.

State Mental Health Plan In Jeopardy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Progress in Missouri's mental health program is in jeopardy because professionals are being lured away by higher salaries, Dr. Harold P. Robb, acting director of the Division of Mental Heatlh, said today.

In a speech prepared for the national Association of Mental Health Administrators, Robb said non-state psychiatric facilities are "attratice, seductive predators on the state mental health programs."

He said Missouri made great strides in mental health care under Dr. George A. Ulett, who resigned recently as division director, the Mental Health Commission and the support of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and the legislature.

"This progress is now in jeopardy," he said, "because salaries paid to public professional staff are much less than those offered in non-state work. Missouri psychiatrists in state facilities, for example, are receiving job offers for $5,000-10,000 more above the top Division of Mental Health scales.

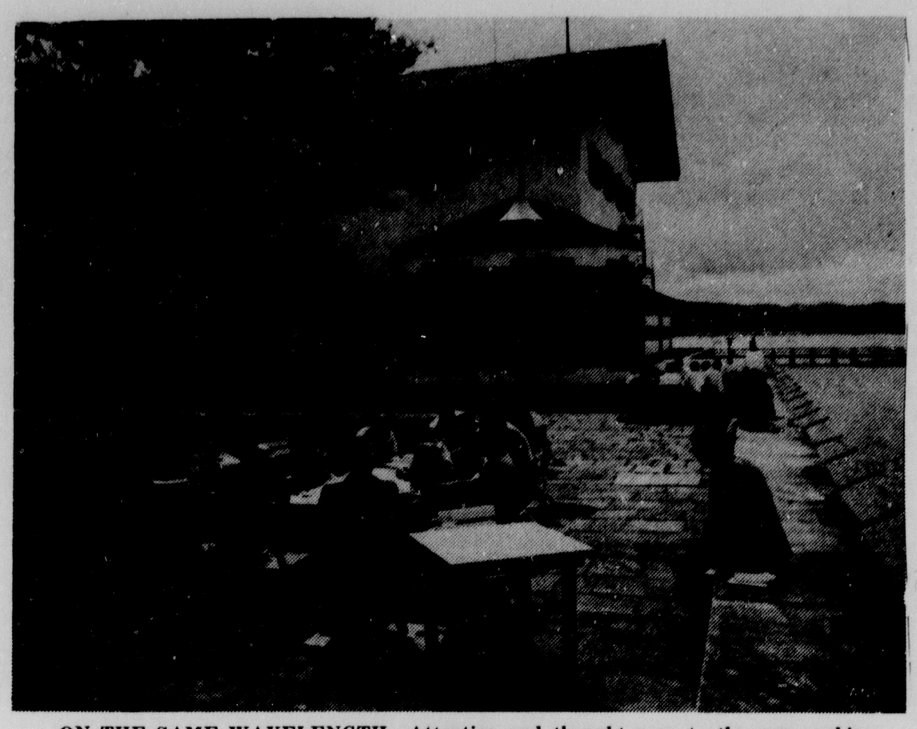

As less experienced staff members replace those who leave, Robb said, "The ones who will ultimately suffer most are the people who come to us for psychiatric care."

American Pows Not On Expected Flight

VIENTIANE (AP) — Three American fliers released from North Vietnamese prison camps last week failed to arrive on an Aeroflot flight from Hanoi today, apparently because North Vietnam feared waiting American officials would take over the freed men.

A statement signed by American antiwar activisits who are bringing the three home supported the probability that the North Vietnamese decided against sending the men, the first prisoners of war set free since 1969, home through Vientiane.

A Roman Catholic priest returning from Hanoi on today's flight, Father Harry Bury of the Roman Catholic International Assembly of Christians, said he believed North Vietnam was awaiting a White House response to the activists' statement before sending the men home.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said there would be no comment.

The statement, a telegrammed copy of which has gone to the President, was brought here by Marianne Hamilton, another passenger on the Russian plane.

The Vientiane control tower refused to ask the Russian pilot whether the Americans were aboard, and it wasn't known if they were there or not until U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtie Godley walked to the foot of the gangway and asked.

A clue to the North Vietnamese attitude appeared Friday in a monitored broadcast on Radio Hanoi.

The Vietnamese language broadcast said U.S. military officials were "lying in wait" at Vientiane airport in the hope of "taking possession of the three released pilots and returning them to U.S. military control."

Also in Washington, Pentagon officials had no comment on the statement by U.S. antiwar activists.

However, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told newsmen at Letter Kenny Depot in Pennsyvlania Friday that "I certainly would recommend that these men turn themselves over as soon as possible to their military command."

Laird said that "We, of course, will advise the three officers ... that we would recommend that they return themselves to military jurisdiction so that they can have the adequate medical checkups, that they can go forward with the kind of health reviews which we think are very important."

Laird voiced his concern about "the hundreds held by the North Vietnamese in violation of the Geneva Conventions."

The statement signed by the four American antiwar activists repeated four conditions first set forth by another Radio Hanoi broadcast. It demanded that in order to meet the "expectations of the North Vietnamese government and to avoid risk to future releases, the men should be allowed to fly on civilian aircraft, given a 30-day leave if they wished, given a complete medical examination at the hospital of their choice and to do nothing in the future to further American war activities in Indochina."

Mrs. Hamilton, a member of the same organization as Father Bury, said she thought the pilots and their escorts, would be on their way home soon, whether Washington replied to Hanoi conditions or not.

Claim North Viet Soldier Dead When Dropped From Craft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says a North Vietnamese soldier photographed while being dropped from a U.S. helicopter was already dead and the incident was staged.

An Army spokesman said Friday that an allegation the soldier was thrown to his death while being interrogated came from a false account of the incident written by a U.S. soldier to his girlfriend.

The Chicago Sun-Times published two photographs in November 1969 purporting to show a North Vietnamese soldier being dropped to his death from a U.S. helicopter.

The Army said its three-year investigation into the matter is now closed. The spokesman said that U.S. "fire support provided by helicopters resulted in the death of a North Vietnamese soldier.

"The helicopter shown in the photographs picked the dead NVA soldier, subsequently in a posed picture, the body was dropped from the aircraft," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the helicopter commander was reprimanded, but no action was taken against the craft's crew members because they had already been released from the Army before the investigation started.

Ralph Otwell, managing editor of the Sun-Times said the newspaper cooperated with the Army three years ago.

THIS SCENE might have depicted a man searching for clues to someone's personal disaster; but, in this particular case, no one had such bad luck. The man is Castor Alsup of Sikeston, who is helping to clear and burn debris from a house recently torn down at 205 Greer. The new vacant property at the rear of Missouri State Employment Service will be converted to a parking area.

Alfred Sikes II Heads Bond Campaign At 32

JEFFERSON CITY — When Alfred C. Sikes II was a youngster of 10 or 11 in his predominantly Democratic hometown of Sikeston, he got involved in his first political campaign. He asked voters to "vote for my daddy" for alderman.

Four years ago, as a promising young lawyer in largely Republican Springfield, Sikes took John C. Danforth, the GOP candidate for attorney general, from television station to radio station for campaign interviews. That lead eventually to his job as manager of Danforth's unsuccessful campaign for the United States Senate in 1970.

This year, however, Sikes is in the campaign game again. He is at the helm of the campaign for governor, and was credited with helping Bond pile up 76 per cent of the August primary vote over four opponents.

Sikes, a relative unknown to the public, has parlayed his campaign experience into a reputation as one of the most capable political campaign managers in Missouri. Associates and opponents alike say he has an uncanny grasp for politics and campaigning that belie his 32 years.

"This guy can get at the heart of things just something unbelievable," says one associate. "He has a grasp for politics that is unreal for a guy his age."

Despite his reputation, Sikes does not consider himself the "professional" campaign manager whose sinister presence behind the scenes is sometimes credited with manipulating candidates and voters alike.

"I enjoy this part of it, but I have a substantial desire to work in the governmental area," he says. "I think of myself as working in the political process to attain the opportunity to govern, then working in a substantive way to help govern.

"I am not addicted to politics, either in running for office myself or assisting others. If I were in it just for politics and not for some governmental end, I would get out."

Sikes would never fit the image of the cunning and shady campaign manipulator. He is handsome, articulate and personable, an outdoorsman who enjoys tennis and canoeing, and, when time permits, skin diving and spear and bone fishing in the Caribbean.

He came to politics naturally. He grew up in Sikeston, which was named in the mid-1800s for a distant uncle of his named John Turner Sikes, and where those who played the political game usually played for the Democrats.

So how did he become a Republican?

Sikes says his parents are "the ticket- splitting kind of Democrats and Republicans" and did not push him toward either party. It was basically his distaste for one- party dominance in Missouri and in Scott County that drove him into the GOP fold.

"I become a little bit rebellious when I see a certain power has dominated for so long," he says. "This runs counter to my philosophy of a strong two-party system of government ..."

It is this desire to break the Democratic dominance in Jefferson City that has spurred Sikes on in Bond's campaign.

Sikes got started in Missouri politics in an offhand way. He was practicing law in Springfield and keeping busy as president of the Missouri Jaycees in 1968 when Danforth, who later was elected Attorney General, came to town.

The young lawyer

Alfred Sikes II

introduced Danforth to other lawyers, arranged press and television interviews and set up a shopping center tour for Danforth that same day. Some time later, Sikes received a cablegram in Argentina, where he was attending a Jaycee meeting, inviting him to become an assistant attorney general.

As one of Danforth's chief aids, Sikes handled several politically explosive cases, including the ouster of Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton and a suit challenging the residency qualifications of state Representative J. B. (Jet) Banks (Dem.), St. Louis.

His management ability became evident in Danforth's race for the Senate in 1970, and he ended up as Danforth's campaign manager in a close defeat. He directs a paid staff of about 30 and a volunteer cadre of hundreds this year in Bond's campaign, just as he did in Danforth's 1970 race.

If Bond becomes governor, Sikes is expected to take a major role in his administration. He is considered a leading candidate to succeed Bond as auditor since Bond apparently would appoint his own successor if elected. He also has been mentioned as a candidate to become the first head of the new Office of Administration, which will be established in January.

Sikes says he considers a number of positions attractive," but I don't have any laundry list of priorities."

Although he has been mentioned repeatedly as a candidate for elective office, Sikes indicates some reluctance to run and subject his family to the fishbowl atmosphere of political life.

"I wouldn't run unless I felt the challenge to do things after election was very great, and the chance to be elected was very good," he says.

Although Sikes already has spent nearly $200,000 on Bond's campaign for governor, he says he is alarmed at the mounting costs of campaigning. He contends that such expensive campaigns make it all too likely that public offices may be bought by the financial angels who bid the highest.

He suggests creation of an independent agency to closely enforce new and more stringent campaign spending and financing laws, combined with a reduced period for campaigning.

Sikes was graduated from Westminster College and has a law degree from the University of Missouri. He and his wife, Marty, have three children.

SAN ANTONIO -- Bruce Hoffman will finish basic training Friday at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Perkins of 211 Kennedy Drive in Sikeston. His wife Sondra lives at 543 N. Ranney.

He will next take five additional weeks of training in the security division at Lackland.

Bill Gives Joint Bridge Authority

WASHINGTON — A bill which would give Missouri and Illinois joint jurisdiction over the Mississippi River bridge at Chester, Ill., was introduced in the House of Representatives last week by Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Mo. It was referred to the House Committee on Public Works.

An identical bill introduced earlier by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., was reported out of the Senate Committee on Public works and on the Senate calendar.

The Missouri lawmakers did not predict whether Congress would act further on the bills during this session.

Chester now operates the bridge, located halfway between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau. The city pays both operating expenses and indebtedness out of tolls.

Debt could be reduced faster, Burlison said, if states assume jurisdiction, since operating expenses would come from states' funds rather than toll funds.

In 1970, Chester paid $291,199 in operating expenses out of gross tolls of $351,000. Debt stood at $625,000 on Dec. 31, 1971.

The bills provide that if one state cannot cooperate in joint jurisdiction, the other state could take responsibility and be reimbursed out of tolls for half the operating expense.

SINNING

Four years ago Richard Nixon promised if he was elected president he would end the Vietnam War. About two years ago President Nixon promised he would never lead this nation down the road of price controls. Now President Nixon promised if he is re-elected he will not raise anyones taxes.

Isn't it about time Billy Graham tells President Nixon it's a sin to tell a lie?

Dowd Urges 3-Pronged Reorganization Effort

ST. LOUIS — Ed Dowd, Democratic candidate for governor, has called for a three-pronged attack on the massive problems of reorganizing state government.

Dowd said, "First, the purpose of the work must be clearly understood. It is not to preserve existing bureaucratic empires; not to see to it that present state employes continue their work and salary patterns with as little disruption as possible. It is to provide a structure that will bring efficient and effective government service to Missourians at the lowest possible cost."

Dowd called for a complete re-evaluation of existing state programs.

"The second step," Dowd said, "is to determine what programs Missouri needs that it does not have. I have proposed that Missouri create a statewide drug control and co-ordination system, to enable local law enforcement personnel to deploy their resources as effectively as possible in the fight against the drug traffic.

"The third step," Dowd said, "is to consolidate programs that are similar in structure and purpose. Recently four state offices investigated a major oil spill. This type of duplication of effort and expense must be eliminated."

Dowd stated that the development of short takeoff and landing aircraft would expand the life of Lambert airport. "The Federal Aviation Administration tells us that in fiscal 1971 60 per cent of the aircraft movements at Lambert were short-haul flights, under 500 miles. STOL-ports will not require expenditures of the magnitude of general aviation airports; A STOL-port would relieve Lambert of most of its traffic; and if we restrict general aviation traffic. Lambert will be adequate to serve our needs for many years."

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gene Robinson

Robinson-Averett

DEXTER —Miss Jean Ethel Averett and Alan Gene Robinson, were married Aug. 22 at the home of the bride. The eight o'clock double ring creemony was solemnized by Wesley Cowan.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Averett Jr., Route One, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F.L. Robinson, Route One.

Lighting the candles prior to the ceremony was the bride's brother, Marty Averett.

Mrs. John P. Morgan was pianist, offering a medley of selections and the traditional wedding march. She accompanied Miss Patti Grissom as she sang, "O Promiss Me".

Presented in marriage by her father, the former Miss Averett appeared in a formal gown of crisp white organza. The gown featured sheer sleeves cuffed with heavy Venise lace. The lace also encircled the high standup neckline and the natural waistline atop a demibell skirt. A Watteau Chapel train flowed gracefully from the back waistline and a contour headpiece of pearled Venise lace held fast her short bouffant veil.

The bride carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue and her only jewelry was a diamond pendant necklace belonging to her aunt, Mrs. George P. Dawson.

Her bridal bouquet was a nosegay of white carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Mary Jo Roberts of Dexter, friend of the bride, was matron of honor.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was C.E. Tuley.

Mrs. George P. Dawson and Mrs. Bill Flowers, aunts of the bride, presided at the serving table, following the wedding. Mrs. D.M. Sailors, aunt of the bride, Pacific, Calif., was at the guest book.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Dexter High School. The groom, graduated from Bernie High School in 1970, attended Three Rivers Junior College for two years and is engaged in farming with his father.

They will make their home on Route One.

Out -of -town guests at the wedding were Michael Averett, Hanover Park, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. D.M. Sailors, Pacific, Calif.; Mrs. Frannie Brigman, East Prairie, maternal grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Averett Sr., Parma, paternal grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Silverthorn, Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westerfield and Steve and Kelly, St. Marys; Ocie Heaton, Bloomfield; Mrs. Ed Bridges and Glenn, Essex; and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hull, Malden.

Southwest PTA Meets

Ernest Elledge, director of elementary education for Sikeston Public Schools, was guest speaker at the Parent - Teachers Association meeting Monday at Southwest School.

Elledge spoke on the need of a new school to reduce overcrowding in Junior high.

Mrs. Frank Peyton's class won the banner for having the most parents attending and Mrs. C. P. Blanks' class won second place.

Parents visited class rooms after the meeting.

Ann Landers

Stealing From Husband Upsets Wife

Dear Ann Landers: All my life I've been completely honest. Telling the truth was the governing law in my growing -up years. And now I am doing something worse than lying and I'm a nervous wreck over it. I'm a thief. I take money out of my husband's billfold.

R. drinks like a fish. We have small children. I can't leave them to go to work. He will not move out of the house and refuses to admit that his drinking is a problem. When he comes home at night he falls into bed cockeyed drunk and makes no sense until the next day. The only money I can get is what I take out of his billfold. He never misses it because he can't remember what he spent. This way I can at least keep food on the table. If I waited for him to give me money we'd starve.

But he has made a thief out of me and I hate it. I tell myself this kind of stealing is honorable, but I know in my heart it isn't. Please help me. ---Internal Battle

Dear I.B.: No kind of stealing is honorable --and you should not allow him to do this to you. In R.'s sober moments he must surely realize he is not giving you any money. What does he think you are living on? I suspect he knows what you've been doing. My advice is to tell him and I'll bet nothing changes, except that you will no longer feel like a thief.

Dear Ann Landers: Hotel and motel occupancy was very heavy this summer and I would like to say something that could make a big difference in the life of a maid.

A chambermaid's job is one of the dirtiest. You wouldn't believe what we have to clean up. It's a mystery whey people who behave beautifully at home turn into pigs when they check into a hotel or a motel.

I realize that a letter in your column won't change them but I do want to say a word to those who leave tips for the maid. The tip should be handed her, personally and not left on the dresser or in a bathroom glass. Bellboys, maintenance people, desk clerks, any number of employees have access to room keys and often the maid's money is picked up before she has a chance to get to it. Thanks Ann. ---Backache Becky

Dear Beck: I learned something today. From now on my tip goes directly to the maid ---and I agree that these hard working folks derserve to be remembered with something extra.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother who shut the door on her daughter's date because he looked like a gorilla, made me write my first letter to you. Our 17 -year -old has taken up with a gorilla also. Tell, me Ann, does a mother have the right to tell her daughter's "gentleman caller" to take a bath, trim his hair and put on a shirt? This ape likes to go naked from the waist up. It kills my appetite when I see a hairy chest across the table. Also, would it be rude to tell him to take his dirty feet off the furniture? I've been called prejudiced, "crazy clean" and a few other names. Please answer. --- Glencoe Mother

Dear Glen: You do not have the right to tell a "gentleman caller" to take a bath or get a haircut, but you can and should tell him he is not welcome at your table without a shirt. Furthermore, if a "gentleman caller" doesn't know enough to keep his dirty feet off the furniture, he should be instructed in this area also.

Bloomfield PTSA Has Supper

BLOOMFIELD — The Parent - Teacher - Student Association and elementary and high school annual fall meeting was held Thursday at 6:30 p.m. with a cover-dish supper in the elementary school auditorium.

Parents, students and faculty members of both high school and grade school, as well as school administrators and others of the area interested in the Bloomfield school system, attended.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Ray Duffey and the welcome address was given by Elvis Mooney, who recalled his early days as principal at Bloomfield High School in 1934 at a salary of $65 a month.

Mooney introduced the high school principal, Clyde Dixon, who described the varied program offered this year. Dixon reported that 17 students are now attending the Vocational Training School in Sikeston.

Dixon introduced the high school teachers and staff. R. E. Sharp, superintendent of schools, introduced the elementary staff and teachers.

Officers of the PTSA are Elvis A. Mooney, president; Ray Duffey, vice- president; Mrs. Kenneth Vandeven, secretary and Mrs. Tony Varble, treasurer.

Murray Lane Baptist

Rev. Wade Paris

I have been asked to write this first in a series of articles about local churches. I suppose I might write about the brief and beautiful history of Murray Lane Baptist Church, since we just celebrated our tenth anniversary. Or I might boast citing statistical gains and physical accomplishments for this has been our finest year. Or I might tell of the various areas of service in which our church is involved. But really, I prefer to keep these things at a minimum and write about the spiritual task that God has given to the church. Spiritual realties are hard to understand and difficult to measure but let us try to understand this task.

The New Testament speaks of the church as being the body of Christ. This picture suggests that the church has a two-fold purpose: the first concerns something we are; the second concerns what we do.

A body is dead unless it houses a person. A church is dead unless it is a body in which Jesus Christ lives. We will never be able to know what we should do as a church unless we know who we are. Consequently, we must know Jesus Christ. The Old Testament word for know is one of the most intimate words of the Hebrew language. It is this kind of intimate personal knowledge of the Lord that we seek to possess. The more we know Him the better we can be His body. So the first task of the church is to know Christ and let Him live in us. We come to know Christ initially by asking Him into our hearts; this knowledge is increased through prayer, by sharing our faith one with another, and by serving Christ in the areas He wants us to serve.

Many years ago a young man from a little midwest town had become quite prominent on the Broadway stage. He was coming home for a vacation and the town was bursting with pride. A banquet was planned in his honor and most of the town turned out.

After the banquet the young man thanked everyone and indicated he would give a recitation of some familiar passage of literature if someone would make a request. An old gray haired minister, the young actor's childhood pastor, asked that he recite the twenty-third Psalm.

The young man was somewhat surprised by such a request, but said, "I'll do it on one condition: when I finish, the pastor will come forward and recite it in the way I remember him doing it."

The minister nooded agreement.

The young actor then recited the Psalm. His enunciation, articulation and inflection were flawless. When he had finished, the people gave him a standing ovation.

The old minister came forward and began the recitation of the beautiful Psalm. His articulation, enunciation and inflection left much to be desired. When he finished, no one stood to applaud. But all over that large gathering soft sobs could be heard.

The pastor turned to leave, but the young man stopped him. He put his arm around him and said to the audience, "My friends, when I recited the 23rd Psalm I touched your mind and brought you to your feet. When this great man of God recited the same Psalm, he touched your hearts and brought you to your knees. The difference is this: I know the 23rd Psalm; this man knows the Shepherd!"

The first task of the body of Christ - the church - is to know the shepherd. More than this the Shepherd must live in us or else the body is dead.

As mentioned earlier, the second part of being the body of Christ concerns what we do. We do that which Christ leads us to do. We do what he calls us to do because of who we are. The church does not do things to become something. Instead it does things because it is something - Christ's body here on earth. Quite often the church is called upon to minister to those whom many count unworthy. Often it is said, "Why do you help them? They don't deserve it and don't appreciate it." That is the very point. We do not love or help persons because of who they are. We love and help them because of who we are. Those who placed Jesus on the cross surely did not love Him. They did not understand or appreciate the fact that he was dying for them. Yet Jesus loved them. He prayed for them, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do."

Because we are the body of Christ we must carry on the many facets of Christ's work here on earth. In a local congregation there will be some evangelists, and some teachers, and some who minister, and some preachers, and others doing the many things Christ would have done here on earth.

Some of the areas in which we try to do the work of Christ are: A Bible teaching program - for us Sunday school is the main arm of our Bible teaching program but there are other ways and times that it is done; a Church training program, the purpose of which is to equip Christians to do God's work in the world; missionary projects and offerings (missions begin at home but do not end there. We conduct regular services at a local nursing home and the jail, a monthly birthday party for senior citizens at the Heritage House, a Sunday school class for mentally retarded children, as well as supporting other mission work in the U.S. and around the world); music; worship, youth activities; regular prayer meeting; sharing groups; visitation; fellowship; and Dial-a-Devotion telephone ministry; and a multitude of other things we feel led by the Holy Spirit.

God has given to every true church the spiritual task of being the body of Christ. We conceive of ourselves as being a part of this body. This is what the Murray Lane Baptist Church desires to be. If we can be that, all else will fall into place. May God help it to be so.

CURTIS BEAN (20) breaks a pair of tackles and heads for open field on the way to his 74- yard touchdown scamper and more than 200 yards rushing in Friday night's 24-15 Bulldog victory over Charleston.

Offense Fires Up

Coach Pete Cirrintano's Sikeston High School football team kicked its offense into second gear and sped to a 24-15 victory over Charleston at Public School stadium Friday night. The win lifted the Bulldogs record to 2-1, while it kept CHS winless at 0-3.

The contest was marred by many mental errors on Sikeston's part. Defensive lapses cost the Dogs six points in the game, and maybe more, as coverage was messed up, allowing Junior DeLay to hit Herbert Harrison late in the game with a 77-yard aerial scoring strike.

Curtis Bean, appearing to be completely recovered from that nagging knee injury, ran for 219 yards on 21 carries in the contest. That was one of the best nights for a Sikeston back in several years. The speedster reeled off runs of 74 yards and 63 yards and finished with an average gain per play of 10.4 yards. Included in his accomplishments were two TD's.

Quarterback Bill Colwick, finally receiving the protection he has needed all year, fired for 136 yards on 15 throws. He completed nine on the night, five to Glenn Guttenfelder, three to Rick Eisenbach and one to tight end John Farris.

Bean, the state's 1972 long-jump champion in track, scored the first touchdown of the game when he ran over from two yards out. The attempt for two-point conversion was no good. Sikeston, after the game with the Blue Jays, is now zero for six in converting after scores.

Guttenfelder scored the second touchdown for the home team. He took a beautiful pass from Colwick and ran it in from 22 yards out to make the score 12-0.

With 18 seconds showing on the clock in the first half, Sikeston appeared to be playing it safe, keeping the ball on the ground deep in its own territory. However, Colwick appeared to fade to pass on third down, then slipped the ball to Bean, and Curtis turned it on after breaking a couple of tackles, outdistancing the field on a 74-yard jaunt.

The score was Sikeston 18, Charleston 0, and Sikeston coaches, players and fans wanted the shutout win more than anything. But, the defense, which had been so tenacious in the first half, seemed to slack in the second.

A consistent running game took Charleston down to the Sikeston two, where Junior DeLay twisted and turned, then ran over Leonard Davis for Charleston's first score. The extra point, despite a five-yard penalty against the Jays, was good and Sikeston's lead was cut to 18-7.

This time Sikeston used the air route a bit more, moving the ball steadily down field to a score. Junior flankerback Eisenbach was on the receiving end of a 24-yard scoring aerial from Colwick for Sikeston's final score. Sikeston, at this point early in the fourth quarter, appeared to have a fairly safe lead, 24-7.

Minutes later, that proved to be false. DeLay faded a few yards on third down, withstood a great deal of pressure from the defensive line, and tossed a perfect pass to Harrison. The play covered 77 yards as the Sikeston defensive backs missed their coverage.

Then Charleston kicked the extra point. A penalty was called on Charleston and Sikeston accepted, moving Charleston back five yards. The Jays elected to go for the two-point conversion and connected. The score, at this point, was 24-15 midway through the final period, and the packed house at Public School Stadium squirmed nervously as Bulldog rooters realized the win was not going to come as easily as it had appeared.

The Charleston crew was very determined as it lined up for the kickoff. However, their defensive effort was not consistent enough and the Bulldogs managed to pick up two first downs to lock up the victory, Sikeston's first in conference play. The Bulldogs are now 1-1 with a non-conference game at home against Memphis Fairley next Friday.

For the third week in a row, the defensive line of Aaron Yarber, Shane Waggoner, Sam Sanders, Mike Irwin and Dennis Breedlove played an effective game. The pressure on the opposing quarterback was improved against Charleston, as the defensive line got its best penetration of the year in the game.

Linebacker Roy Yarber was Sikeston's leading tackler with eight solo tackles and six assists. Waggoner blocked a punt and joined with Aaron Yarber to pressure the Charleston quarterback. The defensive line allowed just 58 yards rushing.

The most alarming thing in the ballgame was the pass coverage. For a good deal of the game it was good. But, the deep backs were burned on the 77-yard bomb and receivers cost Charleston a couple of other long gainers, dropping balls that DeLay placed in their hands.

The offensive line's effort was a plus. a few substitutions were made, allowing them to provide Colwick with better protection. The added beef also helped the running game which had been nearly nonexistent up until the Charleston encounter.

Sikeston's quarterback, Colwick, who set numerous passing records last year, is operating at approximately the same rate as last year, despite the deemphasis of the pass in Sikeston's offense.

Colwick has now hit on 21 of 44 passes in three games, good for 302 yards and three TD's.

Charleston appears to be going from the frying pan into the fire. They travel next to Poplar Bluff next week and play the Mules in the "pit". The Mules Friday night upset highly- rated Perryville.

Jackson Wins Battle OF Unbeatens

JACKSON -- In the matter of one week the Jackson Indians seem to have sprung from the role of darkhorse candidate to solid co- favorite with Cape Girardeau Central for the Northern Division crown. The Indians have never won the title, but seem to have a bona fide shot this season.

Kennett, a solid choice for second place at the beginning of the year, fell victim to the relentless Jackson running game and solid defense Friday night and absorbed a 21-7 beating. The biggest Kennett accomplishment for the night was scoring the first touchdown Jackson has allowed in three games this campaign.

Mike Litz and Ted Leimer led the Jackson running game. Litz ran for 140 yeads on 20 carries and Leimer lugged the ball 113 yards on 15 carries. Jackson backs produced a total of 299 yards rushing against a supposedly tough Kennett line. At the same time, Jackson's defense held Kennett's experienced backfield to 93 yards.

Loren Sides, Jackson's diminutive halfback, opened scoring for the Indians, counting from five yards out. Rob Litz's extra point made the score 7-0, Jackson.

Robert Kranz evened it up in the second quarter with a one- yard plunge. It was 7-7 after David Tippen's extra point kick.

Leimer put Jackson ahead just before halftime. Fred Leimer then threw to Mike Litz for the two- point conversion and a 15-7 lead at intermission.

The game's last score came in the third period. Mike Litz scored from five yards and the missed extra point made the score Jackson 21, Kennett 7.

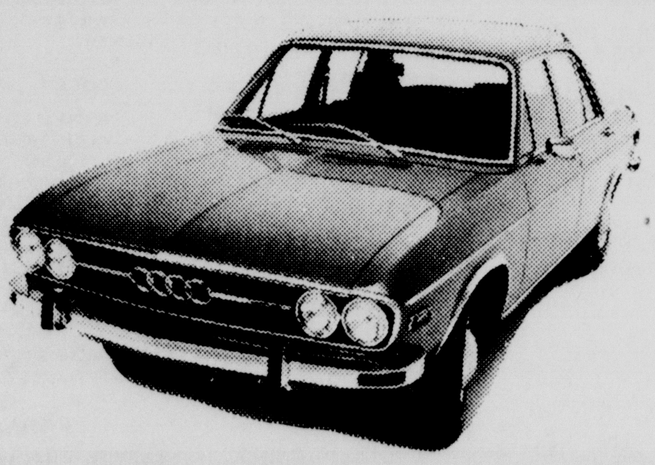

The defense for Jackson proved to be tremendous for the third game in a row, holding a veteran Kennett eleven to just 109 total yards.

The Kennett passing game was ineffective. Tippen hit just four of 12 for 16 yards. Jackson, with the successful rushing game, threw just three times, hitting one for 15 yards. Jackson faces another tough test next week against Poplar Bluff in another Northern Division game.

PHS Bulldogs Battle Back

PORTAGEVILLE — Playing their second subpar game in a row, Coach Jim McKay's PHS Bulldogs still managed to subdue a stubborn Chaffee Red Devil unit, 20-8.

Chaffee seemed to control the ball most of the game, but the Portageville defense was tough near the goal and allowed the Devils just one score, a long pass early in the game.

That 40-yard pass, followed by a two-point pass conversion, gave Chaffee an early 8-0 lead and it is probable that Portageville fans were wondering what had happened to the team that was supposed to be a solid contender for the Southern Division crown.

However, after the first quarter the defense got hot and stopped Chaffee, and the offense rolled up 20 points on two long plays and a slightly more solid offensive effort.

Portageville's first score came just before intermission. Sammy Johnson scored a 30-yard pass from Robbie Inman. Mark Girvin's extra point narrowed the gap to 8-7.

Randy Williams put Portageville ahead, 14-8, with a five-yard run just before the half.

The last score was on the opening play of the second half. Jim Bradfield returned the kickoff 80 yards for the score, the extra point was missed.

Poplar Bluff Scores First

POPLAR BLUFF — The Poplar Bluff Mules won their first game and the Perryville Pirates lost their first game as Coach Tom Telle's troops defeated their visitors from the north, 26-14.

The game features very little defense. A total of 28 points were scored in the first quarter and, in one span of 45 seconds, three TD's were counted.

Halfback Ben Holt scored first for the Mules, going over from two yards out. Jay Sanders had hardly kicked the extra point before Perryville had answered the score. Brady Williams, who returned a punt for a score against Sikeston the week before, returned the ensuing kickoff 85 yards and Dave Meyrs kick tied the score at seven-all.

The first play from scrimmage on Poplar Bluff's offensive series went 61 yards. Quarterback John Casey hit split end Hurley Rainey for the score, the third in less than a minute.

When Roger Brewer hit Bob Wichern from a yard out late in the quarter, the score was tied at 14-all.

There was no more scoring for nearly an entire quarter as both defenses seemed to settle down. With just forty seconds left in the half, Poplar Bluff regained the lead on a quarterback sneak by John Casey. The kick was missed.

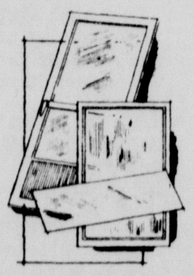

The last score came in the third quarter after runningback Tuttie Hayes returned a pass interception 25 yards. On the next series J. B. Hayes scored from the one.

Both teams are at home next week. Bluff tangles with the highly - rated Jackson Indians and Perryville opposes Charleston. Both games are Northern Division contests.

Central Division Tests Top Pro Circuit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"When Detroit and Minnesota play," Vikings Coach Bud Grant once commented, "nobody wins. It's just a matter of which team is ahead when the game ends."

That pretty much describes the collisions of these two powerhouses in the National Football Conference's Central Division.

The last eight times, Minnesota's been ahead at the end, and it's been those victories that have paved the way to the Vikes' four straight divisional championships.

At the moment, though, it's the Lions who are ahead. They beat the New York Giants 30-16 in their opener while Minnesota lost 24-21 to Washington.

And if Detroit can withstand the Vikings' typically-crushing defense Sunday, there's a good chance the Lions will have sole possession of the division lead.

Chicago, like Minnesota, will be out to even its record but the Bears have a formidable foe in the Los Angeles Rams. Green Bay, currently sharing the Central lead with Detroit, surprised Cleveland 26-10 a week ago.

This time the Packers' defense will be tested by Oakland's always-dangerous Raiders.

Other games find Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, St. Louis at Washington, Dallas at the New York Giants, the New York Jets at Baltimore, Houston at Miami, San Francisco at Buffalo, Cleveland at Philadelphia, Denver at San Diego and Atlanta at New England.

Monday night, New Orleans hosts Kansas City.

The Vikings have relied heavily on their running game the past few seasons—Oscar Reed and Clint Jones combined for 134 yards against the Redskins—but now they've got a passing attack to go with it. Fran Tarkenton hit for a pair of touchdowns in his 18 completions that netted 233 yards.

The Lions, two, have both ground and aerial attacks. Greg Landry threw only 17 passes last week but his nine completions, three of them for touchdowns, resulted in 207 yards. Steve Owens ripped through the Giants for 113 yards.

Pittsburgh and Cincinati, unbeaten in the American Conference's Central Division, will probably be vying all season for this title.

The Steelers, led by Terry Bradshaw, may have to go wih a pair of rookies, running back Franco Harris and tight end John McMakin, since John Fuqua and Larry Brown are injured and doubtful starters.

Ken Anderson, who led the Bengals past New England, is expected to get the starting quarterback spot over Virgil Carter.

Backfish Leads Cats

CARUTHERSVILLE — Dan Backfish ran for one touchdown and passed for two more in leading Dexter to a 21-14 victory over the CHS Tigers Friday night in Southern Division league play.

Backfish cracked over from one yard out in the first period and Allen McRoy followed with the extra-point boot. The score came moments after the Bearcat defense blocked a Tiger punt.

Bruce Bishop bolted across the goal line for DHS in the closing minutes of the first period after taking a pass from Backfish. The score covered 50 yards.

Robert Gibson teamed with Backfish for a 55-yard score on a pass play and Backfish cracked across for a two-point conversion to end a 21-point first half.

Caruthersville's scores came late in the second period when Joe Cagle countered from five yards out and Clarence Cunningham scored on a 40-yard pass play from Cagle, while Joe Kulpeso booted both extra points.

The teams battled to a scoreless standoff in the last half.

Dexter stands 2-0 in league play and 2-1 overall.

Eagles Still Searching

HAYTI — The East Prairie Eagles, winless so far this season, were grounded again Friday night; this time at the hands of the Hayti Indians, 14-13.

Utilizing her talented backfield duo of Danny White and Ed Martin, Hayti was first to score with an 11-yard dash by White which concluded a 95-yard drive in the first quarter. Jerome Maxie's extra point put Hayti in front, 7-0.

In the second period, East Prairie fought back as Annise Davis sprinted across from the five-yard line for the TD. Tim Bards kicked the extra point to tie the score at 7-7.

Hayti launched another scoring drive, this one for 61 yards, early in the third period. Randy Gardner got the ball and scampered 13 yards for the touchdown. Maxie again converted the extra point.

In the fourth quarter, a two-yard TD plunge by Davis set up the crucial play of the game. Instead of going with an easy PAT and a tie, East Prairie gambled for the win, but the two-point conversion bid failed and the Eagles suffered the loss.

Next week the Eagles will take on Portageville, and Hayti will invade Bearcat country to go into battle against Dexter.

Scoring by Quarters:

Hayti	7	0	7	0-14
E. Prairie	0	7	0	6-13

People Should Cherish Friendship Memories

"A BLESSED THING it is ...to have a friend, one human soul whom we can trust utterly, who knows the best or worst of us, and who loves us in spite of our faults..."

We all have our problems at one time or another, but how much smaller they seem when we can talk them over with someone who will understand. Someone with whom we do not have to be "on guard," knowing all the while that our trust in him will not be broken.

There will always be those who do not agree with our beliefs and in what we say; but a true friend will honor the right for our own opinion and we will honor his.

The special friends are the ones who stand out above the rest; they are the ones who know us and still like us in spite of our faults.

We must always cherish the friendships we make during our high school years and remember the moments we have shared. Because the friends, the laughter, the frustrations, and memories, both good and bad, will be with us always.

Beaver Picks 38 Chorale Members

GORDON BEAVER DIRECTS his new 38 members of Modern Chorale.

Gordon Beaver, director of vocal music in Sikeston high school, named 38 choir members to compose the Moderne Chorale, a select group of vocalists.

Moderne Chorale is composed of juniors and seniors from both the VI and VII hours classes. He chose the particular group of students because he felt they had the most singing potential and ability.

Moderne Chorale is a much smaller group of students than either of the concert choirs. This enables the smaller group to perform for more outside functions. The Chorale is a versatile group and can switch from one type of music to another.

Chorale members are Bethany Basham, Brad Buchanan, Jim Bob Dixon, Paula Doyle, Elisabeth Dupont, Patti Dye, Gail Dyer, Lisa Edwards, Jo Ellen Felker, Ginger Ferrell, Larry Garrett, and Glen Guttenfelder.

David Hahs, Steve Hampton, Ken Harbin, Debbie Hastings, Maureen Klein, Steve Lambert, Rikki LaPlant, Judy Malone, Dennis Meyer, Danny Nelson Rebecca Perrin. Melody Phillips, Terry Presley, Kenny Riddle.

EARLY INDUSTRY

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — At least 12 Roman furnaces have been unearthed in a "dig" off Manchester's Deansgate.

"These undoubtedly are the earliest traces of industrial Manchester," said Professor Barri Jones, 36, professor of archeology at Manchester University.

4915 Students Attend Sikeston Public School

Sikeston high school has an enrollment of 1350 students as of this date.

Freshmen and sophomore enrollment is larger than last year with freshmen at 395 and sophomores at 350.

Junior and senior enrollment is smaller this year with 302 juniors and 303 seniors.

As in the past, Lee Hunter has the largest elementary school enrollment with 583 students. Enrollment of Southwest elementary is 465, Southeast elementary follows with 448, and next is Matthews with 323.

Sikeston kindergarten classes have an enrollment of 300, which is considerably larger than last year's enrollment of 271. Morehouse kindergarten through the Learning Center has 375 students.

With the beginning of the 972-73 school year, the ikeston public schools have an nrollment of 4915.

Dunn Is Head Of Art Club: New Sponsor

Donna Dunn was elected president of the art club in Sikeston high school durig the first meeting of the school year.

Lee Haines was selected vice- president, and Jane Summers was named secretary-treasurer for the school year

Art club is not a new organization, but a few years have passed since it last had a sponsor. This year Mrs. Dianne Hahs will have the responsibility for the club and its functions.

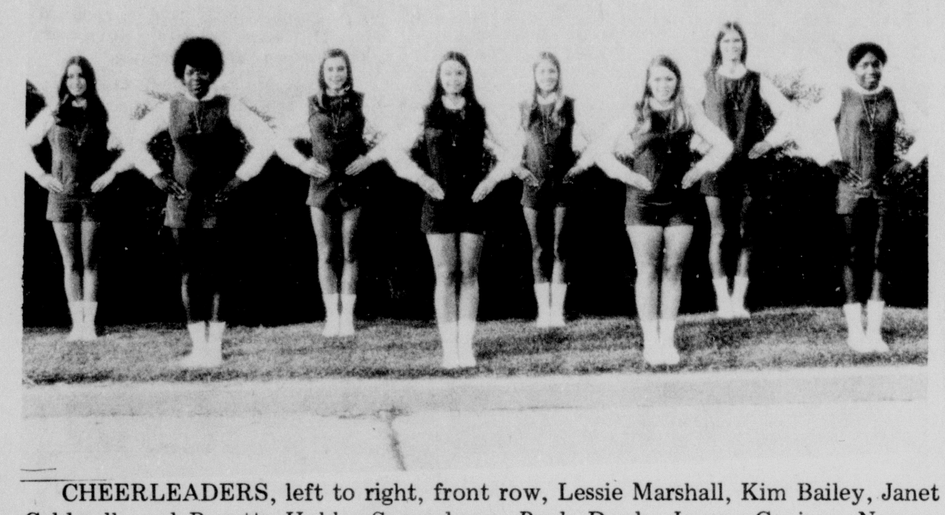

Members of the club are at work on a project. Each member is sketching a design to be voted upon later. One design will be chosen to be painted on four sections of wood and will be used for cabinet doors in one of the art rooms.

This project will be completed in time for a meeting of the art teachers from the state of Missouri that is slated for later during the school year.

Other activities planned include several field trips and the sponsoring of an art show in the mall in the spring.

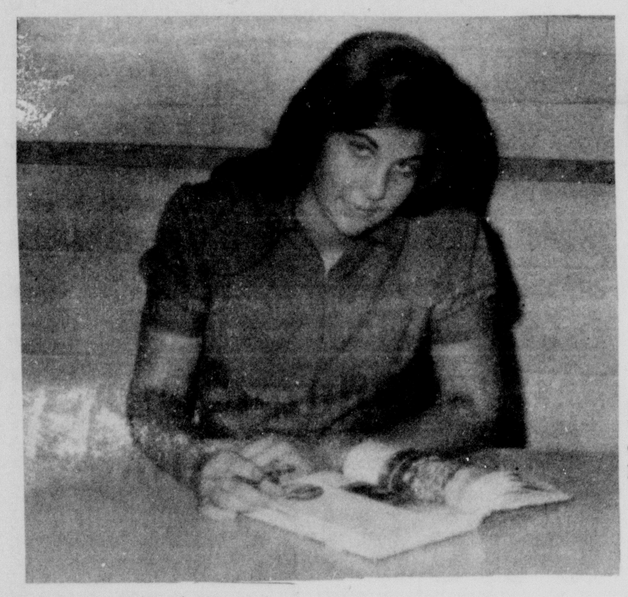

Can You Find?

In these remarks are hidden the names of 15 books of the Bible. It's a real lulu. Kept us looking so hard for facts, we missed the revelations. We were in a jam especially since the names were not capitalized. The truth will come to numbers of our readers. To others it will be a real job. For all, it will be a most fascinating search. Yes, there will be some easy to spot, others hard to judge. So we admit it usually results in loud lamentations when we can't find them. One lady says that she brews coffee while she puzzles over it. One book is underlined to help you start. Can you find the other 14?

Dupont Europe

JUNIOR ELISABETH DUPONT studies for her English III class.

Junior Elisabeth Dupont spent two months in Europe this summer. She visited France, West Germany, Belgium, Sweden, and Denmark, spending most of her time in Copenhagen.

When asked about Copenhagen, Elisabeth replied, "Copenhagen is a place where you will find all types of people. One thing that surprised me the most about the people was their dislike for the Americans and our policy.

"I was introduced to two Communists, of which Denmark has quite a few, and in talking to them I realized if they saw the United States they would change their thoughts about it."

Elisabeth also commented on the schools in Denmark. Summer vacation is only seven weeks long. The school day is from 8-2 o'clock, six days a week. College tuition is very small but the high taxes make up for this.

When asked what she thought of Europe as a whole, Elizabeth replied, "Europe has many places to see. Each part is different from the other just as each part of the United States is different.

"Some people make the mistake of comparing a European country to the United States. You cannot do this. A more correct comparison is that of America to Europe."

Minds of Music

The Barker staff would like to introduce a new column, "Minds of Music." This new column will feature various puzzles and quizzes in reference to music-- rock, blues, classical, and country.

This week's puzzle is a word search containing 45 "superstars of rock."

Week-end Hunting

---Happenings

SEVERAL 1971-1972 Growlers have not yet been sold and any student wishing to purchase one should contact Mrs. Tony Statler in A-1. The cost of the yearbook is $9.

SENIOR PHOTOS for the yearbook are due to the staff by Wednesday, November 22, and any underclassman who desires a studio picture for the Growler must have it submitted to the staff by November 1.

HARLEQUIN PLAYERS held their first meeting Tuesday afternoon when they made nominations for the club's officers. Students running for president are Wayne Noe and Stephen Skalsky, and vice - president nominees are Richard Dale, Bonnie Harris, Mike Marsh, and Libby Walker.

These students will be campaigning for the next two weeks and the elections will be held on October 10.

CADET SECOND Lieutenant Fran Early, Lieutenant Colonel Robert Mize, Captain Hugh Jones, and Cadet Lieutenant Jim Newberry spoke to seniors Wednesday about the many advantages of joining ROTC and planning a career in the U.S. Air Force.

The purpose of the ROTC program is to train officers while they are in school. Those officers that take an interest in their assignment and show dedication are placed on active duty.

Seniors were urged to look into the ROTC program as many benefits can be gained.

BULLDOGS will be playing on their own home field tonight as they challenge an old rival, the Charleston Blue Jays. This is an opportunity for all SHS students to show good sportsmanship and courtesy to the out-of-towners.

GOOD LUCK AND "Gung ho" Bulldogs!!!!!!

Barker staffers extend their sympathy to David and Mark Fausett upon the recent loss of their father.

If I held every truth in my hand, I would take good care not to open it for other men to see.

Jim Walls Is Guest Speaker For Seniors

Navy corpsman first class Jim Walls, elder brother of senior Tom Walls, entertained, among others, Walter Messmer's third- hour contemporary history class Monday morning.

Mr. Walls having returned from Vietnam a scant two weeks ago recalled some incidents from the Asian battlefield.

He also gave advice to the young men in the class who might have been planning to enter the armed service after high school and then entertained questions about life in Vietnam.

Jim is a navy corpsman first class, specializing in bacteriology, public health, and as a lab technician. He has spent 11 years in the navy and plans to continue it as a career.

Frosh Elects Representatives For Council

Freshmen voted by ballot in homeroom Tuesday morning for student council representatives.

Freshmen representatives for 1972-73 are Rosemary Barr, David Butler, Susan Dement, Deena Dollar, Karen Duncan, Stephen Dupont and Vickie Fugate.

More members are Christy McMikle, Melissa Nelson, Jo Ann Redd, Janet Sauls, Bonnie Schuchart and Teresa Self.

"The importance of student council representatives cannot be over emphasized. The newly elected council members will attend all of the meetings and will report the business discussed to their respective homerooms.

"In turn the representatives will bring to the council, student ideas and complaints," said vice- president Mark Shaw.

Guess Who

Mr. X and Mr. Y have been good friends for many years. During the summer months one can find them lazing around in the sun on Kentucky Lake.

Mr. X earns extra spending money by working at the Holiday Inn. He lives with his parents and a younger brother, a freshman, on Holly Hill Drive. Mr. X's schedule contains band, American history, physical education, concert choir VI, English III, chemistry, and speech.

Mr. Y resides at 109 Salcedo Road, and he is a junior. Mr. Y's daily routine includes band, American history, math III, English III, physical education, concert choir VI, and chemistry.

Do you recognize these two happy- go- lucky junior boys?

Shaw Is Leader Of Math Club

Senior Mark Shaw was elected president of the Sikeston high school math club at its organizational meeting last week.

Senior David Ziegenhorn was chosen vice- president, and junior Amy Buck was named to the secretary- treasurer position.

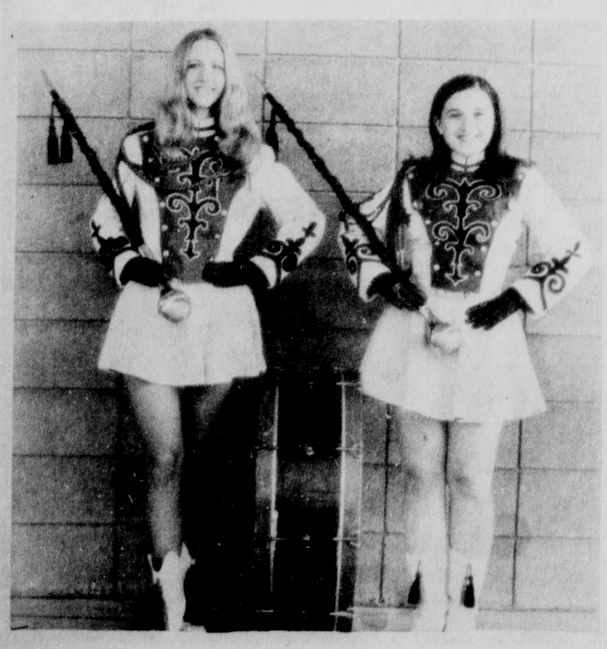

Plans for the organization this year include the sponsoring of the second annual chess tournament and having speakers from various fields of mathematics present programs to the club.

Some field trips are also on the agenda.

Any student wishing to join this club should see one of the sponsors, Asa Kinnaman, Terry Coleman, or Gary Williams as soon as possible.

Deadline for the payment f dues will be announced at a ater date.

Varsity, Freshman Bands To Make Debut Tonight

"Marching Bulldog Band," directed by Pat Curry, will open its season tonight during halftime of the football game when the Bulldogs clash with the Charleston Blue Jays in the football stadium.

Freshman band, directed by Edward Cowan, will present a pre- game show at 7 o'clock.

The 140- piece varsity band will begin the performance with "Emperata Fanfare," directed by senior drum majorette, Rita Matthews, and junior drum majorette, Melodie Powell. Following the fanfare, the band will march down the field and drill to the tune "Corcoran Cadets."

While in a large diamond formation, the "Overture from Tommy" will be played. New twirling line, headed by Judy Malone, will execute a dance-twirl routine to the popular arrangement of "Joy to the World."

Following a mosaic drill to "Washington and Lee," better known to the Sikeston fans as "For Every Sikeston Boy," the band will quickly change to a concert formation for senior twirler Marsha Dement's solo fire routine to the arrangement of "Fever."

Marsha's solo is the first of four solo performances by the senior twirlers.

As the band leaves the field in the traditional "Floating SHS," strains of "The Red and the Black" will fill the air.

After the freshmen march on to the field during the pre -game show at 7 o'clock, the band will play "I'd Like To Teach the World To Sing," to which twirlers will perform a routine.

Band members will move into concert formation for the playing of the national anthem and a concert number, "Amazing Grace."

Surprise greeting will be given to the audience and the marching freshmen Bulldogs will exit playing the school song, "The Red and the Black" in a floating "S" formation.

Picks Leaders

Marsh.

Sponsor, Mrs. Mildred Robinson, talked to the club about an experimental center in Sikeston to be used by Biology Club members for experiments and hobbies such as ornithology.

Defoliation Is Good Practice This Year

By THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

Indications are that chemical defoliation of cotton will be a profitable practice in many fields this season. Cotton is showing rank growth in many fields. This means that cotton will open more slowly, and boll rot is likely to be a problem.

A heavy infestation of bacterial blight is evident in most cotton fields. This disease affects cotton bolls as well as leaves; consequently, the boll rot problem can be expected to be aggravated by it. Boll rot is already being found quite commonly in cotton fields.

Defoliation will pay good dividends in helping you to harvest more cotton of higher quality in such fields.

Defoliation offers several important advantages. Cotton dries more quickly on leaf- free plants; therefore, picking can be started earlier in the morning and after rains. Mature bolls open and dry out earlier, allowing harvest to begin earlier in the season; consequently, harvest is completed earlier with less danger of late bolls being damaged by frost.

Much of the cotton is lodged this season, and such plants will usually straighten up after defoliation. Less trash is added during harvest. Leaf- free plants do not clog picker spindles or stain cotton lint.

For successful defoliation, defoliants must be properly applied, and proper timing is tremendously important. For overall defoliation, the youngest bolls that can be expected to open must be mature. Mature bolls are speckled and feel hard when pressed between the thumb and forefinger. When the boll is cut, even with a sharp knife, the fiber strings out rather than being easily sliced

The seed of mature bolls contain yellow kernels that fill the seed cavity. Defoliating too early can cost you money through reduced yields, low micronaire reading, and a lower grade.

For successful defoliation, the temperature must be above 60 F. The temperature factor often represents a problem in this area, as the temperature is often too low for successful overall defoliation when the cotton reaches maturity.

For cotton showing rank growth and a heavy bottom crop, bottom defoliation in which the bottom 15 to 24 inches of the plant is defoliated is perhaps the best solution. This method will allow you to defoliate before the temperature falls below 60 F.

Bottom defoliation allows you to harvest the high- quality bottom crop and leaves sufficient foliage in the top of the plant to feed the top bolls to maturity. More bottom defoliation could be practiced to a good advantage in this area.

When cotton is to be bottom defoliated, the same suggestions for determining when cotton is sufficiently mature for overall defoliation should be applied to the bottom portion of the plant to be defoliated.

Several good phosphate and chlorate defoliants are available under a variety of trade names. The phosphate defoliants are usually more effective in removing late season immature leaves. Application rates of one gallon of most chlorate defoliants or one to one and a half pints of phosphate materials with enough water to total 10 to 15 gallons of diluted spray per acre should be used.

Dessicants should be used only as a last resort to kill plants where second growth is a problem. At least 90 per cent of the bolls should be open before applications are made, and cotton should be harvested three to four days after treatment.

Additional information pertaining to cotton defoliation may be obtained from your county Univeristy of Missouri Extension Center.

Prepare Bins For Storage

THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

Corn harvest is just around the corner, and grain bins in which this crop is to be stored should be prepared. Certain practices used prior to and at harvest time will do much to help keep the grain clean and free of insect damage.

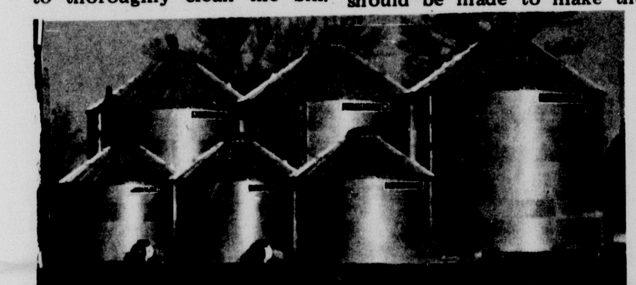

The first step, and a very important one, in the preparation of the grain bin is to thoroughly clean the bin. Old grain should be removed from the bin. If new gain is stored with old, the old grain will serve as a source of insect infestation for the new.

After old grain has been removed from the bin, all dirt and trash (including all grain in cracks and corners) should be cleaned out. All grain that might have sifted out around and under the bin should also be cleaned up. In addition to cleaning the bin, any repairs should be made to make the bin rat, mouse, and bird proof.

After the bin has been cleaned, all interior surfaces should be sprayed with either methoxychlor is recommended at the rate of three-fourths pint of 25 per cent emulsifiable concentrate per gallon of water, or premium grade malathion should be applied at the rate of one-third pint of 57 per cent emulsifieable concentrate per gallon of water. Apply this treatment two weeks before storing grain.

Corn should be stored on the farm only when the moisture content of the grain is 13 per cent or less unless drying facilities are to be used. Storing grain with higher moisture content will encourage insect troubles.

The use of malathion as a grain protectant offers one of the cheapest and most effective methods of insect control in stored grain available to date. Grain that is dry and free of insects at the time of storage can be protected for as long as one year by the proper use of malathion. For this treatment, mix one pint of 57 per cent premium grade malathion emulsifiable concentrate in from two to five gallons of water and treat 1,000 bushels of grain, but be certain that the dust is labelled specifically as a grain protectant. The protectant should be applied either to the grain stream as it comes out of the combine or to the grain as it is elevated into the bin.

*We specialize in storage, drying, aeration supplies, erection service.

*5 year ASC Loans at 5½%.

*There is often more net profit to the farmer in storing grain than in raising the crops.

Cotton Harvest Pace Speeds Up In SeMo

Cotton harvesting and ginning advanced at a fairly rapid rate in Southeast Missouri last week, according to Paul W. Karban, officer -in-charge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Hayti Classing Office.

Cotton in Dunklin and Pemiscot counties had opened quite well and the bulk of the crop classed was from these areas. Gins in the northern portion of the territory were just starting to operate. Later maturing crops have delayed picking.

Extensive defoliation was being practiced in many fields of rank cotton.

The majority of current ginnings were to be delivered to buyers to fulfill contracts drawn prior to the ginning season. There was too small a volume of uncommitted cotton available at this early date to determine current prices. Although gin yard prices for cottonseed have not been clearly established, it appeared they would be well below last year's levels.

A total of 14,500 samples had been classed for producers for the season through Sept. 22 by the Agricultural Marketing Service's Hayti Classing Office.

Quality statistics show that 53 per cent of the samples graded strict low middling, while 27 per cent graded strict low middling light spotted. Staple length was about equally divided between 1 1/16 and 1 3/22 inches. Ninety-eight per cent of the samples miked in the base range of 3.5 to 4.9. Breaking strength of the samples tested was good and averaged 89,000 pounds per square inch.

Mulch Cover To Prevent Erosion

Grade or cleared areas which may be subjected to erosion for six months or less, where seedings may not have a suitable growing season to produce an erosion retardent cover, but which can be stabilized temporarily with a mulch cover.

Site Preparation — Grade, as needed and feasible, to permit the use of conventional equipment for applying and anchoring mulch; install needed erosion control practices such as interceptor ditches, berms, terraces, and desilting basins; loosen the soil to a depth of two to three inches by disking or harrowing.

Mulch materials should be unweathered, unchopped small grain straw or stemmy grass hays. Spread at the rate of about two tons per acre.

Spread uniformly by hand or mechanically so that at least 75 per cent of the soil surface will be covered. For uniform distribution of hand spread mulch, divide area into approximately 1,000 square feet sections and three bales, approximately 100 pounds of mulch for distribution within each section.

Mulch anchoring should be accomplished immediately after placement to minimize loss by wind or water. This may be done by one of the following methods and should be done on the contour wherever feasible:

1. Peg and twine — drive 8 to 10 inch wooden pegs down to within two to three inches of the soil surface every four feet in all directions. Stakes may be driven before or after applying mulch. Secure mulch to soil surface by stretching twine between pegs in a criss-cross within a square pattern. Secure twine around each peg with two or more turns.

2. Mulch netting — Staple lightweight paper, jute, cotton or plastic nettings to the soil surface according to manufacturer's recommendations. Netting is usually available in rolls four feet wide and up to 300 feet long.

3. Asphalt — Applied as mulch material, as blown from the applicator or as a separate operation. This provides excellent mulch anchorage.

Emulsified asphalt — Apply uniformly .04 gallons per square yard of rapid curing (R.S-1 or R.S.-2), medium curing (M.S. -2), slow setting (S.S.-1) depending on desired curing time. See the manufacturer's specifications. Emulsified asphalt should not be used in freezing weather since it contains approximately 50% water.

Liquid asphalt — May be applied at any time of the year since it is thinned with a kerosene - like product. Uniformly apply 0.10 gallons per square yard of rapid curing (R.C.-1, R.C.-2 or R.C.-3) or medium curing (M.C.-2 or M.C.-3), depending on desired curing time. See the manufacturer's specifications.

Notched coulter — A special tool is available with notched dull coulters to cut in mulch to anchor it to the soil. A dull disc harrow set straight may also be used but it tends to shift and penetration is more difficult. These machines should be weighted for one to two-inch penetration and should be operated across the slope.

4-H Outing Planned On Lake Wapappello

4 —H Leaders Retreat Sept. 29 -30

NEW MADRID —New Madrid County 4 —H leaders are planning a special outing at 4 —H Camp on Lake Wapappello Sept. 29 -30.

This will be a time for relaxation, fellowship and exchange of ideas. Also included will be a history of the 4 —H camp by David Baker of Fredericktown, president of the camp board.

Among recreational activities will be swimming, boating and fishing.

Those attending will plan to arrive at the camp Friday afternoon, and are requested to bring a covered dish for supper. A registration fee of $2 will be to cover expenses of breakfast and lunch on Saturday.

The camp will be over shortly after the noon meal on Saturday. This is an opportunity for leaders to visit the 4—H camp and to inspect improvements that have been made this summer.

Persons who wish to attend may contact Mrs. Pansy Crosby or Alice Mason at the University of Missouri extension office in New Madrid, or telephone 748 -5531.

Father-Son Banquet Set

EAST PRAIRIE —The East Prairie FFA chapter will hold its annual Father -Son Banquet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Martin Cafeteria.

Invitations have been sent to parents of each member.

Appeal Due October 6

NEW MADRID — The last day for New Madrid County farmers to make a written appeal to the ASCS Committee to prove their farm wheat yield for the 1973 Wheat Program is Oct. 6.

Wheat yield production evidence for the base years of 1969, 1970 and 1971 must be submitted to the county ASCS office, along with the written appeal.

Proven production on all farms operated during the base years is required by the committee for those farmers wishing to prove wheat yields.

30-Day Farm Forecast

Farmers Can Expect Rain

By LEONARD F. HAND
Agricultural Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE — Both temperature averages and rainfall totals fall within the above normal category in the 30- day weather outlook for the period from mid-September to mid- October.

Cold air entering the nation is expected to be concentrated over the western states. Penetration of the mid and lower Mississippi Valley is apparently expected to be brief and infrequent. A southerly flow of warm and humid air from the Gulf is more likely to predominate.

Rainfall over Southeast Missouri will probably be associated with showers and thunderstorms that form along the boundary between these opposing flows. Development of disturbances in this boundary zone may account for more general, longer- duration wetting.

This combination has mixed implications for Bootheel agricutlure at this point in the season. Warmer temperature trends can be expected to extend the growing season to provide for maturing of later set cotton, and for a more full season for soybeans planted behind wheat. The potential for above normal rainfall may complicate the scheduling of harvest operations for both cotton and soybeans.

Temperatures more favorable than usual for defoliation are likely to extend nto the first half of October. Rains, and the high humidity that goes with a wet and warm fall, suggest that fields may be too wet for traffic at times, and that dews will be ample and regular through the cotton harvest. Attention will be given to cotton lint moisture to avoid piling up of wet cotton in gin yards.

Dews and fog and high humidity are all moisture sources that may delay the drying of soybeans in the field. Also, on a daily basis, long periods of nighttime moisture conditions will require more drying during the forenoon to prepare leathery pods for efficient combining.

Moisture will be welcome on land planted to wheat and seeded for pasture and Winter graze. Much of this land will need additional moisture to establish growth, particularly in areas where rains have not been generous in September.

Potential consumptive use of water by soybeans during the period from Sept. 20 through Oct. 17 ranges from 2.88 inches for full season beans to 3.69 inches for beans up and using water by mid-June and 5.02 inches for wheat beans emerging about July first. Chances are good that nature will supply those amounts with the pattern anticipated.

Weekly normals of temperature and rainfall for the Bootheel during this period are about:

Week ending Sept. 26, maximum, 82, minimum, 58, rainfall, .61 inches; Oct. 3, maximum, 78, minimu, 52, rainfall, .59 inches; Oct. 10, maximum, 76, minimum, 52, rainfall, .58 inches; Oct. 17, maximum, 76, minimum, 50, rainfall, .30 inches.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel, as a whole, for the period from Mid- September through Mid- October is 3.27 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Caruthersville, 3.08 inches; Dexter, 3.50 inches; Doniphan, 3.50 inches; Morehouse, 3.29 inches; New Madrid, 3.25 inches; Parma, 3.07 inches; Poplar Bluff, 3.36 inches; Sikeston, 3.40 inches.

Short period averages for other points:

Advance, 2.97 inches; Bloomfield, 3.49 inches; Clearwater Dam, 3.07 inches; Malden, 2.89 inches; Puxico, 3.03 inches; Wapapello Dam, 3.09 inches; Bernie, 3.10 inches; Charleston, 2.69 inches; Kennett, 2.75 inches; Portageville, 2.89 inches; Qulin, 3.07 inches.

These figures indicate that this period of the year normally accounts for some of the least monthly moisture figures for the Bootheel.

1. In Memoriam

In Memory of
DONALD R. HUSK
Sept. 18, 1969

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all

The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.

You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Missed by wife, Sue; and children Carrell, Vickie, Marla, Wendy

2. Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends for their kind expressions of sympathy extended to us at the death of our loved one. May God bless each of you for your thoughtfulness.

Largent Heads SeMo Pharmacists

Buddy Largent, an employee of Medical Arts Pharmacy in Sikeston, has been named president of the newly organized Southeast Missouri Pharmaceutical Association.

Officers for the Association were elected Aug. 31 at a meeting in Sikeston.

Other officers elected were Tom Burris of Bernie, vice president; Bud Sissim of Portageville, secretary; and Ron Register of Campbell, treasurer.

Largent said the association was formed to improve service to the public.

The next meeting will be held in Poplar Bluff on Oct. 30.

What's The Law

The Case Of The Strikeless Stroke

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As Mr. Meek was driving along at a timid speed, he was suddenly shocked worse than an ear of corn. Coming at him from the opposite direction in his lane of traffic was a sports car being jockeyed by Fearless Fred.

Fortunately, both drivers were able to slam on their brakes in time to avoid a collision. In fact, only one foot of air separated the two cars whey they finally came to a screeching halt. The narrow miss, however, took its toll. As shaking Mr. Meek stepped out of his car, he suffered a stroke and had to be rushed off to a hospital.

In due course, Mr. Meek filed a claim under an accident policy to collect for his impaired state of health.

"Sorry," he was told, "but, there was no accident. The two cars never made contact." "If there was no accident," responded Mr. Meek, "what am I doing in the hospital? Obviously, there was an accident. And even if the two cars didn't strike, it still caused my stroke."

Insisting that there had been an accident, Mr. Meek took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Meek to collect for his strikeless stroke?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that excitement, fright sudden physical exertion and other mental and emotional activity which have the effect of raising a person's blood pressure are recognized causes of a stroke. And, concluded the judge, Mr. Meek's experience in suddenly being confronted by Fred's rapidly approaching vehicle on the wrong side of the street was an accidental cause of his stroke.

(Based upon a 1941 Washington Supreme Court Decision)

New Madrid Educator

Outlines Vo-Tech Ideas

Mrs. T.: What is your philosophy of vocational-technical education?

Dr. R.: There is dignity in work. Every citizen should have the opportunity to be educated and trained to perform that type of work which will assure him gainful employment and job satisfaction consistent with his maximum potential and capabilities.

Mrs. T.: This would then give status to all work.

Dr. R.: Yes, every task, regardless how menial or complex it may be, ought to be performed skillfully and efficiently so that man can take pride in the work he is able to perform for his livelihood.

Mrs. T.: Know-how is then important.

Dr. R.: You are so right. Equipped with adequate knowledge and thoroughly practiced skills, the individual can more fully represent his dignity and worth to himself and to the community. Vocational- technical education is concerned that each citizen has an opportunity to discover his talents and to develop them to the degree of proficiency required by business and industry.

Mrs. T.: You then see a better world ahead as a goal.

Dr. R.: Yes, a better world in which to live, enhanced personal dignity, and true financial security can be achieved by every individual and the community, if business, industry and vocational- technical educational institutions continue to work together in the interest of the total development of our human resources -- our most important product and responsibility.

Mrs. T.: Where does career education fit into this picture?

Dr. R.: Career education is in the most fundamental sense a bridge -- a bridge between school years and work years, between educators and employers, between the life of a child and the later years of adulthood and a full life.

Mrs. T.: There is dissatisfaction with current education.

Dr. R.: That is right. Disaffection of the youth with education cannot be put down to juvenile caprice. When thousands find that they cannot get work, or not the kind they want for their permanent lot, this is adequate proof. For these thousands, education has failed to foster translation of academic learning into skills that can be proudly and successfully offered in a specialized, competitive labor market.

Average unemployment in this nation for those between the ages of 18 and 24 is nearly 25 per cent. In some inner city black ghettos or southwestern barrios, 50 per cent joblessness is about correct.

Mrs. T.: Then what is the thrust of career education?

Dr. R.: Career education would stress reality in the classroom, not smothering young people in the dubious tradition that for every child learning in and of itself is sufficient reward for the toilsome journey. Career education will enable us to turn our teaching energies to acquainting the young with the occupational facts of life in progressive, broadening, deepening stages and giving them an idea as to where they might fit into the modern employment scheme.

Mrs. T.: Is career education moving ahead in popularity?

Dr. R.: Yes, it is gaining a broad consensus as a concept in America. This is from the viewpoints of teachers, administrators, school board members, civic leaders, parents and, most importantly, of the students themselves.

Mrs. T.: How about federal money?

Dr. R.: Fifteen percent of the basic grants to the states, under the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968 may be spent for programs for the disadvantaged. In fiscal year 1971, $20 million was available for special vocational and technical programs to help persons with academic or socioeconomic handicaps succeed in regular vocational education programs.

Secondary vocational and technical education was provided for 957,000 disadvantaged students. More than half the students benefiting from 149 vocational school building and equipment projects supported by Office of Education were disadvantaged.

Mrs. T.: Will adult education be a part, too?

Dr. R.: Yes, we currently have a fine MDTA program in this area, but our new facilities will provide even more comprehensive ones. During the fiscal year 1971, the Office of Education expanded the adult education programs so that adults could complete secondary school and obtain job training to help them become more productive citizens. The basic education provided 600,000 undereducated adults by the Adult Education program resulted in grants to public and private agencies for comprehensive or coordinated approaches to the problems of adults who have not achieved a high school diploma.

Mrs. T.: Then, Southeast Missouri and the entire nation will be helped by the Vocational - Technical Skills Center that New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District will have ready in a year?

Dr. R.: This is easily answered because in 1971 two out of three young Americans left school or college without having learned a profession, a trade, or even a job skill that would enable them to compete effectively in the labor market.

Mrs. T.: What kind of number and expenditure are you referring to?

Dr. R.: There are 2.5 million of these young people who are in these categories. Their years of schooling represented an expenditure to the nation of $28 million.

Mrs. T.: Could it become more acute?

Dr. R.: Yes, by 1975, it is estimated that there will be only about 4.5 million unskilled jobs in the American economy. Also, 3.5 million unskilled young people will be entering this overcrowded field.

Mrs. T.: What about career education for the handicapped?

Dr. R.: Recently, two federal bureaus sent teams to visit exemplary projects of career education for the handicapped. One of the more striking projects visited was in Montana. The Missoula Training Center decided to use its 10 per cent set- aside funds to integrate hard- core handicapped persons into the various training programs it runs for non= handicapped and handicapped alike. A special education teacher and several counselors were hired to work with the center staff and the handicapped students to integrate them.

Mrs. T.: You are then saying that the term "integrate" has a positive meaning to us when you talk of some of the educational blends that include, for example, bringing together diverse groups as handicapped and non- handicapped.

Dr. R.: Yes, this is a fine example of the use of the word "integrate" that has no relation to race. There are many fine examples -- two in particular.

Mrs. T. Tell me about one of these.

Dr. R.: There is a Manpower Development Training Project in Baltimore that was designed to help small contractors. Many such contractors, because of poor training in making cost estimates, found themselves in a cycle that ultimately put them out of business. They under- estimated cost factors and were forced to use secondary materials and cut labor far below standards. Both handicapped and non-handicapped students are being trained for these needs.

Mrs. T.: How about the other case?

Dr. R.: In another effort aimed at enabling adults to improve their career outlook, a grant was awarded to the Texas State Education Agency to develop performance- level literacy criteria to replace the long commonly used years- of-schooling yardstick, which many authorities feel is no longer realistic. Again, the status of being handicapped is not important here.

Mrs. T.: Can environmental education have a place in the new local program?

Dr. R.: Yes, innovative approaches to the development of environmental awareness has a definite place in some of the curricula to be offered.

Mrs. T.: And the gifted and talented?

Dr. R.: There are 1.5 to 2.5 million youngsters of elementary and secondary school age who are classified as "gifted or talented" out of a total of 52 million. Intellectual and creative talent cannot survive educational neglect or apathy. The gifted and talented need guidance and encouragement, and the outcome will show that a significant number of these will be happy in trained trade billets.

Mrs. T.: That reminds me of the "Washington Newsletter" (Vol. IV, No. 2) of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton entitled "Reading -- A Fundamental Right." Might not the Eagleton Bill be utilized by the Vocational-Technical Skills Center?

Dr. R.: Yes, the Memphis Area Vocational- Technical School has an effective Learning Improvement Center that includes special training in reading. Sen. Eagleton's bill, the National Reading Improvement Act of 1972, could help us, if passed, by authorizing funds for the acquisition of teaching materials.

Mrs. T.: You are thus talking about students who range from the gifted to the average, and in some cases below average, as potential students.

DR. R.: Yes, it is quality public education with a mission for those with the proper aptitudes, regardless of I.Q. It is democratic education at the best.

Mrs. T.: I thought this was only liberal education that had these ingredients.

Dr. R.: No, liberal education has been a cornerstone of democratic institutions in this nation from its inception. While it had its European origins in Renaissance education for the elite and in medieval clerical education, it has never in this nation properly been a finishing school for the few. Now, we can say career education has just as much justification for providing the same democratic setting. The genius and strength of American education lies in its diversity, in the great number and many types of programs.

Mrs. T.: I believe I have explored the philosophy you conceive for the new vocational- techincal program that will soon be completed, but would you repeat some of the statistics about the two pods being built to achieve these purposes?

Dr. R.: Yes, at the present time, the Vocational- Technical Skills Center is being constructed by the Brown Construction Company, and the architects are Donnellan and Porterfield. It is composed of two pods on an 80- acre tract just off the New Madrid-Howardville Interchange of Interstate 55. The quiet pod is the one to the east and is the nearest completed, and is composed of 46,200 square feet and the following trades: food lab, clothing lab, nursing lab, drafting, electronics, typing, business machines, and data processing. Also included in this pod are administrative offices and instructional media. The other pod will cover the noisy skills and will include building trades, sheet metal shop, machine shop, agricultural mechanics, auto body shop, appliance repair, welding, air conditioning and refrigeration, mechanical repair and graphic arts. This pod will consist of 55,284 square feet. The skill center has been approved by the state of Missouri as an area vocational school.

Mrs. T.: Has a director been appointed?

Dr.R.: Yes, Sam J. Bodine, veteran New Madrid County educator, has been appointed, and he began July 1, 1972.

Mrs. T.: Finally, when will the two pods be completed, and when will the center open?

Dr. R.: We expect the two pods to be completed by March of 1973 and the center to open the Fall of 1973.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Always give thanks for everything to God the Father, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9 Ephesians 5:20, TEV) PRAYER: Father, may we have such firm confidence in Thee that we may give thanks in everything, remembering Thy dear Son, who, on the very night of His bitter betrayal, gave thanks. By His grace, keep us faithful--and thankful. Amen.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Sept. 23, the 267th day of 1972. There are 99 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 63 B.C., the first Roman emperor, Augustus Caesar, was born.

On this date:

In 1780, British Maj. John Andre was captured by American colonials at Tarrytown, N.Y. He carried papers relating to Benedict Arnold's plan to surrender West Point. Andre was later hanged as a spy.

In 1806, the Lewis and Clark Expedition to explore west of the Mississippi River was completed.

Many Veterans Getting New Knee Joints

KANSAS CITY — At many Veterans Administration hospitals, veterans are getting new hip and knee joints with the new "wonder cement" methylmethacrylate, which bonds to bone with tremendous strength.

At the Livermore, Calif., VA hospital, for example, three of the operations have been done, all with promising results.

The artificial knee joint being used permits the full movement of a natural knee, in contrast to older methods which allowed only frontward and backward movement.

Dr. Lillian Rachlin, chief of surgical service at the Livermore hospital, said the operation is being used for patients with disabling arthritis of the knee joint.

She said these patients are walking on their own or with the aid of a cane in about two weeks after the surgery.

Bootheel Sheltered Workshop Planned

KENNETT —Plans were formed Wednesday to establish a sheltered workshop in the Bootheel by officials of the Missouri Division of Mental Health and residents from Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid Counties.

Dr. Joe Zimmerman of Kennett was chosen chairman of a steering committee which will begin preliminary steps necessary to organize a sheltered workshop program.

Charles Royal of Malden was named vice chairman and Mrs. Betty Hayden of Caruthersville, president of Southeast Missouri Mental Health Association, was named secretary.

Kenneth L. Dowden, acting director of developmental disabilities section of the Division of Mental Health in Jefferson City explained the process of obtaining federal and state assistance in a workshop program.

Dr. Duane Hensley, director of the mental retardation section in the state division, said figures compiled by his office indicate Southeast Misssuri has approximately 3,000 trainable and educable mental retardates between the ages of one and 21 years.

There are no workshops in the lower Bootheel area but programs have been established in Poplar Bluff, Sikeston and Cape Girardeau.

Another planning meeting was set for Oct. 5 to be held at the State Training School north of Kennett.

Other officials attending were Moody Briles, administrator of the Division of Mental Health's Diagnostic Clinic at Poplar Bluff; David Ragan, administrator of Sikeston Regional Disgnostic Clinic for mental Retardation; Moody Summitt of Malden, regional health planner for Bootheel Planning Commission and Economic Development, and Jack Pierce of Gideon, an official in the Missouri Department of Community Affairs.

Post Office Has Complaints

Complaints have been received at the Sikeston Post Office from subscribers of The Wall Street Journal. According to Assistant Postmaster Ewart Taylor, the post office checked with the publisher in Chicago, who said the building had been struck by lightning, putting the printing machinery out of commission.

A few papers were received Friday and postal officials say all of the papers will be delivered as soon as they arrive.

Four Cases Heard In Circuit Court

BENTON — Three divorces and one renewal of a criminal case were brought before Judge Marshall Craig in Circuit Court Monday.

The case of Edward Sloan of Morehouse, charged with the July 14 felonious assault on Larry Allman, was renewed from the trial docket and passed till further order by agreement.

Louise Williams Walker of Benton was granted a divorce from Aron Walker of Sikeston. She was awarded care and custody of a minor child. Walker was ordered to pay $15 per week for the support and maintenance of the minor child and is to have reasonable rights of visitation.

A hearing was set for Dec. 21 in a motion to modify decree of divorce with R. W. Ressel of Kelso and Carmen T. Ressel of Kelso. Mrs. Ressel has requested that she have temporary custody of the minor children from the date school dismisses until the date it resumes.

Mary Frances Burnett was awarded a divorce from Jack T. Burnett of Chaffee.

American labor won its first closed shop in 1794. It was won in Philadelphia by the shoemakers.

Dirty Films Motions Overruled

KENNETT -- In Circuit Court Thursday Judge William H. Billings entered an order in the prosecuting attorney's civil case against showing of obscene films by Holcomb All-Star Drive- In, overruling two motions made on behalf on the theater's owners, Southland Threaters, Inc.

The defendant's motion to dissolve the temporary injunction and the motion to modify the temporary injunction were overruled by Judge Billings.

The theater, had asked the court to dissolve the injunction and/or modify the injunction so as not to leave it up to the theater to determine what is or isn't obscene.

The theater, as it stands, now will remain under the injunction not to show "obscene" films.

Hockaday Urges Care On Roads

JEFFERSON CITY — Colonel E. I. Hockaday, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, has stated that more hours of darkness and sudden adverse weather conditions are two differences that drivers must adjust to this fall.

"Periods of quick- falling temperatures resulting in frost or ice spotss on the roads is another condition drivers should expect during this time of year," he said.

Colonel Hockaday urges all motorists to adjust their driving habits to the driving situations associated with the autumn season.

Farm Tractor Stolen Near Campbell

CAMPBELL -- A tractor was stolen some time late Wednesday or early Thursday from a farm six miles southwest of Campbell.

Owner of the tractor was Earl Wright of Campbell Route two.

INTELLECT INSIGHT

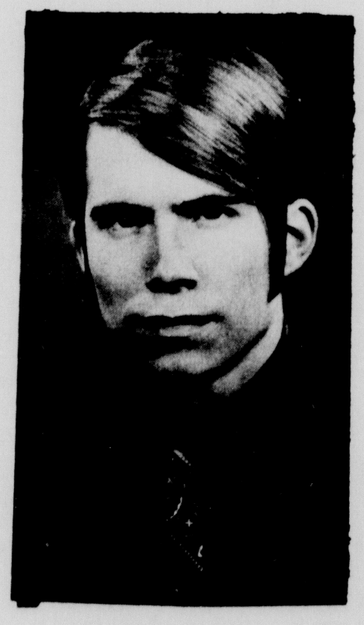

LONDON (AP) — Short-sighted children are often brighter than those with normal vision. Dr. Charles Brown, an eye specialist who conducted a survey for the medical publication "Practitioner," discovered that most children who excelled in intelligence tests were bespectacled. "Persons who wear glasses often have larger eyes, indicating larger brains," Dr Brown concluded.

What You Want To Know

Q. Is it true that there is going to be a TV series in which two actors will play Laurel and Hardy; I am a Laurel and Hardy fan and I will be insulted if they go ahead with a series in which other people play the great Laurel and Hardy. Why not just run some of their films? —R.M., Sacramento, Calif.

A. Simmer down, there is no such series planned. You are right, though? it would be insulting to the memory of the two great film clowns to have their routines interpreted by actors on a weekly show. However, I doubt that the networks will rerun their films in a regular series.

Q. Is Barbra Streisand making a movie for TV with Ryan O'Neal? I think they are a groovy couple and I would like to see them work together in a movie. Will it be a "love story" like the marvelous film that made a star out of Ryan O'Neal; —Mrs. G.M., Charleston. W.Va.

A. Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal are currently winding up filming on a comedy titled "What's Up, Doc?" but it is intended for theatrical release, not TV. Incidentally, the director of the film is Peter Bogdanovich, who scored with "The Last Picture Show."

Buddy Ebsen, Keir Dullea and Lois Nettleton Star In Western Comedy

"Mail Order Bride"

Monday, September 25

Buddy Ebsen, Keir Dullea and Lois Nettleton star in "Mail Order Bride," Western comedy about the attempts to harness the unbridled spirits of a handsome young man by getting him married, on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday Sept. 25 (Starting at 10:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Warren Oates, Barbara Luna, Paul Fix and Marie Windsor play featured roles in this color film, which was orginally broadcast on this series on May 4 1972.

In the story, ex -lawman Will Lane (Ebsen) comes to the town of Congress in 1890 to tame Lee Carey (Dullea), the wild son of his dead friend. They clash, but Lane has the deed to the half -built Carey ranch, which is not to be surrendered until Lee shows signs of maturity.

As the first step, Lee unwillingly married Annie Boley (Miss Nettleton), who agrees to let it be a union in name only. But Lane sees through the deception and sets off a succession of events that brings unexpected results.

Richard E. Lyons produced, and Burt Kennedy directed and wrote the screenplay for the 1964 MGM release.

"Heat Of Anger"

Thursday, September 28

Oscar -winner Susan Hayward and James Stacy star as a highpowered lady attorney, Jessie Fitzgerald, and a self -assured young lawyer, Gus Pride, who team up to defend a wealthy contractor accused of murder, in "Heat of Anger," color film on "The CBS Late Movie" Thursday, Sept. 28 (starting at 10:50 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Contractor Frank Galvin (Lee J. Cobb) is accused by the prosecuting attorney (Fritz Weaver) of killing one of his hard -hats, an ironworker who has been having an affair with Galvin's 18 -year -old daughter Chris (Jennifer Penny), in a fit of anger. Jessie and Gus hope to prove, however, that the death was an accident provoked by the ironworker himself in a compulsive flirtation with danger.

"Heat of Anger," produced by Stonehenge Productions in association with Metromedia Producers Corp., was written by Fay Kanin and directed by Don Taylor. Dick Berg was the executive producer and Ron Roth the producer. Robert Kirsch was executive story consultant.

Chad Everett and Bobby Sherman Enliven an Opera Spoof of Lady Godiva on "The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour"

September 29, Friday

Chad Everett, star of "Medical Center" on the Network, and popular recording artist Bobby Sherman lend their talents to "The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour" Friday, Sept. 29 (7:00 -8:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

In an opera spoof centered around that famed equestrienne, Lady Godiva, played by Cher, Sherman leads the worthy burghers of Coventry in a plea to the lady for her aid in stopping her husband, the evil Earl of Wessex (Everett), from continually raising their taxes. A rather unusual slow ride on horseback through the village's streets is part of Godiva's plan to help the people.

Another episode in the continuing story of the strange happenings in the dark, dank, dreary corridors of Cliff House finds Sonny, the master, trying to lure the unsuspecting new governess (Cher) into his private quarters. In the sketch, Everett plays the master's weird servant, and Sherman his equally strange son.

In the "vamp" portion of the program, Cher is Elizabeth Regina, Brenda Starr and Tarzan's Jane.

Musical Highlights

"Marchin' to the Music" ..... Sherman
"Happy Together," "Simple Song of Freedom," .....
"Look What They've Done to My Song" .....Sonny and Cher
"When the Sun Comes Out" ..... Cher

What You Want To Know

Q. I heard that the "Mod Squad" was doing so poorly in the ratings that it will probably be taken off the air come January. Is this true? —T. M., West Warwick, R.I.

A. You have been misinformed. "The Mod Squad" registered in the top 20 in a recent ratings report, which places it in the hit category. Chances are it will be around for some time to come.

Q. What happened to Rick Jason of the old "Combat" TV series? I see Vic Morrow from "Combat" on many TV series as a guest, but I never see Rick Jason. Is he still acting? —Mrs. F.S., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Rick Jason doesn't work on TV as much as he used to but he is still acting. He appears from time to time as a guest star in a TV series or in a made -for -TV film.

Q. I would like to know if Peter Fonda is going to join his Dad, Henry Fonda, on his TV show, "The Smith Family." I think Peter is great looking and I would like to see him with his dad. —T.U., Woodbridge, N.J.

A. The Fondas — Henry, Peter and Jane —have no plans to work together in any TV, film, nor stage production. Perhaps they will get together on a project in the future.

Q. I have a bet with a friend that all three supporting male regulars of the old "Perry Mason Show," namely William Talman, William Hopper, and Ray Collins, have passed away. Am I right? —S.O., Tampa Fla.

A. You are correct. All three character actors are dead.

Q. I am confused about something that I wish you would clear up for me. Is the actor called Peter Mark Richman, who is in "Longstreet," the same actor who was once known merely as Mark Richman? —Mrs. A.V., Albany N.Y.

A. For reasons best known by the actor, Mark Richman decided to become Peter Mark Richman a little over a year ago.

Old Fashioned Molasses Cookies

GIANT GINGER COOKIES THEY'RE FLAVORED WITH OLD-FASHIONED MOLASSES AND GROUND GINGER.

4½ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground ginger
3/4 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 cup old -fashioned molasses
1 cup buttermilk

Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and ginger.

In a large mixing bowl cream shortening and sugar; beat in molasses. Stir in the sifted dry ingredients alternately with the buttermilk, blending well. Dough will be very soft.

Chill dough until it becomes firmer -about 1 hour in the freezer.

Work with one -half the dough at a time, keeping the remainder in the refrigerator. Use a well -floured pastry cloth and well -floured stockinet - covered rolling pin.

Dough will still be very soft when you remove it from the freezer. Toss the half you are working with into extra flour on the pastry cloth, then roll out 1/4 -inch thick. Cut with 3 1/2 or 4 inch round floured cookie cutter.

Place cookies 3 inches apart on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 350 -degree oven until lightly browned -15 minutes. With a wide metal spatula remove to wire racks to cool. Store in a tightly covered tin box.

Makes about 2 dozen very large cookies.

Note: For slightly smaller cookies use a 3 -inch round floured cutter and bake, 3 inches apart on greased cookie sheets, at the same temperature and for the same time. The yield will be about 3 dozen cookies.

In The Philippines

Martial Law Declared

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philippines government proclaimed martial law, closed major newspapers, took control of radio stations and cut communications with the outside world today for the first time since the islands gained independence from U. S. rule 26 years ago.

The drastic measures came amid unrest caused by the country's worst floods in history and a growing wave of bombings and terrorism culminating in an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the defense secretary Friday.

An expected broadcast today by President Ferdinand E. Marcos was not heard by evening. Philippine radio stations still on the air played uninterrupted music.

Sketchy reports filtering out of the troubled nation indicated the military appeared to be playing a subdued role and martial law was not being enforced in Cebu and Mindanao.

Government sources said Marcos signed the martial law decree transferring power to local military commanders late Friday.

But other reports said the proclamation was dated Thursday, and has been preprared before Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and his aides escaped unscathed from shots fired into Enrile's car by unidentified gunmen who fled.

A Manila police spokesman said three senators of Marco's opposition, the Liberal Party, and a newspaper columnist were arrested, but gave no reason.

Gunshots were reported on the campus of the state university, where classes were ordered suspended. The university has been a center of leftist activity.

Marcos, whose second term as president ends next year, has warned recently of increasing Communist terrorism. He said in a speech last week martial law might be needed to combat it.

Police without warning shut down all of Manila's newspapers and all major radio and television stations before there was any announcement of martial law. Employes of The Associated Press, whose Manila office is in the Manila Times Building, were ordered home without explanation.

With access blocked to normal circuits, AP newsmen used commercial cable and telephone to report developments until the government cut those channels.

Shortly before the cutoff, AP Correspondent Lynn C. Newland cabled New York that there would be no communications for 24 hours.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said the Philippine government had ordered that calls to Manilla be refused.

A report reaching Singapore before the cutoff said that Marcos used a special police force called Metrocom to close newspapers and radio stations and that the martial law proclamation covered 12 principal regions, including greater Manila.

Bombings and other etrrorist activity in the Manila area have killed one person and wounded at least 20 others in the past two months.

Gunfighting and other violence, crime, political turmoil and corruption have long been commonplace in the Philippines, a 7,000-island archipelago crowded with 35 million persons.

Banta Elected State Education Board President

JEFFERSON CITY — W. C. Banta of Charleston was elected president of the Missouri State Board of Education Friday at the board's Setember meeting in Jefferson City.

Banta, who was serving as vice- president of the board, was elected unanimously. He succeeds Sidney R. Redmond of St. Louis, who has served as president for the past year.

Banta, who is a graduate of the School of Law, University of Missouri, has been a practicing attorney in Charleston since 1934. He presently is also serving as city attorney for Charleston. A native Missourian, he was appointed to an eight- year term on the State Board of Education in October of 1969.

The board approved the proposed program budget request by the State Department of Education for fiscal 1973-74.

This proposed budget calls for expenditures of about $506 million, of which more than $107 million would be in federal funds.

Of the $506 million requested, 98 per cent would go for the support of public and state schools.

The 1973-74 budget, as proposed, would be an increase of about $46 million over the 1972-73 budget. Major items included in the $46 million increase are:

Additional federal funds, $17,800,000; public school foundation program, $18 million; junior colleges, $3.5 million; vocational education, $3 million; school for the blind, school for the deaf and administration, $1.5 million; school food service programs, $1,200,000; state schools for retarded children, $427,000; and vocational rehabilitation programs, $425,000.

While considering these requests, the board of education reaffirmed its concern and support of the development of vocational and career and adult programs in Missouri. For example, the request would provide for the building of three more area vocational schools and the expansion of programs in two existing schools.

The board approved a single salary schedule, beginning with the 1973-74 school year, for teachers at the school for the blind in St. Louis; the school for the deaf in Fulton; and for the 58 schools for retarded children.

Purpose of the schedule is to bring the salaries for teachers in these schools up to a level commensurate with that paid public school teachers. Presently, salaries paid the special education teachers in these schools is considerably below that paid public school teachers.

With approval of this schedule, the board emphasized that flexibility should be provided in the schedule in order that exceptional and outstanding teachers may be rewarded.

The board also approved the concept of an annexation agreement between the Pleasant Valley School District and the Kansas City School District. Residents of Pleasant Valley will vote October 6 on a proposal to annex to the Kansas City District.

Following the morning business meeting, the Board met the presidents of the state's junior colleges.

Two Injured In One-Car Accidents

Two one- car accidents on area roads resulted in injuries to two men in the 24- hour period ending this morning, according to the highway patrol.

Donald Lee Meinz, 19, of Cape Girardeau received fractured ribs and possible internal injuries when he lost control of his car on a curve, left the road and struck a tree. The accident occurred at 11 p.m. Friday on Route Z in Cape Girardeau County. Meinz was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Denver Jackson, 28, of Gideon received face cuts at 1:45 today when his pickup struck a bridge railing on Highway 25 one- half mile east of Holcomb. He was treated and released from Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Police Trainees In Fifth Phase

The fifth phase of the basic police training class began this week in Sikeston Trade School classrooms.

According to R. C. Henzi, director of the Bootheel Law Enforcement Assistance Council, 29 police officers attended the first meeting.

This phase of the class deals with narcotics, self-defense, and correctional institutions. They are sponsored by the Bootheel Law Enforcement Assistance Council in cooperation with the University of Missouri Extension Law Division.

Attending were Richard Couch, Brad Wilson, C. W. Jones, Bill Smith, Joe Sebourn, Ron Lanford, Bob Davis, Marshall Moore, James O. Hahs, Leslie K. Dubose, Dan W. Hinton, Jessie Redd, Otis Applewhite, Willie Harrington, John Blankenbeker, all of Sikeston.

Ralph Hayes of Scott City, Leonard Oversby of Scott County Sheriff's office, Barney Henderson and Bill Van Troba of Illmo, James Cullen and Jimmy Bates of Vanduser, John Pearson and Charlie Carthell of Wyatt.

Raymond Charles Brown and James Lee McAfee of East Prairie, Wayne H. Lovette and Leonard M. Rodgers of Morehouse, Earl Bowen of Dudley and Raymond C. Tyler of Morley.

A LAMPSHADE, MELTED by the intense heat of the fire which heavily damaged Bootheel Lounge on North Main Street early this morning, dripped down to the top of the pool table. The bar area of the tavern was gutted by the fire. Two other buildings received smoke damage.

Burglary-Arson Suspected

Bootheel Lounge Burns

Police began sifting through the wreckage of Bootheel Lounge on North Main street today, searching for clues to determine the cause of the fire which heavily damaged the tavern early this morning.

A burglary - arson attempt is suspected, police say.

Police said the back door of the tavern was open when firemen arrived, and a hole had been cut in the roof.

Coin boxes on vending and game machines in the tavern were broken open.

However, $219 hidden by an employ in a wastebasket was not found by the burglar. The money was recovered waterlogged but otherwise undamaged.

The fire was discovered about 3:45 a.m. by off-duty policeman Joe Sebourn, who lives near the tavern. Sebourn said he was preparing to leave for work when he heard two loud noises that sounded like gunshots.

Sebourn said he stepped outside his house and saw flames coming from the back door of the building.

Acting Fire Chief Jim Terrell said the noises were probably bottles exploding in the heat. They continued exploding while firemen fought the flames.

Firemen were able to contain the flames to the bar area of the tavern. However, smoke, water and heat damage was extensive in the remaining portion of the building.

Two adjacent stores, Fred's Package Liquor and Ethridge Tire Company, received smoke damage.

Thieves Take Money, Keys

Thieves netted $22 and four key rings in two separate burglaries late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, police said today.

Jimmerson Service Station on West Malone was robbed of $22. Entrance was gained through a window on the building's west side, police said.

Four key rings were taken from Coca- Cola truck while it was parked in the company parking lot at 202 West Front. The truck was not locked.

Company officials say the keys fit their vending machines throughout the Bootheel.

Easter Posts $1,500 Bond

CHARLESTON -- Jack Easter of East Prairie was arrested Friday afternoon by Mississippi County Sheriff W. J. Pedro Simmons on a felony charge of exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon.

He is accused of displaying a double barrel shotgun in the presence of Billy Ray Nolen of East Prairie on Sept. 20. The incident reportedly took place on a dirt road south of East Prairie. Easter was released on $1,500 bond and will appear before magistrate T. J. Brown, Jr. Thursday.

Arrest 2 On Drug Charges

CLARKTON — Two Ripley county men were arrested Friday on charges of possession of marijuana. Richard Stanton Brumitt Jr., 18, and Richard Allen Dietz, both of Doniphan, were arrested with 21.9 grams of marijuana in their possession.

Ripley County Sheriff Lewis Dawes got a lead and contacted Dunklin county deputy Sheriff Bob MacDonald, informing him that the pair were possibly carrying the drug.

Arresting officers were MacDonald, J. T. Terry, Clarkton night marshal, and highway patrolman Gene Duckworth of Malden. Brumitt and Dietz have been released until Monday when possible charges will be filed.

Dexter United Way Sets $11,765 Goal

DEXTER — The United Way fund drive in Dexter is scheduled to begin within the next few weeks, according to members of the board of directors. Various agencies benefit from the drive, and this year's goal has been set at $11,765.

For several years the campaign was called the "United Fund" drive.

Letters will be mailed Sept. 25 for the advance gifts drive of the campaign, headed by Joe Palazzolo and Brad Dehn.

The business district solicitation is scheduled to begin Oct. 10, and the house- to- house canvass will begin Oct. 24.

AS SUMMER ENDS

Yesterday was one of those days you wish you could put in a huge jar and vacuum seal for opening on some sloshy, cold, windy day in winter. The air over Sikeston was crisp, with just the right hint of oncoming autumn. It brought people out in the open, and somehow pushed the "happy button" of our psyches.

Cruising through the city, you had the feeling of busy people going about their work with a sense of enjoyment and fulfillment. When you talked to someone, he was usually smiling.

If anyone doesn't believe that a beauitful day produces beautiful people, he was locked up inside yesterday. Outdoors the world was sparkling with joy of life.

THE NEED FOR DEFENSE

A nation's military establishment is not a luxury but a necessity. No nation with peaceful intentions requires or can justify a defense establishment which is larger than that which is necessary to meet the needs of her own security. But the adequacy or inadequacy of a nation's defenses is determined not by considerations of domestic priorities, but by the power relationships within which that nation must operate. And we must keep in mind that in the real world, no country can conduct an effective foreign policy without a military capability which is appropriate to its responsibilities.

In our case, our responsibilities since World War II have necessarily been international in scope as they have concerned themselves primarily with the need to contain the aggressive outward thrust of the Communist powers. These are responsibilities which we did not seek, but which we cannot escape as the only free world power capable of facing up to the Russian challenge.

Since the end of World War II, the unquestioned military might of the United States has been the foundation of the free world's security and independence. As a result of the Soviet Union's extraordinary expansion of every sector of its strategic and conventional arms, the military balance is now rapidly turning against the United States; and unless decisive steps are taken to reverse these trends, our security and that of the free world will be gravely threatened.

The recent interim agreement placing limitations on certain types of strategic offensive weapons will slow the rate at which the Soviet Union has been overtaking us in nuclear capabilities. This agreement will not however, eliminate the prospect that the Russians will in time achieve a decisive strategic superiority over us unless we launch immediately a vigorous program of weapons research, development and procurement within the limits permitted us by the SALT accord. To do less is to place the stability of the world and our own ultimate freedom at unnecessary risk. — Sen. James L. Buckley (C.-R-N.Y.)

HEAD TAX
UPROAR

If we are reading the signs right among people who use the airlines, opposition is increasing against the new airport "head taxes" being levied by various cities on airline passengers.

Such a tax is being discussed in Kansas City, in view of the high cost of air terminal security measures being demanded by the federal government.

Most cities collect $1 a head for departing passengers, and this revenue is to be used only for airport maintenance.

But Philadelphia levies a $2 tax on each departing and arriving passenger, and makes no bones about putting most of the revenue into its general fund.

A court hearing started this week on the legality of the Philadelphia tax.

Opponents of such taxes have dug up an 1867 Supreme Court decision, Crandall vs. Nevada, that seems applicable.

At issue in that case was a Nevada statute that levied "a tax of $1 upon every person leaving the state by any railroad, stagecoach, or other vehicle employed in the business of transporting passengers for hire,"

The court ruled that if a state can tax a man a dollar for such a purpose, "it can tax him one thousand dollars. If one state can do this, so can every state." And that this would impose a burden on all travelers wherever they might be bound.

More recently, however, the Court's stand has been modified. As long as such levies are "uniform and fair and practical" and if the revenue is used to maintain a public facility -- it's all right.

But the softening of the judicial attitude hasn't softened the public attitude against head taxes -- or just taxes.

If we were young enough to join the protesting group, and if we should have joined them, we wouldn't have demanded a guaranteed income of $6,500 a year. With inflation such as it is, and the shortage of ambition which appears to be a part of our great country, we would have demanded a minimum of $10,000. If our give- away Congressmen want to do something really big, why not make our annual income $15,000? We would be glad then to quit trying to earn our income and let Uncle Santa Claus do it for us. You say the country couldn't afford anything like that? It seemingly can afford to go many billions of dollars more into debt each year by spending more than it takes in.

THE FLAVOR'S GONE

Between now and November, thousands of pollsters will sound us out on who will get our vote and why. It will all be very scientific, but tasteless. The reason is that the famous popcorn poll which began its 20- year career of accurately calling presidential elections in that infamous year of 1948 has been killed by inflation. Officials of the Blevins Popcorn Co. say it costs too much to tally the political tastes of popcorn buyers at the nation's movie houses.

If we were a candidate, we'd be tempted to subsidize the popcorn poll. It had hot-buttered accuracy and salty simplicity. After all, a man may hedge his political preference to an an opinion taker, but would a Nixon man want to be seen eating McGovern popcorn or vice versa?

BUTTERING UP
LABOR ...

The Administration's quest for labor support is mowing down one Republican tradition after another. It is also getting increasingly expensive for the taxpayer.

The latest casualty in G.O.P. dogma is the notion that the Davis- Bacon Act requiring payment of union wage scales on governmental construction represents an inflationary surrender to the building trades. President Nixon was himself a total subscriber to this view early last year when he suspended the law as a means of checking the runaway wage- price spiral then prevailing in construction. The law remained in suspense for a month until the President set up pay stabilization machinery for the industry.

But now that the hardhats are pivotal to Mr. Nixon's hope for a big union vote, the Administration has thrown its unreserved support behind a labor- sponsored extension of the Davis- Bacon prevailing wage guarantee to construction financed by state and local governments with Federal revenue- sharing funds.

Thanks to a coalition of labor's old Democratic allies from the industrial states and Republicans following the new White House line, the Senate voted this week to write into the new revenue- sharing bill a triple guarantee even more embracing than Davis- Bacon provides on Federal projects. It requires the localities to pay construction workers the highest rate called for by any of three measuring rods: the Federal or state minimum wage or the prevailing scale in private industry.

Why worry that the whole theory of revenue sharing is to make money available with no strings attached or that the strings run so counter to standard Administration philosophy? After all, the election is coming up.

REMARKABLE
PUBLIC SUPPORT

Hardly a day passes that somewhere in the country a local legislative body is not asked to consider passage of a law restricting consumer choice in the marketplace. The fact that so few of these repressive measures ever receive serious consideration might be said to be a tribute to the good sense of legislators. But, it is more than that. It is a tribute to the inherent good sense of consumers and the remarkable sturdiness of the marketing system itself--a sturdiness that rests in public acceptance of the system simply because it works.

Fundamental elements of the system, such as marketing, promotion and advertising, which frequently receive the adverse attention of anti-free-market agitators, enjoy a measure of public support that is highly encouraging to all those who believe that freedom of the marketplace is ultimately as essential as freedom of speech. A recent survey by a leading trading stamp concern provides an amazing demonstration of the kind of public support that keeps the free U. S. economic system strong. The survey shows that a great majority of people exercise their right of free choice to save trading stamps, which are one of the oldest forms of promotion there is and as much a part of the marketing system as the Saturday specials. Specifically, the survey reveals that 78 per cent of America's some 59.9 million households save stamps. About 80 per cent of American women say they personally save stamps, and 70 per cent of the men report they either save stamps or at least contribute to the family collection.

As long as the U. S. Free market system receives this kind of endorsement from consumers, it is a safe bet that it will be around for quite awhile.

PAT ON THE BACK

Rarely does a public official give an industry an unqualified pat on the back. But, an incident of this nature recently occurred. It had to do with the counter-inflationary downward trend of air fares charged by a leading U. S. international airline--Pan American World Airways.

Long a pioneer in bringing overseas air travel within the reach of the modest pocketbook, Pan Am went all out this summer in its efforts to encourage passengers traveling between the United States and Europe on weekend flights. Representative Richard L. Ottinger of New York, in commenting on the airline's fare policy, notes, "...with every American feeling the increasing pinch of higher and higher prices, it is refreshing to see any effort to hold the line or achieve reductions. It is with that in mind that I call attention to steps taken by Pan American World Airways to reduce fares this summer for passengers traveling between the United States and Europe...Pan Am, I am told, plans to further lower fares between the United States and Europe when it introduced bulk inclusive tour fares on November 1...there have been occasions on which I found it necessary to criticize the action--or inaction--of the airlines. But I feel any effort to bring fares within the reach of the average American traveler deserves appropriate recognition."

International air carriers are confronted with rising costs the same as any other business. There is no magic by which fares can be reduced. If inflation continues and costs scontinue to rise, the airlines will be up against the same financial stone wall that confronts everyone else. In the meantime, a basic industry has received a well-deserved word of commendation.

RESEARCH GROUP
PREDICTS '72 R & D
INVESTMENT GAIN

Record total expenditures for research an development of $30.1 billion are expected in 1972 according to the annual forecast for 1972 of the Battelle Institute, Columbus, Ohio.

The prediction represents an 8 per cent rise over the estimated 1971 total of $27.8 billion and the largest per cent increase since the mid - 1960s.

The increase will be the result of a record level of federal support, higher even than the previous peak figure of 1969, and from a continuing upward trend in support from industry and private sources.

Estimating corporate funded R & D by broad industry groups, the forecast identifies the top spenders as: (1) transportation equipment and missiles, with 1972 R&D expenditures of $2.8 billion;

(2) electrical equipment and communications, $2.7 billion;

(3) machinery, $2 billion; and (4) chemical and allied products, $1.9 billion.

CORPORATION

The "anti -poverty" bill currently under consideration by Congress would set up a National Legal Services Corporation to take over the functions of the Legal Services branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Most of the debate has been over whether to leave the Legal Services department as it now is or to set up the new corporation which would be run by a board of directors free from Congressional control. But for the people of our country, a more important question is whether this agency should exist at all.

The record of the Legal Services department of the O.E.O. is deeply disturbing. In California, for example, an attorney with Rural Legal Services assisted the leader of the Peace and Freedom Party in providing communist and revolutionary literature to prison inmates. In Berkeley, a Legal Services employee was paid for eight months without doing any work for the agency. Instead he worked with a communist law firm known for prison agitation. He was later identified as the man who delivered a gun to George Jackson just before he attempted to escape from San Quentin.

Another Legal Services employee, an active member of the Communist Party, provided legal assistance to members of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) in connection with an interstate dynamite case. Another, convicted for rioting before being hired, helped organize revolutionary activity in Berkeley, California.

Under the guise of "helping the poor," Legal Services has contributed to the breakdown of order and morality in our country. Congress should stop funding this program and refuse to set up the National Legal Services Corporation. HLH

Exclusive:
President Tells Campaign Team He Expects to Win All States

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON —It was the White House East Room but Richard Nixon gave it a locker room gung -ho touch the other week. For he was in rare gung -ho spirits. The President turned to the key party leaders from across the land who will go out there and campaign for him and said he expects the party will win -- big.

Said the President, for the first time since George Washington a political organization has a chance to "carry every state."

This includes beating Sen. McGovern in his most charismatic ally's home state, meaning Sen. Ted Kennedy's. The President reckoned they could do that, too. Mr. Nixon had just finished urging his campaigners to make a naximum political effort everywhere, regardless of the record.

Then he cited Massachusetts as an example. Both Sen. Brooke and Gov. Sargent have said "something is going on in Massachusetts" that could lead to its going Republican said Mr. Nixon, the candidate.

Then, recalling his first campaign --10 national campaigns ago in one fashion or other --he said he had been delayed at a political luncheon and had gotten to the maternity hospital too late to arrive before the birth of his first daughter. Now his daughter had just reminded him that this '72 race was his last campaign and he said he wanted "the last one to be the best one."

What he wanted his listeners to deliver was "a mandate in the form of an overwhelming vote everywhere for our policies, including the election of more Republican members of Congress." He reckoned the country had made progress under his administration but more could be made "with a large majority vote behind me." He blamed Congress for not "permitting" the nation to move as fast as he wanted it to. Then he and Mrs. Nixon spent 70 minutes chatting with each guest about techniques for winning their own states.

Over and over he urged them to push and elect Republican Senators and Congressmen --give him a majority of the Congress.

Then on to the Blue Room and the State Dining Room for refreshments after some warm words about and from Vice President Agnew who, said the President, should not be described as a "surrogate" campaigner but as a major force all his own.

But despite the euphoria, the President is running like Franklin Roosevelt ran --scared. Not even against the ageless Alf Landon did FDR take for granted he could carry his home state, New York. So it is with Mr. Nixon. He meant what he said that day in the East Room: "You always run as if you're behind."

He'll run that way. He's brushing aside the built -in exhilaration of the polls. His own yellow -pad figures and some supplied to him by his own insiders in his hideaway room show Sen. McGovern moving along right briskly. Big crowds. Especially in labor and industrial sectors. Heavy official labor support despite AFL —CIO chief George Meany who either is stealing Bob Hope's still unused lines or is the year's greatest undiscovered gag writer.

By latest count at the Democratic National Committee the McGovern backers now number 41 national unions with 8.75 million members. And more to come.

Inquiry at the inner sanctum over the plans of the President on style, technique, schedule and strategy brings a swift reply. There is no real strategy. Unlike 1968 it now will be all flexible. Improvised. Like the sudden visit to the Italian —American Sunday picnic at Mitchellville, Md., Sept. 17, five days after the East Room gathering.

At the last minute the President took his wife and daughter, Julie Eisenhower, got into a helicopter at Camp David, flew out to the small community and ate pizza, Italian sausages and meatball sandwiches. He improvised his lines. He told the crowd America had to send to Italy for its first real band for official functions, was cheered, got the stiffness out of his official campaign mien and for a moment had the aura of Nelson Rockefeller eating knishes at Nathan's in Coney Island.

It was politics at its most basic. He loved it. He proved to his sanctum he could mix.

And there were 10,000 folk there, mostly working people. Would this set a pattern as well as a precedent?

Perhaps the answer is in what one of his intimates said: ''One thing we're maintaining is a measure of flexibility from day to day, week to week, how often to go and where, a flexibility we did not have in '68. Improvising instead of long range strategy. We're not operating on a fixed schedule. We'll see how things develop. The President will be going after the 'targets of opportunity.' We will not go on the offensive against McGovern. We'll elevate the issues. We'll politically accentuate these."

In this they seem to have the active assistance of George Meany whose self -assignment is to retort to McGovern virtually each time the Democratic candidate opens his mouth to take a policy position --such as wages and prices recently.

It's that odd couple again --Meany and Nixon working in tandem to beat McGovern, but jousting with each other for control of the Congress.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON —Senators are still trying to dig out the details of the unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam. The target of one raid, for example, was a lone fighter plane photographed on the ground at Donghoi airfield.

Its pilot is a modern Red Baron who has managed to break through the electronic protective screen surrounding our B —52 bombers. His name is reported to be Toon and he's a menance behind the controls of a MIG.

He skims over the treetops to avoid radar detection, then shoots straight up full blast. At least once, he zoomed right through the middle of a B —52 formation. But he misfired his missiles and failed to knock down any of the big bombers.

The terrible Toon has also threatened other B— 52 bombing missions over both Laos and Vietnam. The Air Force brass were excited, therefore, when his plane was spotted in an aerial photograph of Donghoi airfield. This is the southernmost MIG base in North Vietnam.

Lieutenant General John Lavelle, then the Air Force commander in Southeast Asia, told senators that he spoke to his superior, Gen. Creighton Abrams, about the MIG and got the impression Abrams approved of a strike to destroy it.

At that time, White House troubleshooter Henry Kissinger was holding delicate, secret negotiations with North Vietnam s Le Duc Tho in Paris. President Nixon, therefore, had restricted air combat over North Vietnam. Under the President's orders, the MIG wasn't supposed to be attacked on the ground but could only be engaged if it took off with "hostile intentions."

Donghoi airfield was attacked anyway in early November 1971. Bad weather obstructed the view and the American pilots had to bomb through the clouds. The bombs missed the MIG.. In any event, it's unlikely Toon was sitting in the parked plane.

North Vietnam's notorious Red Baron, meanwhile, is still on the loose. But the story of his exploits has been censored by the Pentagon.

NIXON AND JEWS

A confidential memorandum to the White House bluntly describes President Nixon's recent visit to Moscow as a "disaster" for Soviet Jews.

The memo was written by Leonard W. Shroeter, a Seattle trial lawyer, who just spent 11 days in the Soviet Union conferring with Jewish leaders.

"In summary," he wrote "it is the conviction of the Soviet Jewish leadership that the President's visit was a disaster for them. They expressed the opinion that the United States seemed more interested in selling corn than in protecting human rights and individual freedom."

This contradicts the President's own impression of his Moscow visit. He has told subordinates that he raised the Jewish question with Leonid Brezhnev during their secret Kremlin conversations.

Nixon quotes the Soviet leader as complaining how awkward it was for the Kremlin to permit Soviet Jews to emigrate to Israel where they could be drafted to fight against Russia's Arab allies. The President claims he got an agreement from Brezhnev, nevertheless, that Soviet Jews would be free to emigrate to the United States.

A similar story was put out by New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who said the President had won an agreement from the Kremlin to increase the number of Jews leaving the country.

Shroeter declares in his memo, however, that he was "specifically delegated by Soviet Jews to speak in their behalf. During my entire trip, I was able to meet with top leadership and discuss in depth their needs, concerns and viewpoints."

The memo, marked "Confidential" and addressed to White House aide Len Garment, states that Soviet Jews "are living in the most difficult time thay have faced in recent years" and that they "attribute the difficulty of their situation to the recent visit of President Nixon.

"Prior to the visit," continues the memo, "there were wholesale preventive arrests and the imprisonment of Jewish leaders without explanation in the jails of distant cities and the house arrest of scores of others.

"These men were not released until after the President's visit ended and they were told that their arrests were occasioned by the President's trip. Also the telephones of virtually the entire Jewish leadership were cut off and have not to this date been restored ....

"Widespread interrogation by the KGB, which commenced before the visit of President Nixon, has increased subsequent to it."

The Shroeter memo is likely to be given considerable attention at the highest levels because of the President's all -out attempt to win Jewish votes in November.

Footnote: Shroeter just completed 30 months as principal legal assistant to Israel's attorney general. His work with Russian Jews migrating to Israel gave him special access to the Soviet Jewish leadership.

State Mental Health Plan In Jeopardy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Progress in Missouri's mental health program is in jeopardy because professionals are being lured away by higher salaries, Dr. Harold P. Robb, acting director of the Division of Mental Heatlh, said today.

In a speech prepared for the national Association of Mental Health Administrators, Robb said non-state psychiatric facilities are "attratice, seductive predators on the state mental health programs."

He said Missouri made great strides in mental health care under Dr. George A. Ulett, who resigned recently as division director, the Mental Health Commission and the support of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and the legislature.

"This progress is now in jeopardy," he said, "because salaries paid to public professional staff are much less than those offered in non-state work. Missouri psychiatrists in state facilities, for example, are receiving job offers for $5,000-10,000 more above the top Division of Mental Health scales.

As less experienced staff members replace those who leave, Robb said, "The ones who will ultimately suffer most are the people who come to us for psychiatric care."

American Pows Not On Expected Flight

VIENTIANE (AP) — Three American fliers released from North Vietnamese prison camps last week failed to arrive on an Aeroflot flight from Hanoi today, apparently because North Vietnam feared waiting American officials would take over the freed men.

A statement signed by American antiwar activisits who are bringing the three home supported the probability that the North Vietnamese decided against sending the men, the first prisoners of war set free since 1969, home through Vientiane.

A Roman Catholic priest returning from Hanoi on today's flight, Father Harry Bury of the Roman Catholic International Assembly of Christians, said he believed North Vietnam was awaiting a White House response to the activists' statement before sending the men home.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said there would be no comment.

The statement, a telegrammed copy of which has gone to the President, was brought here by Marianne Hamilton, another passenger on the Russian plane.

The Vientiane control tower refused to ask the Russian pilot whether the Americans were aboard, and it wasn't known if they were there or not until U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtie Godley walked to the foot of the gangway and asked.

A clue to the North Vietnamese attitude appeared Friday in a monitored broadcast on Radio Hanoi.

The Vietnamese language broadcast said U.S. military officials were "lying in wait" at Vientiane airport in the hope of "taking possession of the three released pilots and returning them to U.S. military control."

Also in Washington, Pentagon officials had no comment on the statement by U.S. antiwar activists.

However, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told newsmen at Letter Kenny Depot in Pennsylvania Friday that "I certainly would recommend that these men turn themselves over as soon as possible to their military command."

Laird said that "We, of course, will advise the three officers ... that we would recommend that they return themselves to military jurisdiction so that they can have the adequate medical checkups, that they can go forward with the kind of health reviews which we think are very important."

Laird voiced his concern about "the hundreds held by the North Vietnamese in violation of the Geneva Conventions."

The statement signed by the four American antiwar activists repeated four conditions first set forth by another Radio Hanoi broadcast. It demanded that in order to meet the "expectations of the North Vietnamese government and to avoid risk to future releases, the men should be allowed to fly on civilian aircraft, given a 30-day leave if they wished, given a complete medical examination at the hospital of their choice and to do nothing in the future to further American war activities in Indochina."

Mrs. Hamilton, a member of the same organization as Father Bury, said she thought the pilots and their escorts, would be on their way home soon, whether Washington replied to Hanoi conditions or not.

Claim North Viet Soldier Dead When Dropped From Craft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says a North Vietnamese soldier photographed while being dropped from a U.S. helicopter was already dead and the incident was staged.

An Army spokesman said Friday that an allegation the soldier was thrown to his death while being interrogated came from a false account of the incident written by a U.S. soldier to his girlfriend.

The Chicago Sun-Times published two photographs in November 1969 purporting to show a North Vietnamese soldier being dropped to his death from a U.S. helicopter.

The Army said its three-year investigation into the matter is now closed. The spokesman said that U.S. "fire support provided by helicopters resulted in the death of a North Vietnamese soldier.

"The helicopter shown in the photographs picked the dead NVA soldier, subsequently in a posed picture, the body was dropped from the aircraft," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the helicopter commander was reprimanded, but no action was taken against the craft's crew members because they had already been released from the Army before the investigation started.

Ralph Otwell, managing editor of the Sun-Times said the newspaper cooperated with the Army three years ago.

THIS SCENE might have depicted a man searching for clues to someone's personal disaster; but, in this particular case, no one had such bad luck. The man is Castor Alsup of Sikeston, who is helping to clear and burn debris from a house recently torn down at 205 Greer. The new vacant property at the rear of Missouri State Employment Service will be converted to a parking area.

Alfred Sikes II Heads Bond Campaign At 32

JEFFERSON CITY — When Alfred C. Sikes II was a youngster of 10 or 11 in his predominantly Democratic hometown of Sikeston, he got involved in his first political campaign. He asked voters to "vote for my daddy" for alderman.

Four years ago, as a promising young lawyer in largely Republican Springfield, Sikes took John C. Danforth, the GOP candidate for attorney general, from television station to radio station for campaign interviews. That lead eventually to his job as manager of Danforth's unsuccessful campaign for the United States Senate in 1970.

This year, however, Sikes is in the campaign game again. He is at the helm of the campaign for governor, and was credited with helping Bond pile up 76 per cent of the August primary vote over four opponents.

Sikes, a relative unknown to the public, has parlayed his campaign experience into a reputation as one of the most capable political campaign managers in Missouri. Associates and opponents alike say he has an uncanny grasp for politics and campaigning that belie his 32 years.

"This guy can get at the heart of things just something unbelievable," says one associate. "He has a grasp for politics that is unreal for a guy his age."

Despite his reputation, Sikes does not consider himself the "professional" campaign manager whose sinister presence behind the scenes is sometimes credited with manipulating candidates and voters alike.

"I enjoy this part of it, but I have a substantial desire to work in the governmental area," he says. "I think of myself as working in the political process to attain the opportunity to govern, then working in a substantive way to help govern.

"I am not addicted to politics, either in running for office myself or assisting others. If I were in it just for politics and not for some governmental end, I would get out."

Sikes would never fit the image of the cunning and shady campaign manipulator. He is handsome, articulate and personable, an outdoorsman who enjoys tennis and canoeing, and, when time permits, skin diving and spear and bone fishing in the Caribbean.

He came to politics naturally. He grew up in Sikeston, which was named in the mid-1800s for a distant uncle of his named John Turner Sikes, and where those who played the political game usually played for the Democrats.

So how did he become a Republican?

Sikes says his parents are "the ticket- splitting kind of Democrats and Republicans" and did not push him toward either party. It was basically his distaste for one- party dominance in Missouri and in Scott County that drove him into the GOP fold.

"I become a little bit rebellious when I see a certain power has dominated for so long," he says. "This runs counter to my philosophy of a strong two-party system of government ..."

It is this desire to break the Democratic dominance in Jefferson City that has spurred Sikes on in Bond's campaign.

Sikes got started in Missouri politics in an offhand way. He was practicing law in Springfield and keeping busy as president of the Missouri Jaycees in 1968 when Danforth, who later was elected Attorney General, came to town.

The young lawyer

introduced Danforth to other lawyers, arranged press and television interviews and set up a shopping center tour for Danforth that same day. Some time later, Sikes received a cablegram in Argentina, where he was attending a Jaycee meeting, inviting him to become an assistant attorney general.

As one of Danforth's chief aids, Sikes handled several politically explosive cases, including the ouster of Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton and a suit challenging the residency qualifications of state Representative J. B. (Jet) Banks (Dem.), St. Louis.

His management ability became evident in Danforth's race for the Senate in 1970, and he ended up as Danforth's campaign manager in a close defeat. He directs a paid staff of about 30 and a volunteer cadre of hundreds this year in Bond's campaign, just as he did in Danforth's 1970 race.

If Bond becomes governor, Sikes is expected to take a major role in his administration. He is considered a leading candidate to succeed Bond as auditor since Bond apparently would appoint his own successor if elected. He also has been mentioned as a candidate to become the first head of the new Office of Administration, which will be established in January.

Sikes says he considers a number of positions attractive," but I don't have any laundry list of priorities."

Although he has been mentioned repeatedly as a candidate for elective office, Sikes indicates some reluctance to run and subject his family to the fishbowl atmosphere of political life.

"I wouldn't run unless I felt the challenge to do things after election was very great, and the chance to be elected was very good," he says.

Although Sikes already has spent nearly $200,000 on Bond's campaign for governor, he says he is alarmed at the mounting costs of campaigning. He contends that such expensive campaigns make it all too likely that public offices may be bought by the financial angels who bid the highest.

He suggests creation of an independent agency to closely enforce new and more stringent campaign spending and financing laws, combined with a reduced period for campaigning.

Sikes was graduated from Westminster College and has a law degree from the University of Missouri. He and his wife, Marty, have three children.

Bill Gives Joint Bridge Authority

WASHINGTON — A bill which would give Missouri and Illinois joint jurisdiction over the Mississippi River bridge at Chester, Ill., was introduced in the House of Representatives last week by Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Mo. It was referred to the House Committee on Public Works.

An identical bill introduced earlier by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., was reported out of the Senate Committee on Public works and on the Senate calendar.

The Missouri lawmakers did not predict whether Congress would act further on the bills during this session.

Chester now operates the bridge, located halfway between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau. The city pays both operating expenses and indebtedness out of tolls.

Debt could be reduced faster, Burlison said, if states assume jurisdiction, since operating expenses would come from states' funds rather than toll funds.

In 1970, Chester paid $291,199 in operating expenses out of gross tolls of $351,000. Debt stood at $625,000 on Dec. 31, 1971.

The bills provide that if one state cannot cooperate in joint jurisdiction, the other state could take responsibility and be reimbursed out of tolls for half the operating expense.

SINNING

Four years ago Richard Nixon promised if he was elected president he would end the Vietnam War. About two years ago President Nixon promised he would never lead this nation down the road of price controls. Now President Nixon promised if he is re-elected he will not raise anyones taxes.

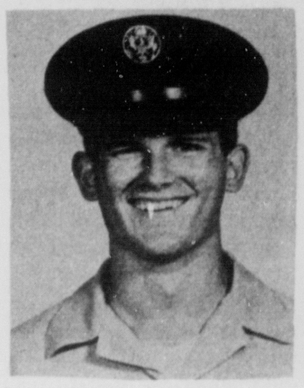

Isn't it about time Billy Graham tells President Nixon it's a sin to tell a lie?

Dowd Urges 3-Pronged Reorganization Effort

ST. LOUIS — Ed Dowd, Democratic candidate for governor, has called for a three-pronged attack on the massive problems of reorganizing state government.

Dowd said, "First, the purpose of the work must be clearly understood. It is not to preserve existing bureaucratic empires; not to see to it that present state employes continue their work and salary patterns with as little disruption as possible. It is to provide a structure that will bring efficient and effective government service to Missourians at the lowest possible cost."

Dowd called for a complete re-evaluation of existing state programs.

"The second step," Dowd said, "is to determine what programs Missouri needs that it does not have. I have proposed that Missouri create a statewide drug control and co-ordination system, to enable local law enforcement personnel to deploy their resources as effectively as possible in the fight against the drug traffic.

"The third step," Dowd said, "is to consolidate programs that are similar in structure and purpose. Recently four state offices investigated a major oil spill. This type of duplication of effort and expense must be eliminated."

Dowd stated that the development of short takeoff and landing aircraft would expand the life of Lambert airport. "The Federal Aviation Administration tells us that in fiscal 1971 60 per cent of the aircraft movements at Lambert were short-haul flights, under 500 miles. STOL-ports will not require expenditures of the magnitude of general aviation airports; A STOL-port would relieve Lambert of most of its traffic; and if we restrict general aviation traffic, Lambert will be adequate to serve our needs for many years."

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gene Robinson

Robinson-Averett

DEXTER —Miss Jean Ethel Averett and Alan Gene Robinson, were married Aug. 22 at the home of the bride. The eight o'clock double ring creemony was solemnized by Wesley Cowan.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Averett Jr., Route One, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F.L. Robinson, Route One.

Lighting the candles prior to the ceremony was the bride's brother, Marty Averett.

Mrs. John P. Morgan was pianist, offering a medley of selections and the traditional wedding march. She accompanied Miss Patti Grissom as she sang, "O Promiss Me".

Presented in marriage by her father, the former Miss Averett appeared in a formal gown of crisp white organza. The gown featured sheer sleeves cuffed with heavy Venise lace. The lace also encircled the high standup neckline and the natural waistline atop a demibell skirt. A Watteau Chapel train flowed gracefully from the back waistline and a contour headpiece of pearled Venise lace held fast her short bouffant veil.

The bride carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue and her only jewelry was a diamond pendant necklace belonging to her aunt, Mrs. George P. Dawson.

Her bridal bouquet was a nosegay of white carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Mary Jo Roberts of Dexter, friend of the bride, was matron of honor.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was C.E. Tuley.

Mrs. George P. Dawson and Mrs. Bill Flowers, aunts of the bride, presided at the serving table, following the wedding. Mrs. D.M. Sailors, aunt of the bride, Pacific, Calif., was at the guest book.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Dexter High School. The groom, graduated from Bernie High School in 1970, attended Three Rivers Junior College for two years and is engaged in farming with his father.

They will make their home on Route One.

Out -of -town guests at the wedding were Michael Averett, Hanover Park, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. D.M. Sailors, Pacific, Calif.; Mrs. Frannie Brigman, East Prairie, maternal grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Averett Sr., Parma, paternal grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Silverthorn, Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westerfield and Steve and Kelly, St. Marys; Ocie Heaton, Bloomfield; Mrs. Ed Bridges and Glenn, Essex; and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hull, Malden.

Ann Landers

Stealing From Husband Upsets Wife

Dear Ann Landers: All my life I've been completely honest. Telling the truth was the governing law in my growing -up years. And now I am doing something worse than lying and I'm a nervous wreck over it. I'm a thief. I take money out of my husband's billfold.

R. drinks like a fish. We have small children. I can't leave them to go to work. He will not move out of the house and refuses to admit that his drinking is a problem. When he comes home at night he falls into bed cockeyed drunk and makes no sense until the next day. The only money I can get is what I take out of his billfold. He never misses it because he can't remember what he spent. This way I can at least keep food on the table. If I waited for him to give me money we'd starve.

But he has made a thief out of me and I hate it. I tell myself this kind of stealing is honorable, but I know in my heart it isn't. Please help me. ---Internal Battle

Dear I.B.: No kind of stealing is honorable --and you should not allow him to do this to you. In R.'s sober moments he must surely realize he is not giving you any money. What does he think you are living on? I suspect he knows what you've been doing. My advice is to tell him and I'll bet nothing changes, except that you will no longer feel like a thief.

Dear Ann Landers: Hotel and motel occupancy was very heavy this summer and I would like to say something that could make a big difference in the life of a maid.

A chambermaid's job is one of the dirtiest. You wouldn't believe what we have to clean up. It's a mystery whey people who behave beautifully at home turn into pigs when they check into a hotel or a motel.

I realize that a letter in your column won't change them but I do want to say a word to those who leave tips for the maid. The tip should be handed her, personally and not left on the dresser or in a bathroom glass. Bellboys, maintenance people, desk clerks, any number of employees have access to room keys and often the maid's money is picked up before she has a chance to get to it. Thanks Ann. ---Backache Becky

Dear Beck: I learned something today. From now on my tip goes directly to the maid ---and I agree that these hard working folks derserve to be remembered with something extra.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother who shut the door on her daughter's date because he looked like a gorilla, made me write my first letter to you. Our 17 -year -old has taken up with a gorilla also. Tell, me Ann, does a mother have the right to tell her daughter's "gentleman caller" to take a bath, trim his hair and put on a shirt? This ape likes to go naked from the waist up. It kills my appetite when I see a hairy chest across the table. Also, would it be rude to tell him to take his dirty feet off the furniture? I've been called prejudiced, "crazy clean" and a few other names. Please answer. --- Glencoe Mother

Dear Glen: You do not have the right to tell a "gentleman caller" to take a bath or get a haircut, but you can and should tell him he is not welcome at your table without a shirt. Furthermore, if a "gentleman caller" doesn't know enough to keep his dirty feet off the furniture, he should be instructed in this area also.

Bloomfield PTSA Has Supper

BLOOMFIELD — The Parent - Teacher - Student Association and elementary and high school annual fall meeting was held Thursday at 6:30 p.m. with a cover-dish supper in the elementary school auditorium.

Parents, students and faculty members of both high school and grade school, as well as school administrators and others of the area interested in the Bloomfield school system, attended.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Ray Duffey and the welcome address was given by Elvis Mooney, who recalled his early days as principal at Bloomfield High School in 1934 at a salary of $65 a month.

Mooney introduced the high school principal, Clyde Dixon, who described the varied program offered this year. Dixon reported that 17 students are now attending the Vocational Training School in Sikeston.

Dixon introduced the high school teachers and staff. R. E. Sharp, superintendent of schools, introduced the elementary staff and teachers.

Officers of the PTSA are Elvis A. Mooney, president; Ray Duffey, vice- president; Mrs. Kenneth Vandeven, secretary and Mrs. Tony Varble, treasurer.

Murray Lane Baptist

Rev. Wade Paris

I have been asked to write this first in a series of articles about local churches. I suppose I might write about the brief and beautiful history of Murray Lane Baptist Church, since we just celebrated our tenth anniversary. Or I might boast citing statistical gains and physical accomplishments for this has been our finest year. Or I might tell of the various areas of service in which our church is involved. But really, I prefer to keep these things at a minimum and write about the spiritual task that God has given to the church. Spiritual realties are hard to understand and difficult to measure but let us try to understand this task.

The New Testament speaks of the church as being the body of Christ. This picture suggests that the church has a two-fold purpose: the first concerns something we are; the second concerns what we do.

A body is dead unless it houses a person. A church is dead unless it is a body in which Jesus Christ lives. We will never be able to know what we should do as a church unless we know who we are. Consequently, we must know Jesus Christ. The Old Testament word for know is one of the most intimate words of the Hebrew language. It is this kind of intimate personal knowledge of the Lord that we seek to possess. The more we know Him the better we can be His body. So the first task of the church is to know Christ and let Him live in us. We come to know Christ initially by asking Him into our hearts; this knowledge is increased through prayer, by sharing our faith one with another, and by serving Christ in the areas He wants us to serve.

Many years ago a young man from a little midwest town had become quite prominent on the Broadway stage. He was coming home for a vacation and the town was bursting with pride. A banquet was planned in his honor and most of the town turned out.

After the banquet the young man thanked everyone and indicated he would give a recitation of some familiar passage of literature if someone would make a request. An old gray haired minister, the young actor's childhood pastor, asked that he recite the twenty-third Psalm.

The young man was somewhat surprised by such a request, but said, "I'll do it on one condition: when I finish, the pastor will come forward and recite it in the way I remember him doing it."

The minister nooded agreement.

The young actor then recited the Psalm. His enunciation, articulation and inflection were flawless. When he had finished, the people gave him a standing ovation.

The old minister came forward and began the recitation of the beautiful Psalm. His articulation, enunciation and inflection left much to be desired. When he finished, no one stood to applaud. But all over that large gathering soft sobs could be heard.

The pastor turned to leave, but the young man stopped him. He put his arm around him and said to the audience, "My friends, when I recited the 23rd Psalm I touched your mind and brought you to your feet. When this great man of God recited the same Psalm, he touched your hearts and brought you to your knees. The difference is this: I know the 23rd Psalm; this man knows the Shepherd!"

The first task of the body of Christ - the church - is to know the shepherd. More than this the Shepherd must live in us or else the body is dead.

As mentioned earlier, the second part of being the body of Christ concerns what we do. We do that which Christ leads us to do. We do what he calls us to do because of who we are. The church does not do things to become something. Instead it does things because it is something - Christ's body here on earth. Quite often the church is called upon to minister to those whom many count unworthy. Often it is said, "Why do you help them? They don't deserve it and don't appreciate it." That is the very point. We do not love or help persons because of who they are. We love and help them because of who we are. Those who placed Jesus on the cross surely did not love Him. They did not understand or appreciate the fact that he was dying for them. Yet Jesus loved them. He prayed for them, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do."

Because we are the body of Christ we must carry on the many facets of Christ's work here on earth. In a local congregation there will be some evangelists, and some teachers, and some who minister, and some preachers, and others doing the many things Christ would have done here on earth.

Some of the areas in which we try to do the work of Christ are: A Bible teaching program - for us Sunday school is the main arm of our Bible teaching program, but there are other ways and times that it is done; a Church training program, the purpose of which is to equip Christians to do God's work in the world; missionary projects and offerings (missions begin at home but do not end there. We conduct regular services at a local nursing home and the jail, a monthly birthday party for senior citizens at the Heritage House, a Sunday school class for mentally retarded children, as well as supporting other mission work in the U.S. and around the world); music; worship, youth activities; regular prayer meeting; sharing groups; visitation; fellowship; and Dial-a-Devotion telephone ministry; and a multitude of other things we feel led by the Holy Spirit.

God has given to every true church the spiritual task of being the body of Christ. We conceive of ourselves as being a part of this body. This is what the Murray Lane Baptist Church desires to be. If we can be that, all else will fall into place. May God help it to be so.

CURTIS BEAN (20) breaks a pair of tackles and heads for open field on the way to his 74- yard touchdown scamper and more than 200 yards rushing in Friday night's 24-15 Bulldog victory over Charleston.

Offense Fires Up

Coach Pete Cirrintano's Sikeston High School football team kicked its offense into second gear and sped to a 24-15 victory over Charleston at Public School stadium Friday night. The win lifted the Bulldogs record to 2-1, while it kept CHS winless at 0-3.

The contest was marred by many mental errors on Sikeston's part. Defensive lapses cost the Dogs six points in the game, and maybe more, as coverage was messed up, allowing Junior DeLay to hit Herbert Harrison late in the game with a 77-yard aerial scoring strike.

Curtis Bean, appearing to be completely recovered from that nagging knee injury, ran for 219 yards on 21 carries in the contest. That was one of the best nights for a Sikeston back in several years. The speedster reeled off runs of 74 yards and 63 yards and finished with an average gain per play of 10.4 yards. Included in his accomplishments were two TD's.

Quarterback Bill Colwick, finally receiving the protection he has needed all year, fired for 136 yards on 15 throws. He completed nine on the night, five to Glenn Guttenfelder, three to Rick Eisenbach and one to tight end John Farris.

Bean, the state's 1972 long-jump champion in track, scored the first touchdown of the game when he ran over from two yards out. The attempt for two-point conversion was no good. Sikeston, after the game with the Blue Jays, is now zero for six in converting after scores.

Guttenfelder scored the second touchdown for the home team. He took a beautiful pass from Colwick and ran it in from 22 yards out to make the score 12-0.

With 18 seconds showing on the clock in the first half, Sikeston appeared to be playing it safe, keeping the ball on the ground deep in its own territory. However, Colwick appeared to fade to pass on third down, then slipped the ball to Bean, and Curtis turned it on after breaking a couple of tackles, outdistancing the field on a 74-yard jaunt.

The score was Sikeston 18, Charleston 0, and Sikeston coaches, players and fans wanted the shutout win more than anything. But, the defense, which had been so tenacious in the first half, seemed to slack in the second.

A consistent running game took Charleston down to the Sikeston two, where Junior DeLay twisted and turned, then ran over Leonard Davis for Charleston's first score. The extra point, despite a five-yard penalty against the Jays, was good and Sikeston's lead was cut to 18-7.

This time Sikeston used the air route a bit more, moving the ball steadily down field to a score. Junior flankerback Eisenbach was on the receiving end of a 24-yard scoring aerial from Colwick for Sikeston's final score. Sikeston, at this point early in the fourth quarter, appeared to have a fairly safe lead, 24-7.

Minutes later, that proved to be false. DeLay faded a few yards on third down, withstood a great deal of pressure from the defensive line, and tossed a perfect pass to Harrison. The play covered 77 yards as the Sikeston defensive backs missed their coverage.

Then Charleston kicked the extra point. A penalty was called on Charleston and Sikeston accepted, moving Charleston back five yards. The Jays elected to go for the two-point conversion and connected. The score, at this point, was 24-15 midway through the final period, and the packed house at Public School Stadium squirmed nervously as Bulldog rooters realized the win was not going to come as easily as it had appeared.

The Charleston crew was very determined as it lined up for the kickoff. However, their defensive effort was not consistent enough and the Bulldogs managed to pick up two first downs to lock up the victory, Sikeston's first in conference play. The Bulldogs are now 1-1 with a non-conference game at home against Memphis Fairley next Friday.

For the third week in a row, the defensive line of Aaron Yarber, Shane Waggoner, Sam Sanders, Mike Irwin and Dennis Breedlove played an effective game. The pressure on the opposing quarterback was improved against Charleston, as the defensive line got its best penetration of the year in the game.

Linebacker Roy Yarber was Sikeston's leading tackler with eight solo tackles and six assists. Waggoner blocked a punt and joined with Aaron Yarber to pressure the Charleston quarterback. The defensive line allowed just 58 yards rushing.

The most alarming thing in the ballgame was the pass coverage. For a good deal of the game it was good. But, the deep backs were burned on the 77-yard bomb and receivers cost Charleston a couple of other long gainers, dropping balls that DeLay placed in their hands.

The offensive line's effort was a plus, a few substitutions were made, allowing them to provide Colwick with better protection. The added beef also helped the running game which had been nearly nonexistent up until the Charleston encounter.

Sikeston's quarterback, Colwick, who set numerous passing records last year, is operating at approximately the same rate as last year, despite the deemphasis of the pass in Sikeston's offense.

Colwick has now hit on 21 of 44 passes in three games, good for 302 yards and three TD's.

Charleston appears to be going from the frying pan into the fire. They travel next to Poplar Bluff next week and play the Mules in the "pit". The Mules Friday night upset highly- rated Perryville.

ISRAELI EATING HABITS

NEW YORK (AP) — In Israel several large companies feel there is a place for frozen convenience foods, even though the nation prefers fresh produce which is readily available. Plans have been made to open several frozen food processing plants in the near future, according to the Bureau of International Commerce.

Jackson Wins Battle OF Unbeatens

JACKSON — In the matter of one week the Jackson Indians seem to have sprung from the role of darkhorse candidate to solid co- favorite with Cape Girardeau Central for the Northern Division crown. The Indians have never won the title, but seem to have a bona fide shot this season.

Kennett, a solid choice for second place at the beginning of the year, fell victim to the relentless Jackson running game and solid defense Friday night and absorbed a 21-7 beating. The biggest Kennett accomplishment for the night was scoring the first touchdown Jackson has allowed in three games this campaign.

Mike Litz and Ted Leimer led the Jackson running game. Litz ran for 140 yeads on 20 carries and Leimer lugged the ball 113 yards on 15 carries. Jackson backs produced a total of 299 yards rushing against a supposedly tough Kennett line. At the same time, Jackson's defense held Kennett's experienced backfield to 93 yards.

Loren Sides, Jackson's diminutive halfback, opened scoring for the Indians, counting from five yards out. Rob Litz's extra point made the score 7-0, Jackson.

Robert Kranz evened it up in the second quarter with a one- yard plunge. It was 7-7 after David Tippen's extra point kick.

Leimer put Jackson ahead just before halftime. Fred Leimer then threw to Mike Litz for the two- point conversion and a 15-7 lead at intermission.

The game's last score came in the third period. Mike Litz scored from five yards and the missed extra point made the score Jackson 21, Kennett 7.

The defense for Jackson proved to be tremendous for the third game in a row, holding a veteran Kennett eleven to just 109 total yards.

The Kennett passing game was ineffective. Tippen hit just four of 12 for 16 yards. Jackson, with the successful rushing game, threw just three times, hitting one for 15 yards. Jackson faces another tough test next week against Poplar Bluff in another Northern Division game.

PHS Bulldogs Battle Back

PORTAGEVILLE — Playing their second subpar game in a row, Coach Jim McKay's PHS Bulldogs still managed to subdue a stubborn Chaffee Red Devil unit, 20-8.

Chaffee seemed to control the ball most of the game, but the Portageville defense was tough near the goal and allowed the Devils just one score, a long pass early in the game.

That 40-yard pass, followed by a two-point pass conversion, gave Chaffee an early 8-0 lead and it is probable that Portageville fans were wondering what had happened to the team that was supposed to be a solid contender for the Southern Division crown.

However, after the first quarter the defense got hot and stopped Chaffee, and the offense rolled up 20 points on two long plays and a slightly more solid offensive effort.

Portageville's first score came just before intermission. Sammy Johnson scored a 30-yard pass from Robbie Inman. Mark Girvin's extra point narrowed the gap to 8-7.

Randy Williams put Portageville ahead, 14-8, with a five-yard run just before the half.

The last score was on the opening play of the second half. Jim Bradfield returned the kickoff 80 yards for the score, the extra point was missed.

Poplar Bluff Scores First

POPLAR BLUFF — The Poplar Bluff Mules won their first game and the Perryville Pirates lost their first game as Coach Tom Telle's troops defeated their visitors from the north, 26-14.

The game features very little defense. A total of 28 points were scored in the first quarter and, in one span of 45 seconds, three TD's were counted.

Halfback Ben Holt scored first for the Mules, going over from two yards out. Jay Sanders had hardly kicked the extra point before Perryville had answered the score. Brady Williams, who returned a punt for a score against Sikeston the week before, returned the ensuing kickoff 85 yards and Dave Meyrs kick tied the score at seven-all.

The first play from scrimmage on Poplar Bluff's offensive series went 61 yards. Quarterback John Casey hit split end Hurley Rainey for the score, the third in less than a minute.

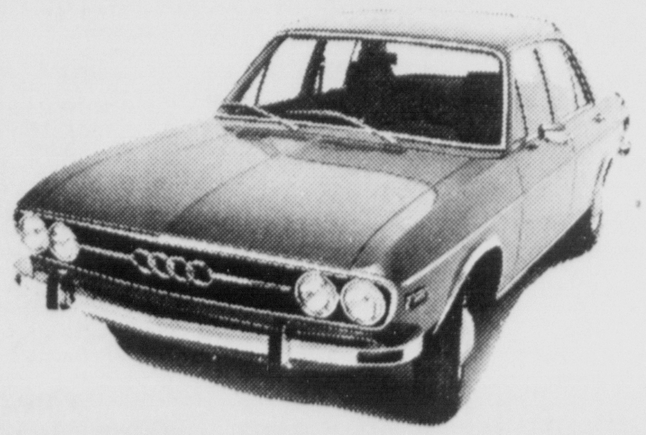

When Roger Brewer hit Bob Wichern from a yard out late in the quarter, the score was tied at 14-all.

There was no more scoring for nearly an entire quarter as both defenses seemed to settle down. With just forty seconds left in the half, Poplar Bluff regained the lead on a quarterback sneak by John Casey. The kick was missed.

The last score came in the third quarter after runningback Tuttie Hayes returned a pass interception 25 yards. On the next series J. B. Hayes scored from the one.

Both teams are at home next week. Bluff tangles with the highly - rated Jackson Indians and Perryville opposes Charleston. Both games are Northern Division contests.

Central Division Tests Top Pro Circuit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"When Detroit and Minnesota play," Vikings Coach Bud Grant once commented, "nobody wins. It's just a matter of which team is ahead when the game ends."

That pretty much describes the collisions of these two powerhouses in the National Football Conference's Central Division.

The last eight times, Minnesota's been ahead at the end, and it's been those victories that have paved the way to the Vikes' four straight divisional championships.

At the moment, though, it's the Lions who are ahead. They beat the New York Giants 30-16 in their opener while Minnesota lost 24-21 to Washington.

And if Detroit can withstand the Vikings' typically-crushing defense Sunday, there's a good chance the Lions will have sole possession of the division lead.

Chicago, like Minnesota, will be out to even its record but the Bears have a formidable foe in the Los Angeles Rams. Green Bay, currently sharing the Central lead with Detroit, surprised Cleveland 26-10 a week ago.

This time the Packers' defense will be tested by Oakland's always-dangerous Raiders.

Other games find Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, St. Louis at Washington, Dallas at the New York Giants, the New York Jets at Baltimore, Houston at Miami, San Francisco at Buffalo, Cleveland at Philadelphia, Denver at San Diego and Atlanta at New England.

Monday night, New Orleans hosts Kansas City.

The Vikings have relied heavily on their running game the past few seasons—Oscar Reed and Clint Jones combined for 134 yards against the Redskins—but now they've got a passing attack to go with it. Fran Tarkenton hit for a pair of touchdowns in his 18 completions that netted 233 yards.

The Lions, two, have both ground and aerial attacks. Greg Landry threw only 17 passes last week but his nine completions, three of them for touchdowns, resulted in 207 yards. Steve Owens ripped through the Giants for 113 yards.

Pittsburgh and Cincinati, unbeaten in the American Conference's Central Division, will probably be vying all season for this title.

The Steelers, led by Terry Bradshaw, may have to go wih a pair of rookies, running back Franco Harris and tight end John McMakin, since John Fuqua and Larry Brown are injured and doubtful starters.

Ken Anderson, who led the Bengals past New England, is expected to get the starting quarterback spot over Virgil Carter.

Eagles Still Searching

HAYTI — The East Prairie Eagles, winless so far this season, were grounded again Friday night; this time at the hands of the Hayti Indians, 14-13.

Utilizing her talented backfield duo of Danny White and Ed Martin, Hayti was first to score with an 11-yard dash by White which concluded a 95-yard drive in the first quarter. Jerome Maxie's extra point put Hayti in front, 7-0.

In the second period, East Prairie fought back as Annise Davis sprinted across from the five-yard line for the TD. Tim Bards kicked the extra point to tie the score at 7-7.

Hayti launched another scoring drive, this one for 61 yards, early in the third period. Randy Gardner got the ball and scampered 13 yards for the touchdown. Maxie again converted the extra point.

In the fourth quarter, a two-yard TD plunge by Davis set up the crucial play of the game. Instead of going with an easy PAT and a tie, East Prairie gambled for the win, but the two-point conversion bid failed and the Eagles suffered the loss.

Next week the Eagles will take on Portageville, and Hayti will invade Bearcat country to go into battle against Dexter.

Scoring by Quarters:

Hayti	7	0	7	0-14
E. Prairie	0	7	0	6-13

Backfish Leads Cats

CARUTHERSVILLE — Dan Backfish ran for one touchdown and passed for two more in leading Dexter to a 21-14 victory over the CHS Tigers Friday night in Southern Division league play.

Backfish cracked over from one yard out in the first period and Allen McRoy followed with the extra-point boot. The score came moments after the Bearcat defense blocked a Tiger punt.

Bruce Bishop bolted across the goal line for DHS in the closing minutes of the first period after taking a pass from Backfish. The score covered 50 yards.

Robert Gibson teamed with Backfish for a 55-yard score on a pass play and Backfish cracked across for a two-point conversion to end a 21-point first half.

Caruthersville's scores came late in the second period when Joe Cagle countered from five yards out and Clarence Cunningham scored on a 40-yard pass play from Cagle, while Joe Kulpeso booted both extra points.

The teams battled to a scoreless standoff in the last half.

Dexter stands 2-0 in league play and 2-1 overall.

People Should Cherish Friendship Memories

"A BLESSED THING it is ...to have a friend, one human soul whom we can trust utterly, who knows the best or worst of us, and who loves us in spite of our faults..."

We all have our problems at one time or another, but how much smaller they seem when we can talk them over with someone who will understand. Someone with whom we do not have to be "on guard," knowing; all the while that our trust in him will not be broken.

There will always be those who do not agree with our beliefs and in what we say; but a true friend will honor the right for our own opinion and we will honor his.

The special friends are the ones who stand out above the rest; they are the ones who know us and still like us in spite of our faults.

We must always cherish the friendships we make during our high school years and remember the moments we have shared. Because the friends, the laughter, the frustrations, and memories, both good and bad, will be with us always.

New Slate For FBLA

Senior Denise Powers was elected president of the Future Business Leaders of America for the 1972-73 school year Thursday, Sept. 14.

Senior Brenda Stewart was chosen vice- president, Laura Keenan was named secretary, Kay Whitaker, treasurer, and Cheryl Powers, student store manager.

Future Business Leaders of America sponsors are Mrs. Chuck Grant and Mrs. Tim Garner.

Next meeting will be Thursday, Oct. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in room G-2. Members of this organization invite students to still join their club.

Beaver Picks 38 Chorale Members

GORDON BEAVER DIRECTS his new 38 members of Modern Chorale.

Gordon Beaver, director of vocal music in Sikeston high school, named 38 choir members to compose the Moderne Chorale, a select group of vocalists.

Moderne Chorale is composed of juniors and seniors from both the VI and VII hours classes. He chose the particular group of students because he felt they had the most singing potential and ability.

Moderne Chorale is a much smaller group of students than either of the concert choirs. This enables the smaller group to perform for more outside functions. The Chorale is a versatile group and can switch from one type of music to another.

Chorale members are Bethany Basham, Brad Buchanan, Jim Bob Dixon, Paula Doyle, Elisabeth Dupont, Patti Dye, Gail Dyer, Lisa Edwards, Jo Ellen Felker, Ginger Ferrell, Larry Garrett, and Glen Guttenfelder.

David Hahs, Steve Hampton, Ken Harbin, Debbie Hastings, Maureen Klein, Steve Lambert, Rikki LaPlant, Judy Malone, Dennis Meyer, Danny Nelson Rebecca Perrin. Melody Phillips, Terry Presley, Kenny Riddle.

Teresa Scherer, Ronnie Shell, Steve Skalsky, Jane Summers, Greg Tanner, Cindy Taylor, Terry Teachout, Bill Wake, Jim Walker, Kevin Ward, and Rickey Woods.

We must learn two things from experience- to correct a great deal, and not to correct too much.

Biology Club

Bob Walker was elected president of Biology Club at its first meeting Tuesday, Sept. 12.

Other officers chosen were vice -president, Thom Lemmons; secretary, Rosemary Alsup; and treasurer, Mike

EARLY INDUSTRY

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — At least 12 Roman furnaces have been unearthed in a "dig" off Manchester's Deansgate.

"These undoubtedly are the earliest traces of industrial Manchester," said Professor Barri Jones, 36, professor of archeology at Manchester University.

4915 Students Attend Sikeston Public School

Sikeston high school has an enrollment of 1350 students as of this date.

Freshmen and sophomore enrollment is larger than last year with freshmen at 395 and sophomores at 350.

Junior and senior enrollment is smaller this year with 302 juniors and 303 seniors.

As in the past, Lee Hunter has the largest elementary school enrollment with 583 students. Enrollment of Southwest elementary is 465, Southeast elementary follows with 448, and next is Matthews with 323.

Sikeston kindergarten classes have an enrollment of 300, which is considerably larger than last year's enrollment of 271. Morehouse kindergarten through the Learning Center has 375 students.

With the beginning of the 972-73 school year, the Sikeston public schools have an enrollment of 4915.

Dunn Is Head Of Art Club: New Sponsor

Donna Dunn was elected president of the art club in Sikeston high school durig the first meeting of the school year.

Lee Haines was selected vice- president, and Jane Summers was named secretary-treasurer for the school year

Art club is not a new organization, but a few years have passed since it last had a sponsor. This year Mrs. Dianne Hahs will have the responsibility for the club and its functions.

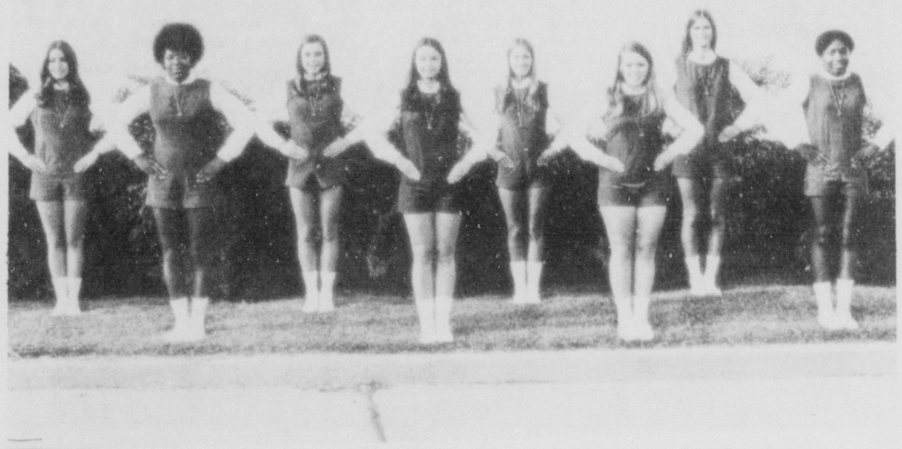

Members of the club are at work on a project. Each member is sketching a design to be voted upon later. One design will be chosen to be painted on four sections of wood and will be used for cabinet doors in one of the art rooms.

This project will be completed in time for a meeting of the art teachers from the state of Missouri that is slated for later during the school year.

Other activities planned include several field trips and the sponsoring of an art show in the mall in the spring.

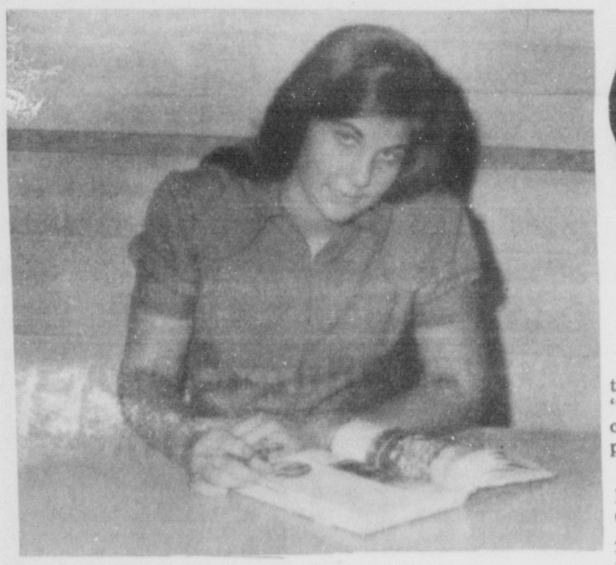

Can You Find?

In these remarks are hidden the names of 15 books of the Bible. It's a real lulu. Kept us looking so hard for facts, we missed the revelations. We were in a jam especially since the names were not capitalized. The truth will come to numbers of our readers. To others it will be a real job. For all, it will be a most fascinating search. Yes, there will be some easy to spot, others hard to judge. So we admit it usually results in loud lamentations when we can't find them. One lady says that she brews coffee while she puzzles over it. One book is underlined to help you start. Can you find the other 14?

Dupont Europe

JUNIOR ELISABETH DUPONT studies for her English III class.

Junior Elisabeth Dupont spent two months in Europe this summer. She visited France, West Germany, Belgium, Sweden, and Denmark, spending most of her time in Copenhagen.

When asked about Copenhagen, Elisabeth replied, "Copenhagen is a place where you will find all types of people. One thing that surprised me the most about the people was their dislike for the Americans and our policy.

"I was introduced to two Communists, of which Denmark has quite a few, and in talking to them I realized if they saw the United States they would change their thoughts about it."

Elisabeth also commented on the schools in Denmark. Summer vacation is only seven weeks long. The school day is from 8-2 o'clock, six days a week. College tuition is very small but the high taxes make up for this.

When asked what she thought of Europe as a whole, Elizabeth replied, "Europe has many places to see. Each part is different from the other just as each part of the United States is different.

"Some people make the mistake of comparing a European country to the United States. You cannot do this. A more correct comparison is that of America to Europe."

Minds of Music

The Barker staff would like to introduce a new column, "Minds of Music." This new column will feature various puzzles and quizzes in reference to music-- rock, blues, classical, and country.

This week's puzzle is a word search containing 45 "superstars of rock."

Week-end Hunting

---Happenings

SEVERAL 1971-1972 Growlers have not yet been sold and any student wishing to purchase one should contact Mrs. Tony Statler in A-1. The cost of the yearbook is $9.

SENIOR PHOTOS for the yearbook are due to the staff by Wednesday, November 22, and any underclassman who desires a studio picture for the Growler must have it submitted to the staff by November 1.

HARLEQUIN PLAYERS held their first meeting Tuesday afternoon when they made nominations for the club's officers. Students running for president are Wayne Noe and Stephen Skalsky, and vice - president nominees are Richard Dale, Bonnie Harris, Mike Marsh, and Libby Walker.

These students will be campaigning for the next two weeks and the elections will be held on October 10.

CADET SECOND Lieutenant Fran Early, Lieutenant Colonel Robert Mize, Captain Hugh Jones, and Cadet Lieutenant Jim Newberry spoke to seniors Wednesday about the many advantages of joining ROTC and planning a career in the U.S. Air Force.

The purpose of the ROTC program is to train officers while they are in school. Those officers that take an interest in their assignment and show dedication are placed on active duty.

Seniors were urged to look into the ROTC program as many benefits can be gained.

BULLDOGS will be playing on their own home field tonight as they challenge an old rival, the Charleston Blue Jays. This is an opportunity for all SHS students to show good sportsmanship and courtesy to the out-of-towners.

GOOD LUCK AND "Gung ho" Bulldogs!!!!!!

Barker staffers extend their sympathy to David and Mark Fausett upon the recent loss of their father.

If I held every truth in my hand, I would take good care not to open it for other men to see.

Jim Walls Is Guest Speaker For Seniors

Navy corpsman first class Jim Walls, elder brother of senior Tom Walls, entertained, among others, Walter Messmer's third- hour contemporary history class Monday morning.

Mr. Walls having returned from Vietnam a scant two weeks ago recalled some incidents from the Asian battlefield.

He also gave advice to the young men in the class who might have been planning to enter the armed service after high school and then entertained questions about life in Vietnam.

Jim is a navy corpsman first class, specializing in bacteriology, public health, and as a lab technician. He has spent 11 years in the navy and plans to continue it as a career.

Frosh Elects Representatives For Council

Freshmen voted by ballot in homeroom Tuesday morning for student council representatives.

Freshmen representatives for 1972-73 are Rosemary Barr, David Butler, Susan Dement, Deena Dollar, Karen Duncan, Stephen Dupont and Vickie Fugate.

More members are Christy McMikle, Melissa Nelson, Jo Ann Redd, Janet Sauls, Bonnie Schuchart and Teresa Self.

"The importance of student council representatives cannot be over emphasized. The newly elected council members will attend all of the meetings and will report the business discussed to their respective homerooms.

"In turn the representatives will bring to the council, student ideas and complaints," said vice- president Mark Shaw.

Guess Who

Mr. X and Mr. Y have been good friends for many years. During the summer months one can find them lazing around in the sun on Kentucky Lake.

Mr. X earns extra spending money by working at the Holiday Inn. He lives with his parents and a younger brother, a freshman, on Holly Hill Drive. Mr. X's schedule contains band, American history, physical education, concert choir VI, English III, chemistry, and speech.

Mr. Y resides at 109 Salcedo Road, and he is a junior. Mr. Y's daily routine includes ,band, American history, math III, English III, physical education, concert choir VI, and chemistry.

Shaw Is Leader Of Math Club

Senior Mark Shaw was elected president of the Sikeston high school math club at its organizational meeting last week.

Senior David Ziegenhorn was chosen vice- president, and junior Amy Buck was named to the secretary- treasurer position.

Plans for the organization this year include the sponsoring of the second annual chess tournament and having speakers from various fields of mathematics present programs to the club.

Some field trips are also on the agenda.

Any student wishing to join this club should see one of the sponsors, Asa Kinnaman, Terry Coleman, or Gary Williams as soon as possible.

Deadline for the payment of dues will be announced at a later date.

Varsity, Freshman Bands To Make Debut Tonight

"Marching Bulldog Band," directed by Pat Curry, will open its season tonight during halftime of the football game when the Bulldogs clash with the Charleston Blue Jays in the football stadium.

Freshman band, directed by Edward Cowan, will present a pre- game show at 7 o'clock.

The 140- piece varsity band will begin the performance with "Emperata Fanfare," directed by senior drum majorette, Rita Matthews, and junior drum majorette, Melodie Powell. Following the fanfare, the band will march down the field and drill to the tune "Corcoran Cadets."

While in a large diamond formation, the "Overture from Tommy" will be played. New twirling line, headed by Judy Malone, will execute a dance-twirl routine to the popular arrangement of "Joy to the World."

Following a mosaic drill to "Washington and Lee," better known to the Sikeston fans as "For Every Sikeston Boy," the band will quickly change to a concert formation for senior twirler Marsha Dement's solo fire routine to the arrangement of "Fever."

Marsha's solo is the first of four solo performances by the senior twirlers.

As the band leaves the field in the traditional "Floating SHS," strains of "The Red and the Black" will fill the air.

After the freshmen march on to the field during the pre -game show at 7 o'clock, the band will play "I'd Like To Teach the World To Sing," to which twirlers will perform a routine.

Band members will move into concert formation for the playing of the national anthem and a concert number, "Amazing Grace."

Surprise greeting will be given to the audience and the marching freshmen Bulldogs will exit playing the school song, "The Red and the Black" in a floating "S" formation.

Defoliation Is Good Practice This Year

By THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

Indications are that chemical defoliation of cotton will be a profitable practice in many fields this season. Cotton is showing rank growth in many fields. This means that cotton will open more slowly, and boll rot is likely to be a problem.

A heavy infestation of bacterial blight is evident in most cotton fields. This disease affects cotton bolls as well as leaves; consequently, the boll rot problem can be expected to be aggravated by it. Boll rot is already being found quite commonly in cotton fields.

Defoliation will pay good dividends in helping you to harvest more cotton of higher quality in such fields.

Defoliation offers several important advantages. Cotton dries more quickly on leaf- free plants; therefore, picking can be started earlier in the morning and after rains. Mature bolls open and dry out earlier, allowing harvest to begin earlier in the season; consequently, harvest is completed earlier with less danger of late bolls being damaged by frost.

Much of the cotton is lodged this season, and such plants will usually straighten up after defoliation. Less trash is added during harvest. Leaf- free plants do not clog picker spindles or stain cotton lint.

For successful defoliation, defoliants must be properly applied, and proper timing is tremendously important. For overall defoliation, the youngest bolls that can be expected to open must be mature. Mature bolls are speckled and feel hard when pressed between the thumb and forefinger. When the boll is cut, even with a sharp knife, the fiber strings out rather than being easily sliced

The seed of mature bolls contain yellow kernels that fill the seed cavity. Defoliating too early can cost you money through reduced yields, low micronaire reading, and a lower grade.

For successful defoliation, the temperature must be above 60 F. The temperature factor often represents a problem in this area, as the temperature is often too low for successful overall defoliation when the cotton reaches maturity.

For cotton showing rank growth and a heavy bottom crop, bottom defoliation in which the bottom 15 to 24 inches of the plant is defoliated is perhaps the best solution. This method will allow you to defoliate before the temperature falls below 60 F.

Bottom defoliation allows you to harvest the high- quality bottom crop and leaves sufficient foliage in the top of the plant to feed the top bolls to maturity. More bottom defoliation could be practiced to a good advantage in this area.

When cotton is to be bottom defoliated, the same suggestions for determining when cotton is sufficiently mature for overall defoliation should be applied to the bottom portion of the plant to be defoliated.

Several good phosphate and chlorate defoliants are available under a variety of trade names. The phosphate defoliants are usually more effective in removing late season immature leaves. Application rates of one gallon of most chlorate defoliants or one to one and a half pints of phosphate materials with enough water to total 10 to 15 gallons of diluted spray per acre should be used.

Dessicants should be used only as a last resort to kill plants where second growth is a problem. At least 90 per cent of the bolls should be open before applications are made, and cotton should be harvested three to four days after treatment.

Additional information pertaining to cotton defoliation may be obtained from your county Univeristy of Missouri Extension Center.

Cotton Harvest Pace Speeds Up In SeMo

Cotton harvesting and ginning advanced at a fairly rapid rate in Southeast Missouri last week, according to Paul W. Karban, officer -in-charge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Hayti Classing Office.

Cotton in Dunklin and Pemiscot counties had opened quite well and the bulk of the crop classed was from these areas. Gins in the northern portion of the territory were just starting to operate. Later maturing crops have delayed picking.

Extensive defoliation was being practiced in many fields of rank cotton.

The majority of current ginnings were to be delivered to buyers to fulfill contracts drawn prior to the ginning season. There was too small a volume of uncommitted cotton available at this early date to determine current prices. Although gin yard prices for cottonseed have not been clearly established, it appeared they would be well below last year's levels.

A total of 14,500 samples had been classed for producers for the season through Sept. 22 by the Agricultural Marketing Service's Hayti Classing Office.

Quality statistics show that 53 per cent of the samples graded strict low middling, while 27 per cent graded strict low middling light spotted. Staple length was about equally divided between 1 1/16 and 1 3/22 inches. Ninety-eight per cent of the samples miked in the base range of 3.5 to 4.9. Breaking strength of the samples tested was good and averaged 89,000 pounds per square inch.

30-Day Farm Forecast

Farmers Can Expect Rain

By LEONARD F. HAND
Agricultural Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE — Both temperature averages and rainfall totals fall within the above normal category in the 30- day weather outlook for the period from mid-September to mid- October.

Cold air entering the nation is expected to be concentrated over the western states. Penetration of the mid and lower Mississippi Valley is apparently expected to be brief and infrequent. A southerly flow of warm and humid air from the Gulf is more likely to predominate.

Rainfall over Southeast Missouri will probably be associated with showers and thunderstorms that form along the boundary between these opposing flows. Development of disturbances in this boundary zone may account for more general, longer- duration wetting.

This combination has mixed implications for Bootheel agricutlure at this point in the season. Warmer temperature trends can be expected to extend the growing season to provide for maturing of later set cotton, and for a more full season for soybeans planted behind wheat. The potential for above normal rainfall may complicate the scheduling of harvest operations for both cotton and soybeans.

Temperatures more favorable than usual for defoliation are likely to extend nto the first half of October. Rains, and the high humidity that goes with a wet and warm fall, suggest that fields may be too wet for traffic at times, and that dews will be ample and regular through the cotton harvest. Attention will be given to cotton lint moisture to avoid piling up of wet cotton in gin yards.

Dews and fog and high humidity are all moisture sources that may delay the drying of soybeans in the field. Also, on a daily basis, long periods of nighttime moisture conditions will require more drying during the forenoon to prepare leathery pods for efficient combining.

Moisture will be welcome on land planted to wheat and seeded for pasture and Winter graze. Much of this land will need additional moisture to establish growth, particularly in areas where rains have not been generous in September.

Potential consumptive use of water by soybeans during the period from Sept. 20 through Oct. 17 ranges from 2.88 inches for full season beans to 3.69 inches for beans up and using water by mid-June and 5.02 inches for wheat beans emerging about July first. Chances are good that nature will supply those amounts with the pattern anticipated.

Weekly normals of temperature and rainfall for the Bootheel during this period are about:

Week ending Sept. 26, maximum, 82, minimum, 58, rainfall, .61 inches; Oct. 3, maximum, 78, minimu, 52, rainfall, .59 inches; Oct. 10, maximum, 76, minimum, 52, rainfall, .58 inches; Oct. 17, maximum, 76, minimum, 50, rainfall, .30 inches.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel, as a whole, for the period from Mid- September through Mid- October is 3.27 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Caruthersville, 3.08 inches; Dexter, 3.50 inches; Doniphan, 3.50 inches; Morehouse, 3.29 inches; New Madrid, 3.25 inches; Parma, 3.07 inches; Poplar Bluff, 3.36 inches; Sikeston, 3.40 inches.

Short period averages for other points:

Advance, 2.97 inches; Bloomfield, 3.49 inches; Clearwater Dam, 3.07 inches; Malden, 2.89 inches; Puxico, 3.03 inches; Wapapello Dam, 3.09 inches; Bernie, 3.10 inches; Charleston, 2.69 inches; Kennett, 2.75 inches; Portageville, 2.89 inches; Qulin, 3.07 inches.

These figures indicate that this period of the year normally accounts for some of the least monthly moisture figures for the Bootheel.

Prepare Bins For Storage

THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

Corn harvest is just around the corner, and grain bins in which this crop is to be stored should be prepared. Certain practices used prior to and at harvest time will do much to help keep the grain clean and free of insect damage.

The first step, and a very important one, in the preparation of the grain bin is to thoroughly clean the bin. Old grain should be removed from the bin. If new gain is stored with old, the old grain will serve as a source of insect infestation for the new.

After old grain has been removed from the bin, all dirt and trash (including all grain in cracks and corners) should be cleaned out. All grain that might have sifted out around and under the bin should also be cleaned up. In addition to cleaning the bin, any repairs should be made to make the bin rat, mouse, and bird proof.

After the bin has been cleaned, all interior surfaces should be sprayed with either methoxychlor is recommended at the rate of three-fourths pint of 25 per cent emulsifiable concentrate per gallon of water, or premium grade malathion should be applied at the rate of one-third pint of 57 per cent emulsifieable concentrate per gallon of water. Apply this treatment two weeks before storing grain.

Corn should be stored on the farm only when the moisture content of the grain is 13 per cent or less unless drying facilities are to be used. Storing grain with higher moisture content will encourage insect troubles.

The use of malathion as a grain protectant offers one of the cheapest and most effective methods of insect control in stored grain available to date. Grain that is dry and free of insects at the time of storage can be protected for as long as one year by the proper use of malathion. For this treatment, mix one pint of 57 per cent premium grade malathion emulsifiable concentrate in from two to five gallons of water and treat 1,000 bushels of grain, but be certain that the dust is labelled specifically as a grain protectant. The protectant should be applied either to the grain stream as it comes out of the combine or to the grain as it is elevated into the bin.

Mulch Cover To Prevent Erosion

Grade or cleared areas which may be subjected to erosion for six months or less, where seedings may not have a suitable growing season to produce an erosion retardent cover, but which can be stabilized temporarily with a mulch cover.

Site Preparation — Grade, as needed and feasible, to permit the use of conventional equipment for applying and anchoring mulch; install needed erosion control practices such as interceptor ditches, berms, terraces, and desilting basins; loosen the soil to a depth of two to three inches by disking or harrowing.

Mulch materials should be unweathered, unchopped small grain straw or stemmy grass hays. Spread at the rate of about two tons per acre.

Spread uniformly by hand or mechanically so that at least 75 per cent of the soil surface will be covered. For uniform distribution of hand spread mulch, divide area into approximately 1,000 square feet sections and three bales, approximately 100 pounds of mulch for distribution within each section.

Mulch anchoring should be accomplished immediately after placement to minimize loss by wind or water. This may be done by one of the following methods and should be done on the contour wherever feasible:

1. Peg and twine — drive 8 to 10 inch wooden pegs down to within two to three inches of the soil surface every four feet in all directions. Stakes may be driven before or after applying mulch. Secure mulch to soil surface by stretching twine between pegs in a criss-cross within a square pattern. Secure twine around each peg with two or more turns.

2. Mulch netting — Staple lightweight paper, jute, cotton or plastic nettings to the soil surface according to manufacturer's recommendations. Netting is usually available in rolls four feet wide and up to 300 feet long.

3. Asphalt — Applied as mulch material, as blown from the applicator or as a separate operation. This provides excellent mulch anchorage.

Emulsified asphalt — Apply uniformly .04 gallons per square yard of rapid curing (R.S-1 or R.S.-2), medium curing (M.S. -2), slow setting (S.S.-1) depending on desired curing time. See the manufacturer's specifications. Emulsified asphalt should not be used in freezing weather since it contains approximately 50% water.

Liquid asphalt — May be applied at any time of the year since it is thinned with a kerosene - like product. Uniformly apply 0.10 gallons per square yard of rapid curing (R.C.-1, R.C.-2 or R.C.-3) or medium curing (M.C.-2 or M.C.-3), depending on desired curing time. See the manufacturer's specifications.

Notched coulter — A special tool is available with notched dull coulters to cut in mulch to anchor it to the soil. A dull disc harrow set straight may also be used but it tends to shift and penetration is more difficult. These machines should be weighted for one to two-inch penetration and should be operated across the slope.

4-H Outing Planned On Lake Wapappello

4 —H Leaders Retreat Sept. 29 -30

NEW MADRID —New Madrid County 4 —H leaders are planning a special outing at 4 —H Camp on Lake Wapappello Sept. 29 -30.

This will be a time for relaxation, fellowship and exchange of ideas. Also included will be a history of the 4 —H camp by David Baker of Fredericktown, president of the camp board.

Among recreational activities will be swimming, boating and fishing.

Those attending will plan to arrive at the camp Friday afternoon, and are requested to bring a covered dish for supper. A registration fee of $2 will be to cover expenses of breakfast and lunch on Saturday.

The camp will be over shortly after the noon meal on Saturday. This is an opportunity for leaders to visit the 4—H camp and to inspect improvements that have been made this summer.

Persons who wish to attend may contact Mrs. Pansy Crosby or Alice Mason at the University of Missouri extension office in New Madrid, or telephone 748 -5531.

Father-Son Banquet Set

EAST PRAIRIE —The East Prairie FFA chapter will hold its annual Father -Son Banquet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Martin Cafeteria.

Invitations have been sent to parents of each member.

The featured speaker will be Sammy Peebles of Brewton, Ala., National FFA vice president, southern region.

Appeal Due October 6

NEW MADRID — The last day for New Madrid County farmers to make a written appeal to the ASCS Committee to prove their farm wheat yield for the 1973 Wheat Program is Oct. 6.

Wheat yield production evidence for the base years of 1969, 1970 and 1971 must be submitted to the county ASCS office, along with the written appeal.

Proven production on all farms operated during the base years is required by the committee for those farmers wishing to prove wheat yields.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all

The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.

You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Missed by wife, Sue; and children Carrell, Vickie, Marla, Wendy

The Case Of The Strikeless Stroke

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As Mr. Meek was driving along at a timid speed, he was suddenly shocked worse than an ear of corn. Coming at him from the opposite direction in his lane of traffic was a sports car being jockeyed by Fearless Fred.

Fortunately, both drivers were able to slam on their brakes in time to avoid a collision. In fact, only one foot of air separated the two cars whey they finally came to a screeching halt. The narrow miss, however, took its toll. As shaking Mr. Meek stepped out of his car, he suffered a stroke and had to be rushed off to a hospital.

In due course, Mr. Meek filed a claim under an accident policy to collect for his impaired state of health.

"Sorry," he was told, "but, there was no accident. The two cars never made contact." "If there was no accident," responded Mr. Meek, "what am I doing in the hospital? Obviously, there was an accident. And even if the two cars didn't strike, it still caused my stroke."

Insisting that there had been an accident, Mr. Meek took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Meek to collect for his strikeless stroke?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that excitement, fright sudden physical exertion and other mental and emotional activity which have the effect of raising a person's blood pressure are recognized causes of a stroke. And, concluded the judge, Mr. Meek's experience in suddenly being confronted by Fred's rapidly approaching vehicle on the wrong side of the street was an accidental cause of his stroke.

Outlines Vo-Tech Ideas

Mrs. T.: What is your philosophy of vocational-technical education?

Dr. R.: There is dignity in work. Every citizen should have the opportunity to be educated and trained to perform that type of work which will assure him gainful employment and job satisfaction consistent with his maximum potential and capabilities.

Mrs. T.: This would then give status to all work.

Dr. R.: Yes, every task, regardless how menial or complex it may be, ought to be performed skillfully and efficiently so that man can take pride in the work he is able to perform for his livelihood.

Mrs. T.: Know-how is then important.

Dr. R.: You are so right. Equipped with adequate knowledge and thoroughly practiced skills, the individual can more fully represent his dignity and worth to himself and to the community. Vocational- technical education is concerned that each citizen has an opportunity to discover his talents and to develop them to the degree of proficiency required by business and industry.

Mrs. T.: You then see a better world ahead as a goal.

Dr. R.: Yes, a better world in which to live, enhanced personal dignity, and true financial security can be achieved by every individual and the community, if business, industry and vocational- technical educational institutions continue to work together in the interest of the total development of our human resources -- our most important product and responsibility.

Mrs. T.: Where does career education fit into this picture?

Dr. R.: Career education is in the most fundamental sense a bridge -- a bridge between school years and work years, between educators and employers, between the life of a child and the later years of adulthood and a full life.

Mrs. T.: There is dissatisfaction with current education.

Dr. R.: That is right. Disaffection of the youth with education cannot be put down to juvenile caprice. When thousands find that they cannot get work, or not the kind they want for their permanent lot, this is adequate proof. For these thousands, education has failed to foster translation of academic learning into skills that can be proudly and successfully offered in a specialized, competitive labor market.

Average unemployment in this nation for those between the ages of 18 and 24 is nearly 25 per cent. In some inner city black ghettos or southwestern barrios, 50 per cent joblessness is about correct.

Mrs. T.: Then what is the thrust of career education?

Dr. R.: Career education would stress reality in the classroom, not smothering young people in the dubious tradition that for every child learning in and of itself is sufficient reward for the toilsome journey. Career education will enable us to turn our teaching energies to acquainting the young with the occupational facts of life in progressive, broadening, deepening stages and giving them an idea as to where they might fit into the modern employment scheme.

Mrs. T.: Is career education moving ahead in popularity?

Dr. R.: Yes, it is gaining a broad consensus as a concept in America. This is from the viewpoints of teachers, administrators, school board members, civic leaders, parents and, most importantly, of the students themselves.

Mrs. T.: How about federal money?

Dr. R.: Fifteen percent of the basic grants to the states, under the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968 may be spent for programs for the disadvantaged. In fiscal year 1971, $20 million was available for special vocational and technical programs to help persons with academic or socioeconomic handicaps succeed in regular vocational education programs.

Secondary vocational and technical education was provided for 957,000 disadvantaged students. More than half the students benefiting from 149 vocational school building and equipment projects supported by Office of Education were disadvantaged.

Mrs. T.: Will adult education be a part, too?

Dr. R.: Yes, we currently have a fine MDTA program in this area, but our new facilities will provide even more comprehensive ones. During the fiscal year 1971, the Office of Education expanded the adult education programs so that adults could complete secondary school and obtain job training to help them become more productive citizens. The basic education provided 600,000 undereducated adults by the Adult Education program resulted in grants to public and private agencies for comprehensive or coordinated approaches to the problems of adults who have not achieved a high school diploma.

Mrs. T.: Then, Southeast Missouri and the entire nation will be helped by the Vocational - Technical Skills Center that New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District will have ready in a year?

Dr. R.: This is easily answered because in 1971 two out of three young Americans left school or college without having learned a profession, a trade, or even a job skill that would enable them to compete effectively in the labor market.

Mrs. T.: What kind of number and expenditure are you referring to?

Dr. R.: There are 2.5 million of these young people who are in these categories. Their years of schooling represented an expenditure to the nation of $28 million.

Mrs. T.: Could it become more acute?

Dr. R.: Yes, by 1975, it is estimated that there will be only about 4.5 million unskilled jobs in the American economy. Also, 3.5 million unskilled young people will be entering this overcrowded field.

Mrs. T.: What about career education for the handicapped?

Dr. R.: Recently, two federal bureaus sent teams to visit exemplary projects of career education for the handicapped. One of the more striking projects visited was in Montana. The Missoula Training Center decided to use its 10 per cent set- aside funds to integrate hard- core handicapped persons into the various training programs it runs for non= handicapped and handicapped alike. A special education teacher and several counselors were hired to work with the center staff and the handicapped students to integrate them.

Mrs. T.: You are then saying that the term "integrate" has a positive meaning to us when you talk of some of the educational blends that include, for example, bringing together diverse groups as handicapped and non- handicapped.

Dr. R.: Yes, this is a fine example of the use of the word "integrate" that has no relation to race. There are many fine examples -- two in particular.

Mrs. T. Tell me about one of these.

Dr. R.: There is a Manpower Development Training Project in Baltimore that was designed to help small contractors. Many such contractors, because of poor training in making cost estimates, found themselves in a cycle that ultimately put them out of business. They under- estimated cost factors and were forced to use secondary materials and cut labor far below standards. Both handicapped and non-handicapped students are being trained for these needs.

Mrs. T.: How about the other case?

Dr. R.: In another effort aimed at enabling adults to improve their career outlook, a grant was awarded to the Texas State Education Agency to develop performance- level literacy criteria to replace the long commonly used years- of-schooling yardstick, which many authorities feel is no longer realistic. Again, the status of being handicapped is not important here.

Mrs. T.: Can environmental education have a place in the new local program?

Dr. R.: Yes, innovative approaches to the development of environmental awareness has a definite place in some of the curricula to be offered.

Mrs. T.: And the gifted and talented?

Dr. R.: There are 1.5 to 2.5 million youngsters of elementary and secondary school age who are classified as "gifted or talented" out of a total of 52 million. Intellectual and creative talent cannot survive educational neglect or apathy. The gifted and talented need guidance and encouragement, and the outcome will show that a significant number of these will be happy in trained trade billets.

Mrs. T.: That reminds me of the "Washington Newsletter" (Vol. IV, No. 2) of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton entitled "Reading -- A Fundamental Right." Might not the Eagleton Bill be utilized by the Vocational-Technical Skills Center?

Dr. R.: Yes, the Memphis Area Vocational- Technical School has an effective Learning Improvement Center that includes special training in reading. Sen. Eagleton's bill, the National Reading Improvement Act of 1972, could help us, if passed, by authorizing funds for the acquisition of teaching materials.

Mrs. T.: You are thus talking about students who range from the gifted to the average, and in some cases below average, as potential students.

DR. R.: Yes, it is quality public education with a mission for those with the proper aptitudes, regardless of I.Q. It is democratic education at the best.

Mrs. T.: I thought this was only liberal education that had these ingredients.

Dr. R.: No, liberal education has been a cornerstone of democratic institutions in this nation from its inception. While it had its European origins in Renaissance education for the elite and in medieval clerical education, it has never in this nation properly been a finishing school for the few. Now, we can say career education has just as much justification for providing the same democratic setting. The genius and strength of American education lies in its diversity, in the great number and many types of programs.

Mrs. T.: I believe I have explored the philosophy you conceive for the new vocational- techincal program that will soon be completed, but would you repeat some of the statistics about the two pods being built to achieve these purposes?

Dr. R.: Yes, at the present time, the Vocational- Technical Skills Center is being constructed by the Brown Construction Company, and the architects are Donnellan and Porterfield. It is composed of two pods on an 80- acre tract just off the New Madrid-Howardville Interchange of Interstate 55. The quiet pod is the one to the east and is the nearest completed, and is composed of 46,200 square feet and the following trades: food lab, clothing lab, nursing lab, drafting, electronics, typing, business machines, and data processing. Also included in this pod are administrative offices and instructional media. The other pod will cover the noisy skills and will include building trades, sheet metal shop, machine shop, agricultural mechanics, auto body shop, appliance repair, welding, air conditioning and refrigeration, mechanical repair and graphic arts. This pod will consist of 55,284 square feet. The skill center has been approved by the state of Missouri as an area vocational school.

Mrs. T.: Has a director been appointed?

Dr.R.: Yes, Sam J. Bodine, veteran New Madrid County educator, has been appointed, and he began July 1, 1972.

Mrs. T.: Finally, when will the two pods be completed, and when will the center open?

Dr. R.: We expect the two pods to be completed by March of 1973 and the center to open the Fall of 1973.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Always give thanks for everything to God the Father, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9 Ephesians 5:20, TEV)

PRAYER: Father, may we have such firm confidence in Thee that we may give thanks in everything, remembering Thy dear Son, who, on the very night of His bitter betrayal, gave thanks. By His grace, keep us faithful--and thankful. Amen.

Elected A Winner

There isn't an ethnic group that doesn't have reasons for feeling hostile toward one or more countries or their political establishments. Boycotting and demonstrating are getting a little out of hand. There comes a time when people must assume the responsibilities of the citizenship they hold.

"Rhodesia was expelled from the Olympics for exactly the same reason Czechoslovakia was sacrificed to Hitler's demands --the fear of what the consequence might be if the ultimatum were refused. It would be just as senseless if an Irish -American athlete refused to compete if Great Britain were a participant.

"If the Rhodesian team had been justly treated, it would have remained in the Olympics. If the African athletes had then maintained their boycott, the games might have been less exciting, but they would have been far more in keeping with the spirit of fair play and honorable competition. And the future of the Olympics would certainly have been assured immunity from similar demonstrations of intransigence. The last thing the Olympics needed at Munich was another 'Munich'."

This was the tragic precedent in political intrusion that was permitted before the games opened. As decent people reflect on the 20th Olympiad, they should bear in mind the Rhodesian incident as well as the nightmare of the attack on the Israeli athletes. Unless such developments are prevented in the future, the modern Olympics will rapidly decay, precisely as the ancient Olympics decayed. The Olympic ideal is too fine to let that happen.

Strife at the Olympics

The intrusion of criminal terrorist activity into the Olympic Games has caused civilized people everywhere to recoil with horror. Political fanaticism on the part of Palestinian revolutionaires all but destroyed the games. The Olympics weren't created to be a part of the world of national strife, but of the world of sports. They provide an opportunity for individuals from many lands to meet in athletic competition. In ancient Greece even wars were interrupted for the Olympic games.

Unfortunately, political strife and enmity gained a foothold in the international competition. Before the 20the Olympiad got under way this year, there was a demonstration of political discrimination against one country --Rhodesia. How ironic it now seems that athletes from peaceful Rhodesia should have been barred while athletes from revolutionary Arab countries, which harbor terrorists, should have been admitted to competition.

Avery Brundage, chairman of the International Olympic Committee, recognized the relationship between the ouster of Rhodesia and the attack on the Israeli athletes. In his address at the memorial service for the slain athletes Mr. Brundage condemned the intrusion of politics and criminal activities at the Olympics, noting that "we lost the Rhodesian battle to naked political blackmail." Tragically, athletes from Kenya and Ethiopia angrily attacked Mr. Brundage's statement --even as some Arab athletes objected to the lowering of the Olympic flags to half -mast in honor of the murdered Israelis.

Before the terrorists attacked the Israelis, I received a letter from a thoughtful citizen concerned about the political discrimination against the Rhodesian athletes. His remarks still have value and I quote him in part:

"Foreign policy shouldn't be injected into the Olympics.

Many Veterans Getting New Knee Joints

KANSAS CITY — At many Veterans Administration hospitals, veterans are getting new hip and knee joints with the new "wonder cement" methylmethacrylate, which bonds to bone with tremendous strength.

At the Livermore, Calif., VA hospital, for example, three of the operations have been done, all with promising results.

The artificial knee joint being used permits the full movement of a natural knee, in contrast to older methods which allowed only frontward and backward movement.

Dr. Lillian Rachlin, chief of surgical service at the Livermore hospital, said the operation is being used for patients with disabling arthritis of the knee joint.

She said these patients are walking on their own or with the aid of a cane in about two weeks after the surgery.

Four Cases Heard In Circuit Court

BENTON — Three divorces and one renewal of a criminal case were brought before Judge Marshall Craig in Circuit Court Monday.

The case of Edward Sloan of Morehouse, charged with the July 14 felonious assault on Larry Allman, was renewed from the trial docket and passed till further order by agreement.

Louise Williams Walker of Benton was granted a divorce from Aron Walker of Sikeston. She was awarded care and custody of a minor child. Walker was ordered to pay $15 per week for the support and maintenance of the minor child and is to have reasonable rights of visitation.

A hearing was set for Dec. 21 in a motion to modify decree of divorce with R. W. Ressel of Kelso and Carmen T. Ressel of Kelso. Mrs. Ressel has requested that she have temporary custody of the minor children from the date school dismisses until the date it resumes.

Mary Frances Burnett was awarded a divorce from Jack T. Burnett of Chaffee.

American labor won its first closed shop in 1794. It was won in Philadelphia by the shoemakers.

Bootheel Sheltered Workshop Planned

KENNETT —Plans were formed Wednesday to establish a sheltered workshop in the Bootheel by officials of the Missouri Division of Mental Health and residents from Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid Counties.

Dr. Joe Zimmerman of Kennett was chosen chairman of a steering committee which will begin preliminary steps necessary to organize a sheltered workshop program.

Charles Royal of Malden was named vice chairman and Mrs. Betty Hayden of Caruthersville, president of Southeast Missouri Mental Health Association, was named secretary.

Kenneth L. Dowden, acting director of developmental disabilities section of the Division of Mental Health in Jefferson City explained the process of obtaining federal and state assistance in a workshop program.

Dr. Duane Hensley, director of the mental retardation section in the state division, said figures compiled by his office indicate Southeast Misssuri has approximately 3,000 trainable and educable mental retardates between the ages of one and 21 years.

There are no workshops in the lower Bootheel area but programs have been established in Poplar Bluff, Sikeston and Cape Girardeau.

Another planning meeting was set for Oct. 5 to be held at the State Training School north of Kennett.

Other officials attending were Moody Briles, administrator of the Division of Mental Health's Diagnostic Clinic at Poplar Bluff; David Ragan, administrator of Sikeston Regional Disgnostic Clinic for mental Retardation; Moody Summitt of Malden, regional health planner for Bootheel Planning Commission and Economic Development, and Jack Pierce of Gideon, an official in the Missouri Department of Community Affairs.

President Theodore Roosevelt became the first U.S. president to set foot on foreign soil when he visited Panama, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Post Office Has Complaints

Complaints have been received at the Sikeston Post Office from subscribers of The Wall Street Journal. According to Assistant Postmaster Ewart Taylor, the post office checked with the publisher in Chicago, who said the building had been struck by lightning, putting the printing machinery out of commission.

A few papers were received Friday and postal officials say all of the papers will be delivered as soon as they arrive.

Dirty Films Motions Overruled

KENNETT -- In Circuit Court Thursday Judge William H. Billings entered an order in the prosecuting attorney's civil case against showing of obscene films by Holcomb All-Star Drive- In, overruling two motions made on behalf on the theater's owners, Southland Threaters, Inc.

The defendant's motion to dissolve the temporary injunction and the motion to modify the temporary injunction were overruled by Judge Billings.

The theater, had asked the court to dissolve the injunction and/or modify the injunction so as not to leave it up to the theater to determine what is or isn't obscene.

The theater, as it stands, now will remain under the injunction not to show "obscene" films.

Hockaday Urges Care On Roads

JEFFERSON CITY -- Colonel E. I. Hockaday, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, has stated that more hours of darkness and sudden adverse weather conditions are two differences that drivers must adjust to this fall.

"Periods of quick- failing temperatúres resulting in frost or ice spotss on the roads is another condition drivers should expect during this time of year," he said.

Colonel Hockaday urges all motorists to adjust their driving habits to the driving situations associated with the autumn season.

Farm Tractor Stolen Near Campbell

CAMPBELL -- A tractor was stolen some time late Wednesday or early Thursday from a farm six miles southwest of Campbell.

Owner of the tractor was Earl Wright of Campbell Route two.

INTELLECT INSIGHT

LONDON (AP) — Short-sighted children are often brighter than those with normal vision. Dr. Charles Brown, an eye specialist who conducted a survey for the medical publication "Practitioner," discovered that most children who excelled in intelligence tests were bespectacled. "Persons who wear glasses often have larger eyes, indicating larger brains," Dr Brown concluded.

What You Want To Know

Q. Is it true that there is going to be a TV series in which two actors will play Laurel and Hardy; I am a Laurel and Hardy fan and I will be insulted if they go ahead with a series in which other people play the great Laurel and Hardy. Why not just run some of their films? —R.M., Sacramento, Calif.

A. Simmer down, there is no such series planned. You are right, though? it would be insulting to the memory of the two great film clowns to have their routines interpreted by actors on a weekly show. However, I doubt that the networks will rerun their films in a regular series.

Q. Is Barbra Streisand making a movie for TV with Ryan O'Neal? I think they are a groovy couple and I would like to see them work together in a movie. Will it be a "love story" like the marvelous film that made a star out of Ryan O'Neal; —Mrs. G.M., Charleston. W.Va.

A. Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal are currently winding up filming on a comedy titled "What's Up, Doc?" but it is intended for theatrical release, not TV. Incidentally, the director of the film is Peter Bogdanovich, who scored with "The Last Picture Show."

Buddy Ebsen, Keir Dullea and Lois Nettleton Star In Western Comedy

"Mail Order Bride"

Monday, September 25

Buddy Ebsen, Keir Dullea and Lois Nettleton star in "Mail Order Bride," Western comedy about the attempts to harness the unbridled spirits of a handsome young man by getting him married, on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday Sept. 25 (Starting at 10:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Warren Oates, Barbara Luna, Paul Fix and Marie Windsor play featured roles in this color film, which was orginally broadcast on this series on May 4 1972.

In the story, ex -lawman Will Lane (Ebsen) comes to the town of Congress in 1890 to tame Lee Carey (Dullea), the wild son of his dead friend. They clash, but Lane has the deed to the half -built Carey ranch, which is not to be surrendered until Lee shows signs of maturity.

As the first step, Lee unwillingly married Annie Boley (Miss Nettleton), who agrees to let it be a union in name only. But Lane sees through the deception and sets off a succession of events that brings unexpected results.

Richard E. Lyons produced, and Burt Kennedy directed and wrote the screenplay for the 1964 MGM release.

"Vengeance Valley"

Burt Lancaster, Joanne Dru and Robert Walker star in "Vengeance Valley," a taut drama in which a woman pits brother against brother, on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Sept. 27 (starting at 10:30 p.m., on the CBS Television Network.

Sally Forrest, John Ireland, High O'Brian and Carleton Carpenter have important supporting roles in the color film, which was previously presented on this series on May 22, 1972.

Owen Daybright (Lancaster) gets his foster brother Lee Strobie (Walker) out of one scrape after another. So, when Lee gets involved with Lily (Miss Forrest), a local waitress, Owen tries to prevent Lee's wife Jen (Miss Dru) from finding out about it. But Lee, jealous of the friendship between his wife and Owen, deliberately puts his foster brother's life in jeopardy to satisfy his own petty suspicions.

Richard Thorpe directed, Nicholas Nayfack produced, and Irving Nayfack wrote the screenplay for the 1957 MGM release.

"Heat Of Anger"

Thursday, September 28

Oscar -winner Susan Hayward and James Stacy star as a highpowered lady attorney, Jessie Fitzgerald, and a self -assured young lawyer, Gus Pride, who team up to defend a wealthy contractor accused of murder, in "Heat of Anger," color film on "The CBS Late Movie" Thursday, Sept. 28 (starting at 10:50 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Contractor Frank Galvin (Lee J. Cobb) is accused by the prosecuting attorney (Fritz Weaver) of killing one of his hard -hats, an ironworker who has been having an affair with Galvin's 18 -year -old daughter Chris (Jennifer Penny), in a fit of anger. Jessie and Gus hope to prove, however, that the death was an accident provoked by the ironworker himself in a compulsive flirtation with danger.

"Heat of Anger," produced by Stonehenge Productions in association with Metromedia Producers Corp., was written by Fay Kanin and directed by Don Taylor. Dick Berg was the executive producer and Ron Roth the producer. Robert Kirsch was executive story consultant.

Chad Everett and Bobby Sherman Enliven an Opera Spoof of Lady Godiva on "The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour"

September 29, Friday

Chad Everett, star of "Medical Center" on the Network, and popular recording artist Bobby Sherman lend their talents to "The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour" Friday, Sept. 29 (7:00 -8:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

In an opera spoof centered around that famed equestrienne, Lady Godiva, played by Cher, Sherman leads the worthy burghers of Coventry in a plea to the lady for her aid in stopping her husband, the evil Earl of Wessex (Everett), from continually raising their taxes. A rather unusual slow ride on horseback through the village's streets is part of Godiva's plan to help the people.

Another episode in the continuing story of the strange happenings in the dark, dank, dreary corridors of Cliff House finds Sonny, the master, trying to lure the unsuspecting new governess (Cher) into his private quarters. In the sketch, Everett plays the master's weird servant, and Sherman his equally strange son.

In the "vamp" portion of the program, Cher is Elizabeth Regina, Brenda Starr and Tarzan's Jane.

Musical Highlights

"Marchin' to the Music" ..... Sherman
"Happy Together," "Simple Song of Freedom," .....
"Look What They've Done to My Song" ..... Sonny and Cher
"When the Sun Comes Out" ..... Cher

What You Want To Know

Q. I heard that the "Mod Squad" was doing so poorly in the ratings that it will probably be taken off the air come January. Is this true? —T. M., West Warwick, R.I.

A. You have been misinformed. "The Mod Squad" registered in the top 20 in a recent ratings report, which places it in the hit category. Chances are it will be around for some time to come.

Q. What happened to Rick Jason of the old "Combat" TV series? I see Vic Morrow from "Combat" on many TV series as a guest, but I never see Rick Jason. Is he still acting? —Mrs. F.S., Memphis, Tenn.

A. Rick Jason doesn't work on TV as much as he used to but he is still acting. He appears from time to time as a guest star in a TV series or in a made -for -TV film.

Q. I would like to know if Peter Fonda is going to join his Dad, Henry Fonda, on his TV show, "The Smith Family." I think Peter is great looking and I would like to see him with his dad. —T.U., Woodbridge, N.J.

A. The Fondas — Henry, Peter and Jane —have no plans to work together in any TV, film, nor stage production. Perhaps they will get together on a project in the future.

Q. I have a bet with a friend that all three supporting male regulars of the old "Perry Mason Show," namely William Talman, William Hopper, and Ray Collins, have passed away. Am I right? —S.O., Tampa Fla.

A. You are correct. All three character actors are dead.

Q. I am confused about something that I wish you would clear up for me. Is the actor called Peter Mark Richman, who is in "Longstreet," the same actor who was once known merely as Mark Richman? —Mrs. A.V., Albany N.Y.

A. For reasons best known by the actor, Mark Richman decided to become Peter Mark Richman a little over a year ago.

Old Fashioned Molasses Cookies

GIANT GINGER COOKIES THEY'RE FLAVORED WITH OLD-FASHIONED MOLASSES AND GROUND GINGER.

4½ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground ginger
3/4 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 cup old -fashioned molasses
1 cup buttermilk

Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and ginger.

In a large mixing bowl cream shortening and sugar; beat in molasses. Stir in the sifted dry ingredients alternately with the buttermilk, blending well. Dough will be very soft.

Chill dough until it becomes firmer -about 1 hour in the freezer.

Work with one -half the dough at a time, keeping the remainder in the refrigerator. Use a well -floured pastry cloth and well -floured stockinet - covered rolling pin.

Dough will still be very soft when you remove it from the freezer. Toss the half you are working with into extra flour on the pastry cloth, then roll out 1/4 -inch thick. Cut with 3 1/2 or 4 inch round floured cookie cutter.

Place cookies 3 inches apart on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 350 -degree oven until lightly browned -15 minutes. With a wide metal spatula remove to wire racks to cool. Store in a tightly covered tin box.

Makes about 2 dozen very large cookies.

Note: For slightly smaller cookies use a 3 -inch round floured cutter and bake, 3 inches apart on greased cookie sheets, at the same temperature and for the same time. The yield will be about 3 dozen cookies.
